Rev. Gary L. Moore officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Arnold Hammer, organist, presented a program of nuptial selections as the guests were ushered in by Brian Trulson, brother of the bride, and Rob Swanson, friend of the groom. As the bride was escorted to the altar by her father and foster parents, Mrs. Hammer played the traditional wedding march. During the ceremony, Mrs. Doug Olson, Jr., of this city sang "The Wedding Song," and "The Lord's Prayer." Following the exchanging of the vows, the organist played "Endless Love," as the bride and groom lit the unity candle.

The bride was attired in a long-sleeved, floor-length gown of bridal satin featuring a fitted bodice with an overlay of Chantilly lace. Her softly flared skirt flowed back into a chapel-length train. Complementing her attire was a lace covered headpiece and a triple-tiered veil edged with the same lace that trimmed her gown. She carried a circular bouquet of yellow and orange roses and rosebuds, yellow carnations, and orange and yellow starflowers, accented with babies' breath and golden wheat. At the Queen Anne neckline, she wore a golden chain.

The bride's ensemble was made by Paula Lendobeja of Thief River Falls.

Attending the bride were Tami Johnson, as maid of honor, and Kathy Paulson, as bridesmaid. Both are friends of the bride. They wore turquoise, floor-length gowns and carried bouquets of rust, orange and beige carnations, accented by babies' breath.

Roger Solem attended the groom as best man and Bruce Swanson was groomsman. Both are friends of the groom. They wore beige tuxedos with orange button carnation boutonnieres. The groom, who was attired in an all white tuxedo, had two yellow rosebuds, accented with starflowers, pinned on his lapel. The ushers, fathers and grandfathers had peekaboo boutonnieres, featuring beige carnations centered with a yellow rose, pinned on their lapels.

The bride's foster mother was attired in a deep rose, floor-length gown complemented by a corsage of yellow and orange roses, rosebuds and starflowers. A similar corsage was worn by the groom's mother, who was attired in a burgundy, floor-length gown. All flowers for the wedding party were made and designed by Mrs. Bob Cardinal, cousin of the groom.

Honor guests were Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Fjeld, maternal grandparents of the groom.

A reception in the church parlors followed. To correspond with the bride's chosen colors, the serving table was decorated with wedding bells and gold and white streamers. Centering the table was a four-tiered wedding cake, iced in white, decorated in pastel gold and turquoise, and topped with a wedding bell ornament. The cake, baked and decorated by Mrs. Oscar Houske, a friend of the groom's family, was cut and served by the groom's aunts, Mrs. Marvin Roisland and Mrs. Al Westerlund.

Pouring coffee were Mrs. John Wettestead, aunt of the groom, and Mrs. Dwight Mosher, sister of the groom. Mrs. Mosher also made the groom's cake.

Host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Greg Roisland, brother and sister-in-law of the groom. Barb Anderson was at the guest book, and Kay Schantzen and Margo Schmitz, ladled the punch. They are friends of the bride. At the gift table were Mrs. Dan Helm, sister of the groom, and Mrs. Roger Westerlund, aunt of the groom. St. Pauli's ladies aid catered the reception.

The flowers on the bridal table, as well as those on the altar, were arranged by Mrs. Jim Nelson, a friend of the bride's family.

The bride is a graduate of Northland Community college and is currently employed at Northland Foods. The groom attended the Thief River Falls AVTI and is employed by Anderson Power and Equipment. Both are graduates of Lincoln high school.

The couple is living at Basswood trailer court. Photo, Nieland studio, Thief River Falls.

Scout Project Aids Residents At Oakland Pk.

OAKLAND PARK nursing home residents Mabel Moss and Marie Hallquist couldn't wait until spring to try out one of the new benches built by these members of Boy Scout Troop 59 as a community service project. Project was the idea of Jim Van Schaick, who is working on his Eagle Scout award. By supervising the other boys as they constructed the three benches over a 10-day period, Jim earned points toward his leadership and service badges, and his friends got points toward their service badges as Star Scouts. From left to right, the Scouts are: David Novak, Van Schaick, Bill Carlson and Tony Quevedo. Furniture will be placed out on the patio as soon as the weather permits.

Image of the Boy Scout helping an elderly lady across the street is one that has been popularized in numerous magazine illustrations, and occasionally has been the subject of cartoons or jokes, but one of the laws to which Scouts are bound, is to be helpful.

Jim Van Schaick, one of the members of Scout Troop 59, sponsored by Zion Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls, has carried his helpfulness to a new degree, by assisting all the residents of Oakland Park nursing home.

As one of the requirements for his Eagle Scout award, which is the highest rank a scout can obtain, Jim was required to do a community service project. He said he spent a lot of time asking questions and thinking about it before he finally decided to build some patio furniture for the nursing home.

By getting some of his friends involved in the project, Jim was able to assist them towards their community service badges as Star Scouts as well, while gaining leadership points for himself. Scouts who assisted him in the construction of the three benches were David Novak, Bill Carlson and Tony Quevedo.

Jim also shared credit for the project with a number of adults, whom he noted had given him a lot of assistance. He noted that his grandfather, Waldeman Wendt had helped him with the tools, and some of the construction details. Much of the work was completed using tools at the "55 Club" which is a workshop for senior citizens. Jim also credited Quentin Jones with assisting him in the planning and design of the benches. Materials were donated by Home Lumber, Peterson Lumber and Lambert Paint and Glass Supply.

Design of the three benches is a practical one which allows them to be folded for convenient storage when they are not in use, yet the construction is heavy duty so that there is little danger of their collapsing. Finish on the benches is in bright colored enamels which should enable them to withstand years of Minnesota weather.

Scoutmaster Jim Hoks noted that the project was one of the last steps toward final review for the Eagle award for Van Schaick, and was optomistic that he would be eligible by May.

Sherryll Irvine, administrator of Oakland Park nursing home said that she was thrilled to have the addition of the furniture for the newly constructed patio, noting that it would enable the residents to enjoy the outdoor addition more fully once the weather turned a bit warmer. As the furniture was presented to the home on Thursday, a number of the residents gathered around to try out the benches and reported that they were very comfortable.

Jim's mother Bonnie Van Schaick, who is also the district commissioner for the Voyageur's Trails Scout District, expressed pride in the accomplisment of her son, but noted with a smile that she was glad to have the project into the nursing home and out of her house.

School Budget Cuts Include Knox Closing

due to lack of funds. In addition, School District 564 shows a drop of 209.64 basic pupil units from 1981-82 to 1983-84. Basic state aids are scheduled to increase to $1,475 for 1983-84 from $1,309 for 1982-83. State legislators have said that the $1,475 figure is unrealistic due to the financial condition of the state. Each reduction of $25 in basic aid will result in a loss of approximately $72,000 in projected revenue by the district.

With cuts projected by the administration on the local level, and assuming full payment of scheduled basic aids by the state, the district could have an unappropriated fund balance of $250,000 to $400,000 at the end of the 1983-84 school year.

Other budget-cutting areas considered by the board on a line-by-line basis Thursday morning were the following:

Going to a four-day school week for the entire 1983-84 year, saving about $65,000 in transportation costs;

Reduction of $19,000 in the central office area through reduction of secretarial time ($4,164), legal services ($14,800) and personnel ($785);

Reduction of $8,275 by eliminating the school district's payment in that amount to the department of vocational education counselor's office;

Reduction of $5,300 by eliminating hiring of CETA workers in secretarial, custodial or transportation areas;

Cuts of $4,867 in general instructional expense for supplies, staff development and curricular consultants;

Operation and maintenance cuts on buildings and grounds of $83,000 which includes $2,000 at Lincoln, $22,000 at Franklin, $12,000 at Northrop, $32,000 at Washington and $15,000 at the school district service center (The cuts would be primarily in custodial staff areas and would eliminate night activities at Washington and Northrop schools and all but physical education swimming at the Franklin pool. Also included would be $13,000 in laundry by not providing towels to students in gym classes);

Food service reductions would total $52,712 which includes $27,052 in secretarial, custodial and other labor costs, $18,600 in food, $1,560 in ala carte service and $5,500 in milk;

Transportation cuts would be $62,599 as a result of eliminating two routes, using two larger buses to transport students closest to Thief River Falls, reducing one mechanic at the bus garage and switching from gasoline to diesel engines on new buses;

Elementary cuts totaling $52,222 would include $40,000 in instructional salaries, (one first grade and one fourth grade section would be eliminated) $750 in substitutes, $2,800 in benefits, $400 in care equipment, $2,500 in instructional supplies, $260 miscellaneous, $1,500 in travel, $1,000 in testing, $1,000 in field trips and $2,012 in school patrol expense by eliminating free lunch for school patrol crossing guards;

Franklin middle school cuts of $3,313 would result mainly from reduction in aides and various supplies;

Support service reductions of $70,569 through reduction of full-time teaching positions in elementary SLD and elementary EMH and a reduction of one half-time teacher for the hearing impaired will be reduced by a loss of $24,779 in state aid for a net budget reduction of $49,790;

Boys athletics would be cut by $18,965 through elimination of baseball, tennis, golf, cross country and swimming and girls athletics reduced by $13,075 by elimination of golf, cross country, swimming and softball (these could be operated with support from outside the school district).

Administrative cuts of $57,002 result from the closing of Knox, moving of the fifth grade to the Mark Twain and Franklin complex and using two administrators for 950 students in that facility. One nine-month secretary position would be eliminated and $5,000 administrative cost and $2,000 secretarial cost would be charged to the summer school program.

Cuts in the art program of $3,176 district-wide includes one-sixth full-time equivalent teacher in the middle school and supplies at all schools.

Drop in student enrollment will permit a $6,350 cut in business education overload on the high school level.

Reduction of $45,286 in the English department reduces $6,500 supplies at the elementary level, a half-time teacher at the middle school (raising class size average to 31-34 in grades six, seven and eight) and reduction of a full-time teacher at Lincoln.

Foreign language cut of $9,547 is based on reducing one half-time German teaching position.

Physical education cuts of $22,938 result from dropping half-time equivalent teaching positions at Franklin and Lincoln.

Elimination of the distributive education program would reduce the budget by $1,100.

Home economics cuts of $2,352 result mainly from reduction of one-sixth full-time teacher at the middle school, increasing sixth grade class size to 32.

Industrial education cuts of $8,168 include reduction of instructional time at Franklin and Lincoln.

Mathematics reduction of $10,573 includes cut of a half-time instructor at the middle school, resulting in class sizes from 31 to 34.

Music cuts of $46,058 district wide include elimination of band and orchestra from the elementary program, providing for one elementary music teacher between Washington and Northrop, 2.3 music teachers in grades 5-8 and 1.7 music teachers at the high school. A band instructor would be shared between Franklin and Lincoln and the vocal music program would also be shared. Orchestra might be available at some secondary levels depending on scheduling.

Natural science cuts of $11,643 result from on half-time equivalent science teacher at the middle school and $1,000 in elementary supplies. Class sizes at the middle school would range from 31 to 34.

Social science cuts of $20,437 would come from reduction of a half-time social studies teacher at the middle school and another half-time social studies teacher at the high school. Class size would increase to 31-34 at the middle school and over 30 at Lincoln.

Maintaining area and city facilities rental at the negotiated figure of $20,500 for 1982-83 would reduce the budget $2,380 from what had originally been projected.

Agricultural education program would be cut $3,000 by cutting back on service days.

Educational media cuts of $48,405 would eliminate two of three full-time librarian positions, leaving the remaining librarian to divide time to one-third at Lincoln, one-third at Franklin and one-third in the elementary schools. One full-time aide would be employed for the elementary schools. Teaching of library science would be eliminated and assistance to teachers in developing resource materials would be substantially reduced.

Counseling and guidance would be cut by $18,317 by reducing one Franklin counseling position from full-time to half-time and reduction of additional service days at the high school.

Kindergarten would be cut $16,481 by elimination of one kindergarten section, leaving the average class size at 26.5 students.

Northwest vocational center costs would be cut $31,362 by reducing supply costs, and discontinuing small engines and recreation and the electronics programs.

Tax Changes Affecting The Unemployed

If you are one of the more than 11 million Americans who has been unemployed in the last year, you may be affected by a recent change in tax law. According to the Minnesota society of CPAs, you should be aware of certain tax deductions for job-hunting costs, and other ways to ease the financial burden between jobs.

Depending upon your total annual income from all sources, you may be subject to a tax bite on part of any unemployment compensation you received in 1982. If unemployment benefits push your total income above $13,000 on a single person's tax return or $18,000 on a joint return, you will have to pay a tax on those benefits.

To determine how much compensation is taxable, add up the total amount of all unemployment compensation received, along with any wages, interest, dividends and other income for 1982. Then subtract from that total, $12,000 for a single person or $18,000 for a joint return.

If after subtracting, the result is zero, none of your unemployment compensation is taxable. If the result is above zero, you are taxed on one-half of that amount or on the total of unemployment compensation received, whichever is less.

Let's say you are a single taxpayer who earned wages of $11,000 in 1982, plus interest income of $200. You also received $2,000 in unemployment compensation. Your total income for the year was $13,200.

You subtract $12,000 from $13,200 and end up with a subtotal of $1,200. Half that amount, $600, is considered taxable income for the year. The other $1,400 of unemployment compensation is not taxed.

According to CPAs, if you were unemployed during 1982 but looked for another job, you can generally claim tax deductions for certain expenses you incurred in your job search. The cost of printing and mailing resumes is deductible, as is the cost of traveling to a job interview. And remember, these costs are deductible even if you do not get the job you tried for.

If you paid an employment agency fee or placed a classified ad in order to get a job, those costs are also deductible. An important qualification is that job-hunting expenses can only be deducted if you look for a job in your regular line of work.

If you are unemployed, and living on a reduced income, it is a good idea to keep a financial diary recording everything you spend. When you see where your money is going, it becomes easier to identify expenses you can do without. A diary will also help you keep track of job-hunting and other tax-deductible expenses.

You may also want to set up a budget, based on income from unemployment compensation and any other sources. Include your spouse's income, along with any income your children can provide.

Purchase of health and life insurance policies is an important budget expense, especially if these benefits were previously provided by your former employer (coverage from an employer's plans usually extend one month after you leave your job). To save money, you may want to convert the group health and life insurance plans to individual coverage. This is often cheaper than buying all new policies.

It could also be cheaper to buy short-term health insurance policies that provide coverage for two to six months, or a one-year term life policy. You may be eligible for coverage under your spouse's health insurance plan, or perhaps through a group plan offered by a professional or fraternal organization.

Major expense that may be reduced while you are unemployed is regular mortgage payments, provided the mortgage holder is amenable. The bank holding your mortgage might allow you to pay only interest during the period that you are out of work. The principal portion might then be added to later payments when you are working again.

Careful financial planning can help ease the burden of being unemployed. With your plans in operation, you'll find it easier to concentrate on your job-hunting efforts and get back to work faster.

First Federal Pays Record Interest Total

Savers at First Federal Savings and Loan association in Thief River Falls earned a record $5,290,000 in interest during 1982, according to information presented at the annual meeting of the association recently. Savings deposits at First Federal now total $50,497,697.

Roger Tunberg and Robert Poissant were reelected to three-year-terms on the board of directors with hold-over directors including Milton J. Reierson, Charles Ness, Donald L. Olson and Dr. Edward T. Nelson. Curtis L. Charlson is attorney for the association.

Officers were reelected and Mrs. Sally Berg of Roseau was named assistant manager of the Roseau branch office.

President Milton Reierson stated that the reduction in record high interest rates paid to savers had led to a slow but steady decline in mortgage rates. "High mortgage rates, the direct result of high savings costs, severely dampened the local housing market last year," Reierson said.

He added that the association is confident that if economic conditions continue to improve, the housing and investment needs of the community can be more fully served by the financial institutions here.

Dear Readers,

The traditional funeral service arose from deep emotional needs of the bereaved family and friends. It aids in the healthy grieving process that enables the survivors to adjust to an altered reality. Feelings of guilt, like those of anger, are normal in grief and the bereaved must be helped to overcome them for mental health.

Respectfully,

Belmont Funeral Home

Cenex Reports Record Sales For Fiscal '82

Cenex sales reached a record-high $1.47 billion in 1982, and the regional cooperative's earnings totaled $15,027,000.

President Darrell Moseson said Cenex reported sales increases in key areas such as petroleum, fertilizer and feed during 1982, while the industry as a whole realized sales declines. "As a result, we are able to report earnings in a year when most of the farm supply industry completed its books in red ink," Moseson said.

He said Cenex will distribute patronage refunds totaling $10.5 million to local co-ops in 1983, based on 1982 earnings.

During 1982 petroleum sales were up 14 per cent; LP gas sales increased 43 per cent; seed sales rose by nine per cent; battery sales increased by five per cent; and paint sales increased 13 per cent. These increases were achieved in a farm economy that cut deeply into ag supply sales overall, Moseson told delegates to the cooperative's annual meeting.

Cattle-Calf Inventory In State Declines

Minnesota farms had an inventory of 3.61 million cattle and calves on Jan. 1, 1983, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. This inventory was seven per cent below Jan. 1, 1982. The U.S. inventory of 115.2 million was down slightly from a year earlier.

Minnesota cows and heifers that have calved numbered 1.37 million head, down eight per cent from a year earlier. In this category, beef cows at 481,000 were down 18 per cent, milk cows at 890,000 were down two per cent from Jan. 1, 1982. Nationally, the total cows and heifers that have calved was 49.1 million head, down two per cent from a year ago. Beef cows at 38.1 million head were down three per cent; milk cows at 11.1 million head were unchaged.

The number of operations in Minnesota with cattle at 60,000 was down 2,000 from last year. Operations with milk cows at 26,000 remained unchanged.

7,293 Firms Incorporate During 1982

Number of new incorporations in Minnesota during 1982 rose from 1981's 7,293 to 7,313, the second highest number of new incorporations in the history of the secretary of state's office, according to secretary Joan Growe.

"While it is clear that our economy is still not recovering as it should, this report certainly indicates that investors are very interested in doing business in Minnesota," she said.

In 1979, over 7,500 new corporations were started in Minnesota.

There was also an increase in other types of business filings last year. According to Growe, 5,596 assumed business names were filed for non-incorporated proprietorships, plus 597 limited-partnerships were organized. Overall, the figures show that there was a 2.5 per cent increase in business formation in Minnesota in 1982, with 14,438 businesses started in the state during 1982, compared to 14,085 in 1981.

Recent Dun and Bradstreet survey of all 50 states showed that while nationally business incorporations were at a two-year low, Minnesota was one of three states with any large gains in new charters.

Dr. Peterson Honored On Hospital Staff

Dr. Donald A. Peterson, retired podiatrist from Crookston, has been nominated and selected for membership to the honorary medical staff at St. John's hospital in Red Lake Falls.

Dr. Peterson originally became a member of St. John's hospital staff in 1965 and in the early years did most of his podiatric work at this hospital. As years passed and podiatrists became more accepted in the medical field and on hospital staffs, Dr. Peterson expanded his practice and began providing podiatric surgery in many area hospitals.

In recent years, Dr. Peterson's son, Dr. David Peterson joined his father in practice, and recently took over the business when the senior partner retired. Dr. Peterson resigned from the podiatric staff of St. John's hospital in the spring of 1982 and was recommended for honorary medical staff membership. This was approved by the board of directors of the hospital.

Dr. Peterson is one of only three members who have been elevated to this honorary position. The others are Dr. Jack Harris and Dr. Stanton Hirsh.

Scholarships Available For Conference

Bemidji state university (BSU) foundation and the BSU alumni are offering six scholarships to help students attend the 15th annual Upper Midwest writers' conference July 11-22 on the BSU campus.

Scholarships are available to all Minnesota high school students who will be seniors during the 1983-84 academic year or to currently enrolled BSU undergraduates.

Upper Midwest writers' conference gives the students the opportunity to study with nationally-known writers in a wide variety of areas, such as poetry, fiction and children's stories.

Scholarship winners will serve as personal assistants to guest writers including Jon Hassler, Judy Delton, Philip Dacey and Patricia Hampl.

Conference involves intensive daily classes in addition to evening readings. Entire session can be taken for four undergraduate or graduate credits.

Interested students should submit a sample of their writing with a letter of introduction by May 31 to Dr. Bill Elliott, conference director, Hagg-Sauer Hall, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601.

Indian Art Exhibit At BSU Gallery

Eight native Minnesota artists will display their works February 3-18 in the Talley gallery on the campus of Bemidji state university. Talley gallery, located in BSU's education-art building, is open to the public weekdays from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The 32-piece exhibit represents an artistic evolution of American Indian art, from the confinement of cultural traditions to the new form of personal expression with varying degrees of traditional influence.

The eight exhibiting artists include Robert Rose-Bear, a recognized carver of pipestone, the reddish rock native to Minnesota; George Morrison, renowned for his "found and prepared" wooden collages; Carl Gawboy, a painter with natural and vivid watercolors; and Kent Smith, whose plywood paintings merge traditional Indian themes and the artist's training in contemporary art.

Also in the show are photographer Kathleen Westcott, whose prints depict Indian heritage; Chuck Huntington, whose designs in metal sculpture can be seen as an extension of geometric patterns much like those found on Indian pottery; Steve Premo, whose portraits merge cultural traditions with the physical and psychological insight of contemporary portraiture; and David Bradley, a painter influenced by both his ancestors and European artists.

Exhibit is supported by grants from the Jerome foundation, the National endowment for the arts and the Minnesota arts board.

Pheasant Stamp Proposed

Some of our most enjoyable days in the field during the past few fall hunting seasons have been in pheasant haunts of west central Minnesota and eastern South Dakota. While each game bird has its attraction, the pheasant combines size, color and craftiness which is impossible to match in other species.

Virtually all of our Minnesota hunting has been done on state-owned wildlife management areas or federally-owned waterfowl production areas. These public lands are the wildlife oases in the desert of fall-plowed farmland, burned ditches and private wetland areas. Were it not for these areas — acquired by the government with foresite years ago — pheasants in Minnesota would have an extremely difficult time to exist.

This year a bill has been introduced in the Minnesota legislature to provide for establishment of a $5 pheasant stamp which would be required of pheasant hunters from 18 to 65 years of age. Funds raised through the stamp sale would be designated for promotion and practice of development, restoration, maintenance and preservation of habitat for pheasants on public and private lands. It would also permit reimbursement of landowners for setting aside lands for pheasant habitat and the expenditure of funds on public and private lands to provide pheasant habitat.

We support this effort by the state department of natural resources, although it will mean adding another special use stamp to our annual hunting license. A coordinated effort has been needed for some time to provide incentive to private landowners to maintain or improve habitat. The birds are remarkably adaptable but heavily dependent upon winter cover and undisturbed nesting cover.

Shelling out the five bucks will add little to the total cost of our pheasant pursuits, but it could add immeasurably to prolonging the future of this marvelous game bird in Minnesota.

Creative Sentencing

Robert Shaw, former manager of the Minnesota newspaper association, showed up in Roseau for several days to help the Times-Region following the fire which destroyed the newspaper office and equipment. One of his efforts was an editorial which set forth his feelings in no uncertain terms. The editorial was as follows:

It is not my job to give advice to district judges, but having worked for several days with Bill and Maggi Adams — desperately trying to reconstruct their newspaper after that Jan. 21 fire — I have discovered that by golly, I do have some advice for district judges.

I predicate this advice on the arrest and conviction of the person who burned down the Adams' newspaper last Thursday night.

At the time of this writing, which is Thursday noon, there is some talk going around the Times-Region temporary office that the culprit will be caught. The general belief is that Sheriff Knochenmus is on somebody's track. Law enforcement people don't like to talk much about their work, especially about their investigation of crime. Since some law enforcement people seem to regard almost everything they do as "the investigation of crime" this gives news people in other parts of the state plenty of problems. That problem, according to Bill, doesn't exist in Roseau. It is easy to see that people here have high regard for their county sheriff. Bill hasn't asked Sheriff Knochenmus how the investigation is going, and the sheriff hasn't volunteered anything.

Maybe this talk around the office is wishful thinking. Maybe the arsonist will never be caught.

But if he is, and if the jury finds that he really did burn the Times-Region and Attorney Berg's office, then I have a constructive thought for the judge who does the sentencing.

Be creative, judge.

Don't just rely on the statute (MS 609.561, Subd. 2) which sets the upper limits for first-degree arson: ". . . may be sentenced. . . to imprisonment for not more than 20 years or to a fine of not more than $20,000. . ."

As I read it, that means you have the authority, if you so choose, to sentence the arsonist to, say five years in prison (which really means one year in prison and out on good behavior) and, maybe not fine at all. I believe the criminal should provide full financial restitution to the victims of crimes, not only in this case but in every case.

If the Adams lost $200,000 in that fire — which isn't too farm from the truth — then the arsonist should pay it all back. If it takes him 75 years to pay it back, so be it. If he dies before he gets it all paid back to the Adams or their heirs, fine. Perhaps, if there were a mandatory prison sentence as part of the package, the arsonist could learn a skill which would enable him to earn more per hour, to speed up the process.

Doing this would be the mark, I believe, of a wise and compassionate society. By this, I mean wise and compassionate to the victims of the crime as well as the perpetrator.

Of course, Bill might not want to hire the person who burned down his newspaper. I don't suppose that many people are invigorated about hiring arsonists to work around the place.

In that case, judge, sentence the arsonist to perform useful work in a place which he can't burn down: the granite quarry near St. Cloud, for example. But get him out there in society again performing useful labor, keep a close eye on him (Bill Adams is a Christian but an Old Testament Christian, and Sheriff Knochenmus should spot-check from time to time to be sure Bill isn't hanging the arsonist by the thumbs in the back room), but make him pay back by the sweat of his brow the damage he has caused.

There's a man in Duluth who runs the county jail — I have forgotten his name — who gets the jailbirds out in the summertime to mow the lawns and mind the flower beds. If you go to Duluth in the summertime you'll probably see groups of men working hard pulling weeds, trimming grass, and doing all sorts of useful work. Few public buildings have such beautiful gardens and lawns as does St. Louis County's, and the man who runs the jail is responsible. Somehow he has discovered that he has the authority to do it. If somebody were to challenge his authority to be a creative rehabilitator, I am sure a lot of people in Duluth would want to give him the authority.

I believe that judges, too, have more authority to be creative in their sentencing, than they care to use.

If they don't have such authority but want to get it, I am quite sure that an aroused public would be only too willing to change the laws to give it to them.

Call For Budget Control

Following editorial is from the Swift County Monitor at Benson:

In an unprecedented move, six former Cabinet officers called for a $60-million yearly increase in sales and excise taxes and cuts of $85-billion in spending to substantially reduce the federal budget deficit by 1985. Another 50 former Cabinet members along with 450 others, including educators, heads of corporations, lawyers and investment bankers endorsed the plan.

In a statement, the six described projected deficits for coming years as "frightening" and "grotesque."

"The budgetary outlook remains dire," they said. "Even assuming sustained economic recovery the federal budget is primed to generate annual deficits in the range of $250-billion in the mid-1880's with the budget gap widening every year. Such deficits would drain the nation's shallow pool of savings into a virtual desert."

This was no partisan act, but a proposal by knowledgeable men fearing for their country's future if deficits aren't brought under control. Making the proposal were former Commerce Secretary Peter Peterson and five former treasury secretaries: W. Michael Blumenthal, William Simon, John B. Connolly, Henry Fowler and C. Douglas Dillon. Connolly, Simons and Peterson served in Republican administrations, while Blumenthal, Fowler and Dillon served with the Democrats in power.

Naturally, the medicine the panel wants this country to take isn't pleasant. It couldn't be. They propose a $60-billion reduction in government benefits, including a one-year freeze in cost-of-living increases for Social Security, federal retirement and veterans' payments. It also recommends a $25-billion reduction in defense spending.

The most controversial part is a $60-billion increase in taxes, not on income but on consumption. In other words, some kind of excise or sales tax, such as the value added tax.

These men, and those who back them, are doing the country a great service. If we don't get deficits under control we will be living in economic gloom until we plunge into darkness.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Ours is the age which is proud of machines that think and suspicious of men who try to.

Good Psychology

Are you a daydreamer? No need to be ashamed, psychologists say. Your waking musings aren't just a waste of time. They can often work for you — to meet the stress of life and even solve problems. Nearly everybody else daydreams too! Another way to ease tension is to sit back and relax with a nice cup of hot tea. It's a pleasant accompaniment to any daydreamy afternoon.

Farm Price Index Below 1982 Figures

Mid-January index of prices received by Minnesota farmers remained unchanged at 123 but was two per cent below a year ago, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. While prices were up from last month for most commodities, prices were down for all wheat, barley, dry edible beans, table market eggs and wool. Prices were steady for oats, all hay, sunflowers and milk.

Average prices received by farmers for wool are the lowest since December of 1975; dry edible beans since January of 1977; barley since September of 1977; and all wheat since May of 1979. The January milk cow price at $1,025 is the lowest since October of 1979.

Crops index increased one per cent to 106 during the month. This was 10 per cent below the index a year earlier. The mid-January prices and the changes from last month are: All wheat, $3.40 per bushel, down two cents from the revised December estimate; corn, $2.12, up five cents; oats, $1.41, unchanged; barley, $1.61, down 10 cents; soybeans, $5.29, up 11 cents; flaxseed, $4.78, up two cents; potatoes averaged $4.10 per hundredweight for all grades, up 10 cents. All hay was unchanged at $74; alfalfa hay at $80 was also unchanged; and other hay at $48 was down $7. All sunflowers at $8.30 remained unchanged from the revised December price. Dry edible beans were down $1.10 to $10.90 per hundredweight.

Meat animal index at 142 was three per cent above last month and 14 per cent above a year ago. All hogs at $55.60 per hundredweight were up $2.20 from a month earlier. Beef cattle averaged $44.90 per hundredweight, up $1.70. Calves were up $3.10 to $56 and sheep brought $18.50 per hundredweight, up $4.70. Lambs were up $4.80 to $54.80 per hundredweight.

Dairy index remained unchanged at 150 from both last month and a year ago. The preliminary milk price at $13.20 per hundredweight was unchanged from the December price.

Poultry and egg index at 93 was one per cent above last month but 12 per cent below a year ago. Turkeys were 31 cents per pound liveweight, up one cent from a month earlier. Table market eggs, brought 40 cents per dozen for all grades in mid-January, down ½ cent from mid-December and 10½ cents below a year earlier.

Social Security Reforms Lower Farm Income

A bipartisan commission White House-endorsed draft for reforming social security will mean higher taxes and reduced net income for agriculture without addressing the system's fundamental problem, the president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation said recently. As a result, the farm organization wants commission recommendations modified by congress this year.

Coverage for new federal employees and employees of non-profit groups is laudable, said Merlyn Lokensgard of St. Peter. Beyond that, however, Farm Bureau isn't impressed with proposals to rescue social security. Lokensgard said the plan will mean "not only higher taxes for farmers but increased government spending." That's because the benefit structure — particularly cost of living adjustments — remains "virtually untouched," he pointed out.

Farm leader termed the reform package "a double whammy" for an already hard-pressed farming sector. Lokensgard said the plan will require self-employed farmers to increase their payments 43 per cent "to meet the combined rate levied on employers and employees.

Other part of the "double whammy" the farm bureau spokesman said, is accelerating by six months to next January the scheduled increase in social security taxes which farmers will have to pay on themselves and their employees.

According to Lokensgard, increasing social security taxes without "significant cuts" in benefit growth rates doesn't attack the system's basic problem — "overly generous with benefits in relation to what contributors are putting into it." Rather, he said, the plan concentrates "almost exclusively" on increasing revenues "without bringing program costs under control."

Social security reform, Lokensgard said, will be one of the organization's priorities in 1983. "We'll be working for modification" of the commission's report — "especially regarding the tax increase and lack of major change in the benefit structure."

Mn. Principals To Hold Annual Convention

"Minnesota elementary school principals' association (MESPA) will mark its 28th annual convention, February 9-11, with a special drive in support of food shelves," Arlyn Gunderman, association president, announced today.

"First order of business for the more than 500 participants," Gunderman continued, "will be to deposit an expected 2,000 pounds of food for distribution to families of the unemployed. As a bonus, the principals' donations will be matched by the Pillsbury company.

MESPA convention is scheduled for the Radisson South hotel, Bloomington. Three day agenda includes a cadre of top notch speakers, each reflecting the association's 1983 theme "Images of the Future."

"The 1983 winter institute program, including the food drive, is an opportunity for elementary principals to share ideas, discuss mutual problems and learn of new ways to improve the quality of education for Minnesota's children," Gunderman concluded.

Bemidji AVTI Sponsors Fire Academy Class

Bemidji area vocational technical institute will sponsor a national fire academy course titled "Building Construction for the Fire Suppression Forces", according to Ron Svedjan, AVTI adult education director.

Two day course will be held at the Bemidji campus on March 12-13. Cost of registration will be $10.

According to Svedjan, the course will provide emergency response personnel with basic information on building construction as it relates to fire with particular emphasis on construction principles and operational safety concerns in buildings of wood and ordinary construction under fire conditions.

The course is being brought to the Bemidji area from the national fire academy as part of its local educational assistance program. Emergency response personnel interested in registration information are asked to contact the adult education office, Bemidji AVTI at 751-4137.

AVTI Accepts Three Students

Barb Helley, Rose Johnson and Doreen Marquis have been accepted for admission to Thief River Falls area vocational - technical programs beginning in August.

Barb, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Helley of Plummer, is enrolled in cosmetology; Rose, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel R. Johnson of Goodridge, and Doreen, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Marquis of Goodridge, are both enrolled in the sales, marketing and management program.

Stangeland Is Given Water Resources Rank

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has been chosen as the ranking Republican Congressman on the House subcommittee on water resources.

"The next two years will be crucial in this area," Congressman Stangeland said. "We will be working to preserve our precious water supplies and to rehabilitate America's water transportation systems."

The four-term House veteran will lead the nine Republican members on the water subcommittee, which has broad jurisdiction over the use, quality, conservation and development of the nation's water resources.

That includes the EPA-administered water quality preservation and enhancement program, corps of engineers water resources program, the soil conservation service's large watershed projects, and federal disaster relief.

Under the "superfund" law, the subcommittee also is responsible for oversight of responding to and cleaning up hazardous substance spills and uncontrolled hazardous waste sites.

Other program areas include the St. Lawrence seaway development corporation, the Tennessee Valley authority, offshore ports subject to the deepwater port act, water resources policy and regulation of ocean disposal.

"This subcommittee will be dealing with a number of bills that could affect Minnesota," Congressman Stangeland said. "My proposal for year-round shipping from Duluth is a good example. Amendments to the clean water act and the proposal for the Northern Tier pipeline may also be presented."

Consideration may also be given to oil spill "superfund" legislation, disaster relief, ocean dumping, and resource conservation and recovery acts.

A high priority will be given to water resources development legislation, since an Omnibus Rivers and Harbors Authorization Bill has not been enacted since 1976.

"In many parts of the country, water is of great concern to farmers," Congressman Stangeland said. "I hope to be able to tie in my work on the Water Subcommittee with my responsibilities on the Agriculture Committee."

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

The editorial in the January 31 edition of The Times, reprinted from the Bemidji Pioneer, concerning MEA president Don Hill' recommendation for a 30 per cent salary increase for Minnesota teachers for the next two years was very interesting to me. I am a teacher, with 18 years of teaching experience. I also hold four college degrees, including a Master's. I am certified in elementary education, special education and learning disabilities.

Since December of 1981, I have searched in vain for a full-time teaching position. I left my teaching position at the end of the 1980-81 school year in order to open a restaurant. The restaurant was closed in November of 1981 due to financial problems. Since this time, I have written hundreds of application letters and traveled thousands of miles for interviews. The results are always the same. I have too much education and experience and the salary schedules are too high for me to be hired. Consequently, I have done only day by day substituting.

The recommendations by Mr. Hill, as head of the MEA, are ridiculous, selfish and unthinking at this time. I am only one of thousands of unemployed teachers. If Mr. Hill gets his way, many more will join the ranks in the next two years.

Mr. Hill seems to think that there is a shortage of teachers. If this is true, I wish that he would pass the information and list of vacancies along to me and the other unemployed teachers. The current economic squeeze makes it imperative for everyone to pull in their belts and hold the line for their own survival, as well as that of our state and nation.

I am certainly in favor of attracting highly qualified people to the teaching profession. A $19,000 beginning salary sounds great. To me, a sub teaching job, for $34 a day, would be great!

Fellow teachers, please don't let Mr. Hill and the other leaders sell you down the river. We must be sensible, dedicated and community minded if we are to be recognized as the qualified, caring and dedicated people that most of us are.

Sincerely,
L. Dennis Sundberg
Grygla

Strong Start Carries Cards Past RLF 57-45

Plummer jumped out to an 18-0 lead at the start and built a 55-29 third quarter spread Thursday before the Cardinals settled for a 57-45 girls high school basketball win over visiting Red Lake Falls.

It was the eighth win in the last nine games for the Cardinals, who are 10-2 for the year and tied for the Polar Conference lead.

"We played about as well as we have all year," said Plummer coach Rick Koivisto in reference to the Cardinals' strong start that produced a 39-16 halftime cushion.

Bonnie Fisher scored 26 points and grabbed 17 rebounds for the winners. The only senior in the Plummer starting line-up that includes a sophomore, a freshman and two eighth graders, Fisher had 18 points in the first half when the Cardinals' full court press defense raised havoc with the Eagles' offense. Jody Pahlen scored 13 points for the Cardinals and had 12 rebounds, with Sheila Jaeger adding 11 points.

Plummer shot 31 per cent from the field (20-for-64) and 59 per cent from the free throw line (17-for-29). Red Lake Falls shot 25 per cent from the floor (17-for-68) and 58 per cent at the line (11-for-19). The Cardinals had a 52-43 rebound edge and the Eagles topped the turnover figures 29-24.

After hosting Grygla tonight (Monday), Plummer finishes its 1982-83 regular season schedule with tough Polar Conference games against East Grand Forks Sacred Heart, Stephen, Climax, Alvarado and Warren.

Roseau 22

Middle River once again relied on its defense to remain unbeaten, shutting down Roseau 37-22 Thursday.

The 15-0 Skippers have given up just 72 points in their last three games, an average of 24.0 per game.

It wasn't easy for the shorthanded winners, who were minus Jody Christofferson because of illness and had Diane Black playing despite an ankle sprain. Most of the offensive load fell to Paula Rantanen, who scored 21 points, 16 in the second half and 10 in the fourth quarter when the Skippers held the ball and picked up some easy baskets.

Middle River coach Tom Neibauer wasn't happy with his team's play, especially in the first half when the Skippers, who beat Roseau 54-17 earlier this year, had just a 13-11 lead.

Lake of the Woods will be in Middle River Thursday.

Turnovers told the story Thursday as Marshall County Central defeated Grygla 61-37 in a North Border Conference game at Newfolden.

According to the Nordics' charts, Grygla turned the ball over 27 times while Marshall County Central lost it only 11 times.

"We just turned the ball over too many times against the press," explained Grygla coach Bill Raduenz.

On the other hand, Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde was saying, "We handled the ball pretty well. That's the fewest turnovers we've had in some time."

Sue Olson (24) and Brenda Dahl (23) combined for 47 points as the Nordics improved their record to 12-2.

Kathy Foss had 10 points for the Eagles, who lost their third straight game and fell to 8-6.

Marshall County Central had a 32-12 first half lead, and Mjelde said, "Overall, the first half was probably the best half we've played all year."

Grygla shot 33 per cent from the field (17-for-51) and 75 per cent at the free throw line (3-for-4). Marshall County Central shot 42 per cent from the field (25-for-60) and 65 per cent at the line (11-for-17). The Nordics' charts showed Grygla with a slight 38-37 rebound edge.

The Eagles host Warroad tonight (Monday). The Nordics visit Roseau, Thursday and play Tri-County Saturday at Karlstad.

Thief River Falls trailed at the quarter breaks 18-4, 31-21 and 44-39. Mike Kloety hit a shot at the end that would have tied it for the visitors, but the officials ruled that the ball hadn't left his hands before the buzzer sounded.

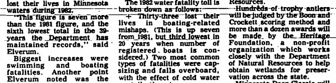
ROCHESTER GOALIE state Sandvik spread himself across the goal mouth to turn back Northland wing Tom Raymond in the third period of Friday's community college hockey game played in Thief River Falls. The Northmen beat the Yellowjackets 6-4. Rochester gained a weekend series split by rallying for a come-from-behind 7-6 overtime win Saturday afternoon.



Water Deaths Up

Minnesota's water death toll in 1982 was up slightly from the previous year, according to Kim Elverum, boat and water safety coordinator for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

According to preliminary year-end statistics, 92 persons lost their lives in Minnesota waters during 1982.

"This figure is seven more than the 1981 figure, and the sixth lowest total in the 39-years the Department has maintained records," said Elverum.

Biggest increases were swimming and boating fatalities. Another point Elverum noted was the significant connection between the use of alcohol and water accidents.

"It is not unusual to see a blood-alcohol content on an accident report exceeding the legal definition of intoxication by two or even three times," he said. "We estimate that alcohol probably contributes to at least half of our water accidents involving persons 16 years of age and over."

The 1982 water fatality toll is broken down as follows:

+ Thirty-three lost their lives in boating-related mishaps. (This is up seven from 1981, but third lowest in 20 years when number of registered boats is considered.) Two most common types of fatalities were capsizing and falls overboard, with the effect of cold water contributing in many accidents.

+ Thirty-seven died in swimming, diving or wading accidents where overconfidence in swimming ability, or lack of youngster supervision were the leading factors.

+ Ten persons drowned as a result of non-boating falls into the water.

+ Nine died as a result of breaking through the ice (four in motor vehicles and three on foot). All of these occurred in November and December.

+ Three deaths involved the use of inflatable devices.

Elverum also noted that there were 121 property damage or personal injury boating accidents. This was up significantly from the previous year. The two most common types of accidents in this category were collisions and fires or explosions.

Boating Laws

As of January 1, 1983, non-motorized boats nine feet in length or less will no longer be required to be registered with the Department of Natural Resources. The change was a result of action by the 1982 Legislature, which also provided that paddle boats are to be licensed for the same fee as canoes ($7 for three years.)

Relaxation of registration requirement will primarily affect those persons who own small inflatable craft. Those persons who have a non-motorized boat nine feet in length of less may remove the registration decals and numbers, even if they are not expired.

Persons who will be using gasoline or electric motors, however, will still be required to register their craft and display valid decals and numbers.

Requirement to carry coast Guard approved personal flotation devices (PFD's or life preservers) is still in effect, however, on all watercraft regardless of size.

Minnesota Deer Classic

Minnesota Wildlife Heritage Foundation will sponsor the state's first annual gathering of deer hunters April 23-24, at the Minneapolis National Guard Armory, according to the Department of Natural Resources.

Hundreds of trophy antlers will be judged by the Boon and Crockett scoring method and more than a dozen awards will be made by the Heritage Foundation, a non-profit organization which works closely with the Department of Natural Resources to help obtain wetlands for preservation across the state.

Minnesota Deer Classic will be more than a trophy competition, and will include outdoor product displays, a taxidermy show and free seminars by nationally known deer hunting experts.

FARMER UPDATE

Many bushels of wheat coming out of the farmer-held reserve have now been contracted. Approximately 40% of the wheat coming out in this area has been contracted, in contrast to 10% to 20% in many other areas. For this reason, we feel the market could slip further when the farmers haul in their wheat for cash on the maturity date of their loan.

We are also seeing a lot of bushels being forward-contracted for August through January delivery from farmers who are signing up in the P.I.K. program. We feel you should be watching these forward markets closely and take advantage of these marketing strategies when you feel they are favorable.

We appreciate your confidence in us doing the best possible job of marketing your grain and purchasing your supplies.

Bemidji Plans Cross Country Skiing Event

"It's yours — if you want it" is the slogan of this year's 100km Minnesota Finlandia cross country ski marathon. Renowned as the nation's longest ski event, this challenging trek across northern Minnesota's lakes and woods is scheduled for March 5-6 in Bemidji.

In the interest of promoting cross country skiing on a local, state, and nationwide level, Bemidji area professionals and businesspersons developed the Minnesota Finlandia ("Minn-Finn") in 1979.

The Minnesota Finlandia has a sister race, the Finlandia Hiihto, which takes place in Lahti, Finland, with approximately 7,000 skiers poling, kicking and gliding together at the start of the race.

Some 700 skiers are expected at the Minn-Finn starting line on Day 1, just yards away from Paul Bunyan and Babe the Blue Ox, the second most photographed statues in the U.S. Top international and national competitive racers will venture 50km north to the Buena Vista Ski Area, along with many other skiers who have committed themselves to the pride of accomplishment and physical fitness. On Day 2, skiers will begin at Buena Vista, skiing south back to Bemidji.

Statistics of the past four years indicate that 98 per cent of the Minn-Finn skiers finish, a figure that race director Kathy Rauch declares very encouraging to individuals who have trained properly beforehand, and who are prepared to pace themselves both days. Rauch's advice to the prospective skier: "Don't concern yourself with not finishing. Our statistics show that if you can ski 50km one day, you can ski 50km the next. Invariably, in fact, a skier's time will be the same, if not faster than, his or her time on Day 1."

A shorter event which is also challenging, but not as enduring, is the 27km Bemidjithon, held on Day 1 of the Minn-Finn. Numerous men's and women's age classifications appear in both events, with minimum age requirements, as well. Minn-Finn skiers must be 18 by December 31, 1982; Bemidjithon skiers must be 13 by December 31, 1982.

Several days prior to, and including, the Minnesota Finlandia have been decalred "Finlandia Week" in Bemidji. A Finnish art exhibit, parade and fireworks are among the activites planned. Skiers and their families and friends are encouraged to come early and take part in the festivities, and ski the two portions of the course that are open and groomed season-long for public skiing.

For registration and general information, write: Minnesota Finlandia, P.O. Box 771, Bemidji, MN 56601, or phone 218-751-0041.

Oklee-Plummer Wrestlers Top Panthers 29-23

Oklee-Plummer cooperative high school wrestling team came out a 29-33 winner over Cass Lake Thursday in a match-up of strong Region 8A challengers at Cass Lake.

Thursday's match at Cass Lake featured a 112-pound encounter between umbeatens Don Karbowski of the Warriors and Gary Parenteau of the Mustangs. Karbowski jumped out to an 8-2 first period lead and held on for a 10-8 decision as Parenteau's record slipped to 13-1 for the season.

Darrin Tougas of Oklee-Plummer is also 13-1 after an 11-6 decision over Mike Foster of Cass Lake, while John Cyr ran his record to 12-1 with a 21-9 romp over Eric Sather.

Miscellaneous

+ Gonvick-Trail athletic standout Alan Wolden became the first northwestern Minnesota football player to make a committment to attend and play football for Bemidji State University, according to coach John Peterson of the Beavers. Wolden, a 6-2, 200-pound unanimous North Tri-County Conference all-conference selection this past fall, will be used as a tailback at BSU, noted Peterson, who said Wolden will be a valuable asset to Bemidji's gridiron program. "We are very pleased to have Alan join us," he said. "We are working hard on finding and signing the local athlete and Alan represents a significant step (in that direction)." Wolden is also one of the area's top basketball players and could find a way into the BSU hoop program is he desires, according to the Bemidji Pioneer.

+ Judy McDonald has become the fourth member of the well-known Chisholm basketball family to reach the 1,000-point scoring plateau as a high school cager. A junior this year, she joins brothers Paul and Tom as a member of the 1,000-point club, along with sister Sue. The others all have completed high school, with Paul scoring 1,425 points, Tom 2,221 and Sue 1,962. Bob McDonald, father of the players, is head boys basketball coach at Chisholm and still has a younger son coming up through the program.

+ After watching his University of Minnesota-Crookston hockey team lose a 6-4 Wednesday night game to Northland community college, UMC coach Jim Clauson told Lori Mateer of the Crookston Times, "It was obvious that they (NCC) wanted to win the game more than we did. Once again, the penalties we took — some of which were very stupid — cost us the game. I've been preaching that for three months, and the type of effort we put in pretty much tells the story. If we're going to continue to take stupid penalties, we're going to keep losing."

+ Minnesota State High School League issued a reminder that the format of the 1983 Minnesota state high school hockey tournament will be changed this year. One semifinal game will be played at approximately 2:30 p.m. Friday, March 11, and one semifinal game will be played at approximately 8:30 that night. Each semifinal game will be preceded by a consolation game. The change, said the MSHSL, was implemented to provide additional tickets to participating schools. The Thursday and Saturday schedule remains the same as in previous years, with all afternoon sessions starting at 12:05 p.m. Incidently, MSHSL officials point out the 1983 tournament is a virtual sell-out. Only tickets available for the championship series of the three-day event are being held for the eight participating schools. Season tickets for the general public have not been available since 1973 when the waiting list became lengthy and applications were no longer accepted.

Over the next ten days the Northmen will be playing four Northwest Division games. After facing Fergus Falls tonight, Northland hosts Brainerd Saturday, visits Fergus Falls next Monday and entertains UMC the following Thursday. Northland had little trouble at Crookston Thursday, beating the Trojans for the 17th time in their last 18 meetings. The Northmen had a 21-10 lead near the midway mark of the first half and held that for a 44-43 halftime advantage. The lead was never challenged after intermission, climbing to 83-57 with 5:43 remaining.

Scott McKeever led the Northmen with 21 points while grabbing 10 rebounds and handing out five assists. Matt Fontes didn't hit his state-leading 32.7 scoring average, but he did get 16, plus 16 rebounds and seven assists. Kyle Ramsey had 14 points and 14 rebounds while Thad Forman scored 12 points and Duncan Gregory was credited with 11 assists. Mark Bagaason and Mike Brekke had 21 and 16 points, respectively for the Trojans, but 19 of those came in the final four minutes when the outcome was already decided.

The Northmen didn't match the 60 per cent shooting succees they've been enjoying in recent weeks, shooting 46 per cent from the field (39-for-84) and 57 per cent at the free throw line (20-for-35). UMC shot 36 per cent from the field (32-for-89) and 57 per cent at the line (8-for-14). Northland had a 64-62 rebound edge and the teams split 38 turnovers.

Northland coach Chet Engelman was obviously happy with the win over the rival Trojans, but acknowledged it wasn't a particularly strong showing by the Northmen.

Looking ahead to tonight's meeting with Fergus Falls, Engelman says, "It should be a super game."

The Spartans feature a strong backcourt combination of 6-0 Dave Johnson, who ranks high in the state scoring charts with a 29.8 average per game and 6-1 Devin Boe, the state's assist leader with an 11.4 average, a shade better than Gregory. Johnson is a sophomore transfer student from Columbia College in Missouri. Boe is a freshman from Deer Creek. Fergus Falls forwards are sophomores Brian Hagen, 6-4, from St. Cloud Cathedral, and Mark Helmrichs, 6-3, from Deer Creek. Center position will be manned either by 6-5 Chris Capps of Mount Clemens, Mich. or 6-4 Kevin Lee of Alexandria, a pair of freshmen.

"Fergus Falls has some good people," pointed out Engelman, "but physically they're not as strong as we are. I think we are better. If we both play as well as we can, we'll win. If they play well and we play poorly, we'll lose."

"Our destiny is in our hands," said Engelman, looking at the Northwest Division race. "Nobody is going to give us anything free, but it's all there for the taking. All we have to do is play well."

Plummer Ends Long 51-Game Losing Streak

Plummer snapped a 51-game high school basketball losing streak Friday with a 57-54 Polar Conference win over East Grand Forks Sacred Heart.

Clutch free throws down the stretch by senior Kyle Gustafson and sophomore Gene Fisher, who provided the Cardinals with a three-point edge with five seconds remaining, clinched the victory.

A large Parent's Night crowd swarmed onto the Pershing high school court to celebrate the Cardinals' first win since the final regular season game of the 1979-80 season against Fisher. That was the only Plummer victory that winter. The Cardinals were 0-19 in both 1980-81 and 1981-82, and lost their first 12 starts this season.

"The players went crazy," said second-year Plummer coach Jim Baron after the win, a decision which prompted him to quit smoking, a promise he had made to his team whenever they won their first game.

"We didn't really play that great," noted Baron, "but we did have some of our brightest spots of the year. Defensively we kept them pretty much off balance. And we were mentally ready for this game more than any other."

Plummer overcame a 16-13 first quarter deficit to lead 29-25 at halftime and had a 44-37 third quarter edge. Sacred Heart tied it 50-50 with 2:50 remaining, and Baron said, "I thought, here we go again." But the Cardinals, who finished with a big edge at the free throw line, kept their composure.

Fisher led the Cardinals with 17 points, with Tim Gagner adding 15. Darrin West had 17 for Sacred Heart, winner of just two games this winter.

Plummer shot 48 per cent from the field (21-for-43) and was a busy 15-for-28 at the free throw line. Sacred Heart shot 41 per cent from the field (26-for-61) and was 2-for-6 at the line. Sacred Heart had a 29-22 rebound edge and Plummer topped the turnover charts 19-15.

"Biggest thing was our shot selection," pointed out Baron, whose club normally doesn't approach that 48 per cent figure from the field. "We had good shots."

Plummer can sit back and enjoy its one-game winning streak until Friday when the Cardinals host Stephen.

"That's one thing less to worry about now," said Baron as the streak ended. "Now we can concentrate on playing the game and not worry about that damn losing streak."

Rams Snap TRF Win Streak 5-3 With Late Third Period Goals

Roseau scored three times in the final 6:20 Saturday — twice in the last 2:11 — to beat Thief River Falls 5-3 in a spirited Section 8 high school hockey encounter at Roseau.

The loss snapped a 12-game Thief River Falls unbeaten streak that dated back to Dec. 16 and included a 5-2 win over Roseau in the sports arena here Jan. 15. It also represented the Rams' first win over the Prowlers in their last five meetings.

"Naturally it's a disappointment," said Thief River Falls after the loss ended a string of eight straight wins that was preceded by a tie and three more wins after the Prowlers had gotten off to an 0-3 start this winter. "On the other hand, it adds importance to the next three hockey games and that's not all that bad, either."

While the loss may not end the Prowlers' prospects of a top four finish in the final regular season Section 8 won-lost standings, it does, as Grand pointed out, mean Thief River Falls must come up with wins Tuesday at Hallock; Friday vs. Detroit Lakes; Tues., Feb. 15, vs. Warroad to gain an automatic berth into the Section 8 tournament quarterfinals.

"The next three games are critical to us," acknowledged Grand.

Roseau weathered a first period assault and a two-man second period shorthanded situation to set the stage for the Rams' late-game outburst.

Thief River Falls swarmed around Roseau goalie Don Johnson in the first period, out-shooting the Rams 15-7, but could get no better than a 2-2 tie out of it.

Roseau's Bruce Helgeson scored on a rebound at 1:25 to start it. Tim Bergland had a wide open net on a rebound at 5:45 and Mitch Semanko tipped in a shot by Tom Kenville at the goal mouth at 7:28 for a 2-1 Thief River Falls lead. Roseau standout Chad Johnson, who missed that earlier game here with an injury, intercepted a Thief River Falls pass in front of netminder Kerry Wollin and had easy pickings at 13:20 for the tie.

"I felt the first period should not have ended 2-2," reflected Grand. "You've got to score when you get the opportunities."

There was no scoring in the second period, even though the Prowlers had a two-man power play opportunity for 41 seconds late in the period.

"With the five people we can put on the ice on a 5-on-3 opportunity, we should get some extremely good scoring opportunities," pointed out Grand. "We're not pleased with at (power play) at all."

Thief River Falls did come out and get the tie-breaking goal to start the third period, a quick shot by Jerry Hallamek from Nelson's right at 2:01.

A power play goal by Roseau's Paul Broten tied it again, 3-3, at 8:40. The Prowlers picked up just four penalties all night, but a Semanko trip and a Hallamek hook were back-to-back and Broten capitalized, putting a rebound by Wollin, who was pulled to his left on the play after making the initial save on Larry Goos.

Broten also got the game winner at 12:49 when Thief River Falls had trouble finding the handle on the puck in the Prowlers' zone. Broten picked up the loose puck in front and shot quickly for a 4-3 edge.

Johnson got his second goal at 13:06 to clinch it, scoring on a long slap shot as he crossed the Thief River Falls blue line.

Northland, Rochester Split Series . . .

Northmen Clinch State Hockey Tourney Spot

Northland community college hockey team accomplished two things Friday night. The Northmen not only clinched a 1983 Minnesota Community College Conference state tournament berth, they also proved they won't be making just a token appearance at the thing later this month by knocking off previously unbeaten MCCC leader Rochester 6-4 in the Thief River Falls sports arena to start a weekend series.

It was the same score by which Northland beat the University of Minnesota-Crookston, the league's second place team, Wednesday night on the road.

"That just shows there's that kind of talent on the team," said a smiling Tony Dorn, Jr., the first-year Northland coach who had watched his team spoil a 5-2 start this winter with a five-game mid-season losing streak.

"They could have laid down and died a week-and-a-half ago, but they didn't," he said. "They hung in there and worked hard. There's a whole new feeling on the team now. I'm very, very happy for them."

Rochester, at one time this season the No. 1-rated team in the nation according to NJCAA charts and currently holding down the No. 3 spot, faced an uphill battle the full 60 minutes. Northland had three two-goal leads and had a brief 5-2 cushion in the third period only to let the Yellowjackets off the hook each time, with the visitors cutting the gap to 5-4 midway through the final period before Ladd Bjugson's hat trick goal finally clinched it for the Northmen.

"We didn't play as well as we did at Crookston," admitted Dorn, "but we played good, sound hockey; up and down hockey."

It was the first MCCC loss in seven starts for Rochester. "It was bound to happen," sighed Rochester coach Mark Janes. "Nobody is going to go through this league unbeaten. We gave it a shot. We'll be back."

Northland led 1-0 after one period as Todd Gregoire scored on a power play slap shot from the top of the face-off circle to the left of Rochester goalie Steve Sandvik at 7:35.

Gregoire scored again on a straightaway 20-foot slap shot after taking a feed from Tom Raymond, who forced the puck from two Rochester players behind the Yellowjackets' net with his forechecking and shoved a pass into the slot area for a 2-0 edge at 5:01 of the second period.

The two teams traded goals the rest of the period, with Bjugson providing a 4-2 edge when he caromed a shot off Sandvik's pads from behind the net at 18:36.

He made it 5-2 by scoring on a rebound at 5:54 of the third period, only to have Rochester's Jon Fairbanks and Mel Kunde score two goals over the next four minutes to cut the margin down to 5-4.

Bjugson then converted a two-on-one rush with Raymond to complete his hat trick with the prettiest goal of the night at 12:50.

Meanwhile, Northland goalie Bill Bye was coming up with some impressive saves at the other end, finishing with 32 saves.

"Billy played just outstanding; just outstanding," praised Dorn, who also acknowledged the Northmen benefitted from a couple of breaks during the game. "Maybe they're finally going our way," he noted.

"We weren't playing up to our potential," offered Janes, "and we had a couple of bad bounces. But, I thought (NCC) had a nice hockey team. Their goalie played very well."

Rochester 7
Northland 6

It looked for all the world like Northland was going to record its third straight 6-4 win in Saturday's matinee game against Rochester, but instead wound up blowing a chance for a series sweep by losing a 7-6 overtime decision.

Northland had that two-goal edge with 7:18 remaining in the third period, and to complicate matters for Rochester, the Yellowjackets lost their starting goalie, Steve Sandvik, and were facing a five-minute shorthanded situation when Sandvik was given a game disqualification for kicking.

That forced Rochester to call on back-up goalie Paul Flynn, a freshman from Worthington with no high school hockey background. All he did was stop the Northmen the rest of the way as his teammates staged the dramatic turnaround.

They killed off that five-minute major and picked up a power play goal of their own at 18:01 to pull within 6-5. It still looked a little bleak, though, as Rochester went into the final minute skating off another penalty. The Yellowjackets remedied that by scoring shorthanded with just 20 seconds left as sophomore wing Darris Porter of Albert Lea beat Northland goalie Billy Bye with a close-in backhand.

Rochester then won it on the power play in overtime as John Dey powered a slap shot through Bye's pads from the face-off circle area to the left of the Northland net at 5:40 of a scheduled 10-minute sudden-death overtime.

"Mental lapses, that all it was," fumed Northland coach Tony Dorn, Jr. afterwards. "We just plain gave it to them. We gave them the game."

Rochester coach Mark Janes obviously had a different assessment: "That's one of the finer games I've been involved in four years. Both teams played hard. Our kids are drained. I've got to hand it to the goalie. He came in cold and won it for us. Paul did an outstanding job."

The Yellowjackets started with a 2-0 lead when Chuck Paulson scored twice in a eye-blinking four seconds. Northland defenseman Vic Evavold put a nice, hard shot into the lower left corner on a power play to pull the Northmen within 2-1 at the end of the first period.

It was 3-3 after two, with Northland's Todd Bergland tying it when he rifled in a low 15-foot wrist shot from the slot area at 16:05.

Jeff Toussaint scored on a tip at 3:01; Todd Graalum scored on a point-blank backhand while both sides skated a man short at 4:18; and Todd Gregoire stuffed a shot by Sandvik from behind the net at 6:18 as the Northmen assumed a 6-4 lead.

"We're very lucky to get out of here with a split," acknowledged Janes.

Northland, 8-8 for the year, will finish its 1982-83 regular season schedule with a Friday-Saturday series vs. Mesabi in Virginia.

Crookston Posts Second 57-47 Win Over Prowlers

Crookston is apparently ten points better than Thief River Falls. At least that's what the scores indicate this winter following the Pirates' 57-47 North Half Region 8AA high school basketball win over the visiting Prowlers Saturday.

Three weeks earlier Crookston won the first meeting of the year between the two long-time rivals by the identical score.

This time it was a case of poor Thief River Falls shooting. The Prowlers shot just 36 per cent from the field (18-for-50) and were only 9-for-19 at the free throw line. Among the misses were 17 within the normally high-percentage key area, along with seven free throws that helped create a 33-23 halftime deficit.

"That's the name of the game; you've got to put the ball in the hoop," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt. "We didn't come ready to play. We got caught flat-footed at the start."

Crookston junior Jeff Bigger led all scorers with 20 points, including 15 in the first half. "We failed to shut him down in the first half," admitted Hunt, "and he really hurt us."

Center Randy Naeseth had a strong 19-point game for the Prowlers, who fell to 5-7 for the year.

Crookston shot 49 per cent from the field (26-for-55) and went 5-for-11 at the free throw line. The Pirates beat the Prowlers 38-27 on the boards, with Thief River Falls topping the turnover charts 19-18.

Thief River Falls managed to cut that 10-point halftime deficit in half, 43-38, at the end of the third quarter, but couldn't make up any more ground in the final eight minutes.

The Prowlers, 1-5 against Class AA opponents, will face another North Half Region 8AA foe Friday when they visit Fergus Falls.

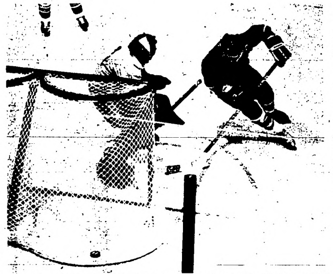
Basketball JV 45-43 Loser

A final shot at the buzzer failed to drop for Thief River Falls Saturday in a 45-43 junior varsity high school basketball loss at Crookston.

Scott Fowler scored 24 points for Thief River Falls, 1-11 for the year, including 11 straight losses.

Crookston led at the quarter stops 17-6, 26-14 and 36-31.



THE PUCK RESTED on the back of the netting as Northland community college forward Todd Bergland skated by Rochester goalie Steve Sandvik in the first period of Friday's community college hockey game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena. The Northmen beat the previously unbeaten Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) leaders 6-4.

Strong Second Half Lifts Nordics Past Eagles 72-39

Marshall County Central took a 34-28 halftime lead and turned it into a second half rout Friday as the Nordics blitzed Grygla 72-39 in a North Border Conference high school basketball game played at Grygla.

The Nordics out-scored the Eagles 22-2 in the third quarter and had a 38-11 scoring edge for the second half.

"We really put it together tonight," said Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland, whose team has struggled through a frustrating 6-7 season. "The second half was by far the best half of basketball we've played this year. The third quarter was just a super quarter of basketball for us."

Scott Anderson led the assault with 27 points, while Kevin Boe had 12 and Todd Stokke 11, along with 13 rebounds. Mike Brateng scored 19 points for the Eagles, 13 in the second quarter when he helped Grygla overcome an early deficit to pull within six at halftime.

Marshall County Central shot 55 per cent from the field (33-for-60) while Grygla shot only 30 per cent (18-for-61). In the third quarter alone, the Nordics were 11-for-21 and the Eagles were just 1-for-11. From the free throw line Marshall County Central was 6-for-13 and Grygla was 3-for-8. The Nordics had a big 49-24 rebound edge and topped the turnover charts 21-14.

The victory put the Nordics at 6-7 for the year. They were scheduled to host Strandquist tonight (Monday).

Grygla 54
Greenbush 41

Mike Brateng hit a career-high 27 points Saturday to lead Grygla past Greenbush 54-41.

The win left Grygla at 5-7 for the year, but coach Vern Johnson of the Eagles wasn't impressed. "I wasn't very happy," he said following the home court victory. "We were lucky to win. They out-played us all the way."

Greenbush had a 15-10 first quarter lead and went into halftime with a 26-25 edge. Grygla took over, 37-35 in the third quarter.

The Eagles shot 43 per cent from the field (24-for-55) and were 6-for-16 at the free throw line. Greenbush shot 48 per cent from the floor (16-for-33) and went 9-for-13 at the line. Greenbush topped the rebound charts 22-21 and also led in turnovers 21-6.

Grygla hosts Middle River Tuesday and will be at Lake of the Woods Saturday.

Warren 55
Goodridge 44

Goodridge threatened to stage a major Polar Conference upset Friday when the host Huskies played heavily favored Warren on even terms through three quarters, but the Ponies finished with a 21-12 fourth quarter scoring edge to win it 55-44.

It was a 34-32 ball game, Warren, through three quarters. The Ponies had a 26-24 halftime edge after Goodridge owned a 14-12 first quarter lead.

"We played 'em tough for three quarters," mentioned Goodridge coach Rick Nelson. "We did everything we had to do to win. Everybody played extremely well for us. It was a well-played game."

A steal and a breakaway lay-up at the end of the third quarter by the Ponies snapped a 32-32 tie and they started the fourth quarter in similar fashion to get a lead they never lost.

Ross Parnow of Goodridge was the game's high scorer with 16 points. Mark Turgeon had 15 for Warren. Tony Wiseth scored 8 points for the Huskies and was praised by Nelson for his strong ball handling against Warren's pressure defense.

Shooting figures were high on both sides. Goodridge was 18-for-31 from the field (58 per cent) and 8-for-10 at the free throw line (80 per cent). Warren was 21-for-57 from the field (57 per cent) and 13-for-19 at the free throw line (68 per cent). The Ponies were 13-for-16 from the field in the second half (81 per cent), rebounding two of those misses and putting them back up for points. There weren't many rebounds to be had, with Warren winning the battle of the boards, 17-12. Goodridge topped the turnover figures 11-9.

The loss dropped the Huskies to 7-6 for the year. They host Red Lake Falls Tuesday and will be at Alvarado Friday.

Northwomen Lose To Trojans 56-44

Post-season state tournament hopes for the Northland community college women's basketball team all but evaporated Thursday following a 56-44 loss at the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

The Trojans built a 26-16 halftime advantage and maintained that spread through the second half of the Minnesota Community College Conference game with a pressing defense that forced the Northwomen into 19 turnovers, 13 of them coming after intermission.

"We let it bother us," said Northland coach Deb Jacobson about the UMC press. "It's nothing we hadn't worked on. We just didn't handle it very well."

Baudette freshman Janice Gubbels scored 21 points to lead UMC. Thief River Falls freshman LeAnn Paetznick led Northland with a 16-point, 17-rebound game.

Northland, dropping to 2-5 in conference play, shot 30 per cent from the field (19-for-64) and 38 per cent at the free throw line (6-for-16). UMC shot 26 per cent from the field (23-for-87) and 71 per cent at the line (10-for-14). The Trojans had a 59-49 rebound advantage while turning the ball over 11 times.

Northland capitalized on 40 Itasca turnovers Friday to claim a 57-38 nonconference make-up game win Thief River Falls.

Three Northwomen were in double figures: Tara Nicholson with 17, LeAnn Paetznick 12 and Donna Stewart 12.

The Northwomen, who led 33-25 at halftime, shot 32 per cent from the field (26-for-81) and 50 per cent at the free throw line (5-for-10). The Vikings shot 33 per cent from the field (16-for-48) and 60 per cent at the line (6-for-10). The two teams finished in a 49-49 tie on the boards, with Nicholson grabbing 10 rebounds for the winners. While Itasca was losing the ball 40 times, Northland was charged with just 14 turnovers to win for the sixth time in 14 starts.

Otters Win Bemidji Swim Invitational

Fergus Falls edged Bemidji 155-153 Friday to win the five-team Bemidji invitational high school swimming meet.

International Falls was a distant third with 97 points, followed by Thief River Falls with 57 and Fosston 22.

Medical Assistance Policy Is Reviewed

Statement which outlines the Minnesota Medical association's (MMA) policy on medical assistance (MA) in Minnesota was adopted by the association's board of trustees which met January 15 in Minneapolis.

"The policy, reviewed by the MMA's resource group on aging, the subcommittee on payor relations and the medical practice and planning committee, is intended to assist the Minnesota legislature in developing legislative initiatives in the state's medical assistance program," said Dr. Severin H. Koop, Jr., St. Cloud.

"It is anticipated that one of the major issues this session will be reducing medical assistance expenditures. We are confident that the concepts outlined in the policy which we have proposed will direct legislative thinking toward systematic change in the program that will assure continued access to quality medical care for those with financial need," said the MMA president.

Dr. Koop said that a variety of factors ranging from an increase in the cost of medical services to shrinking revenues have combined to place medical assistance cost containment near the top of Minnesota's legislative agenda. Without significant modifications in the system to encourage cost effective behavior the unchecked cost spiral of the last decade will continue.

The MMA president noted that the medical assistance program in Minnesota is designed to assure these individuals with insufficient financial resources access to the health care delivery system. As costs of the program have continued to rise, policy makers have reacted with two short term solutions: cut recipient eligibility or provider reimbursement. Experience has shown that neither reduction in eligibility nor provider reimbursement affect the inherent flaw in the system that fails to provide incentives to anyone, provider or recipient, for cost effective behavior.

Commenting on the need for modification of the present medical program in Minnesota, Dr. Koop spoke about the Minnesota Medical association's proposal for achieving that goal.

"It is the position of the MMA that significant modification of the medical assistance program must be made by the legislature to make the system cost effective. Ultimate goal of both the public and private sectors involved in health care delivery should be to develop structurally competitive systems that provide for efficient, quality care."

Following principles and supporting rationale form the basis of the MMA's policy on medical assistance:

Medical assistance program is designed to assure persons with insufficient financial resources access to the health care delivery system.

Effective and appropriate cost-containment strategies of the private sector should be utilized in the public sector.

Physician has the professional, moral and legal responsibility to provide necessary medical care to patients. As such, the physician who chooses to participate in the medical assistance program should act as the gatekeeper to the remainder of the health care delivery system. Physician should control the access of the MA recipient to all the services covered by medical assistance with no exclusions. MA recipients should have the opportunity to select their gatekeeper and should remain with that provider for a specified period of time. This gatekeeper responsibility must be adequately compensated to insure provider participation and continued quality care and cost-effective results should be rewarded.

Payment methodology for hospitalization and nursing homes must be modified from a cost-based system.

Community-based services for maintaining the elderly outside of nursing homes should be utilized when, combined with all support services utilized, it is less expensive than institutionalized care.

MMA lists the following legislative and administrative iniatives it considers necessary to implement the modification outlined in its medical assistance proposal.

1. Legislative action directing the department of public welfare to seek a waiver for implementation of a case manager system or gatekeeper system.

2 Repeal of the provision in Minnesota Statutes, Section 256 B. 19, Subdivision 1 which alters state or county financial share for HMO enrollees.

3. Legislative action directing the department of public welfare to seek a waiver allowing the charging of co-payments to the MA recipient for improper utilization of services.

4. Publication by the department of public welfare of a specific list of reimbursable and non-reimbursable services performed by a physician.

5. Publication by the department of public welfare of surgical procedures that might be performed on an ambulatory basis.

6. Legislative action increasing the amount of funding for alternative care to nursing homes.

7. Legislative and administrative action modifying nursing homes and hospitals cost-based reimbursement.

8. Legislative action providing financial incentives for care designed to maintain an elderly person in the community.

9. Legislative study and action addressing the eligibility levels for recipients and the level of recipient benefits.

Scouts Observe Anniversary 73 All This Week

Nearly as well known as Santa Claus and as American as Sunday dinner at Grandma's, the Boy Scouts of America (BSA) will be 73 years young on February 8.

It seems as though Scouting always has been around and most people are aware of its outdoor activities and fun-filled events, but there is another side to the movement.

Scouting is a Cub Scout learning about wildlife conservation, a Boy Scout discovering the technical world of computers, or an Explorer preparing an experiment that will be aboard a future space shuttle flight. Some 13,000 young people are registered with the Northern Lights Council which serves this area, and they are experiencing the learning BSA programs offer, along with 4.4 million BSA members nationwide.

On a daily basis, churches and synagogues, schools, service clubs, industry, labor unions, and others turn to Scouting as a resource program to stimulate and train their youth. Because those organizations have different needs and because our world is changing, Scouting programs constantly are being studied and improved to fill those needs.

Because of changes in the American family structure, Northern Lights Council is introducing "Today's Family," designed to help children in single parent homes or households where both parents work, become more self reliant.

For the benefit of boys too young to become Cub Scouts, the Tiger Cubs, BSA, program has been introduced to involve seven-year-old boys and an adult family member in Scouting.

Through these and other programs, the Northern Lights council and its chartered organizations join more than 400 other councils across the country in spreading the Scouting spirit. "Catch the Scouting Spirit" is the theme of this year's Scouting anniversary week, February 6-12.

Council Takes Bid On Water Project

Thief River Falls city council voted 5-2 to accept the low bid of $475,300 for improvements to the city's water treatment plant at a special adjourned meeting held at 7:30 this morning in council chambers at city auditorium.

Meeting was called as a result of inability to break a tie 3-3 vote during last night's regular council meeting, which was marked by accusations and personal behavior characterized by several observers as "childlike."

Controversy over the low bid was a result of a recommendation by the consulting engineers on the project, Black and Veatch, who expressed concern regarding the qualifications of the low bidder, R. and E. Nelsen Plumbing and Heating Company, Eden Prairie. Steve Foellmi, project engineer for Black and Veatch, explained to the council that their investigation of the Nelsen company indicated that the company had performed satisfactorily on heating, ventilating, air conditioning and plumbing projects, but had not shown experience as a prime contractor on projects similar in scope and complexity to the water plant improvement.

Foellmi emphasized that since Thief River Falls only had one source of potable water, it was essential that the plant be kept in service during construction activities. He suggested that specific experience in water treatment plant work would be extremely important in the complex scheduling the project would require. Foellmi noted that his company's investigation of the second high bidder, Moorhead Construction Co., Moorhead, indicated that they had extensive experience in completing projects of similar scope and complexity to the water treatment plant improvement. Moorhead's bid was $1,423 higher than Nelsen's, at $476,723.

Ronald Nelsen defended his company, noting that although the company itself did not specifically have the experience during the 11 years investigated by Black and Veatch, its individual personnel were experienced in municipal water treatment projects. He commented that they hadn't "lost their memories when they came to Nelsen Plumbing and Heating." He also noted that the experience dated back 40 years under his father, who was still active in the company.

Assistant City Attorney Larry McDowell was asked for an opinion, and noted that

$183,086 Share Due TRF Under MSAS Program

Thief River Falls is one of 110 Minnesota communities sharing the 1983 municipal state-aid street (MSAS) fund of $46,306,272, according to Gordon Fay, director, office of state aid, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) city's allotment for 1983 is $183,086.

Yearly apportionment, which represents nine per cent of the funds available for distribution from the highway user tax distribution fund, is allotted according to a prescribed formula to municipalities having populations of 5,000 or more. Highway user tax distribution fund is composed of monies from the state motor fuel tax and motor vehicle registration fees.

Remaining funds in the highway user tax fund are distributed as follows: 62 per cent to the truck highway fund and 29 per cent to the county state-aid highway fund.

Municipal state-aid street fund makes available to the communities $39,660,963 for construction and $6,645,309 for maintenance of the 2,041-mile MSAS system.

This year's apportionment is more than six times the initial apportionment of $7.3 million made to 58 communities in 1958. Since then, more than $510 million have been shared by state municipalities with more than 5,000 population.

Heading the list of 1983 recipients is Minneapolis, eligible for $6,708,154; followed by St. Paul, $5,566,099; Duluth, $2,035,998; Bloomington, $1,253,259; St. Cloud, $997,220; Rochester, $856,031; Burnsville, $850,164; Minnetonka, $814,938; Edina, $805,059; Hibbing, $706,237; and St. Louis Park, $684,514.

By state legislative action, Ely, Luverne, Pipestone and St. Paul Park will share in the fund this year.

With a public meeting on proposed School District 564 budget cuts for 1983-84 scheduled Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln high school auditorium, the president of the Thief River Falls Education association (TRFEA) says she believes the board of education is responding too quickly in an effort to prepare the 1983-84 budget.

Jane Miller said that "discussion of closing schools and eliminating programs may be premature before it is known how much money will be available in this district.

"The 1983 session of the Minnesota legislature will not have determined school aids until late in the current session," she said. "In fact, if the district receives the $1,475 per pupil aid scheduled for education, most of the cuts proposed by the school board may even be unnecessary."

Thursday's meeting has been scheduled by the board of education to permit public input to the board regarding proposed cuts of $944,160 from the expense budget in the coming school year. The reductions were proposed to the board by Supt. Robert Block after he was directed by the board to develop a plan for reducing costs by about $900,000 in the 1983-84 year.

TRFEA president Miller points out that "while it is true the school board is elected to look after the budget and to be fiscally responsible, the members are also held responsible for providing the best education possible for the students in the Thief River Falls school district. In fact, the Minnesota state constitution states that the district has a responsibility to provide an education equal to that provided for students in other Minnesota school districts."

She goes on to say that she agrees with Supt. Block that any additional cuts will be detrimental to the educational program of the students. Miller said that the education association will be doing a thorough analysis of the school district's finances and will be conducting a media session to provide this information to the community "so that the facts are known."

"However," she said, "we, too, will not know the real financial situation until the Minnesota legislature goes home this spring, but the bottom line must be that the students in this district will be guaranteed a quality, competitive education."

Members of the board of education received the budget cut proposal last week and have had one meeting for a line by line review. Present projections indicate a general fund unappropriated balance at the end of the current school year June 30 will be $120,397. This amount would be reduced to approximately $75,000 as a result of the $17.70 per pupil reduction made by the state in foundation aid for this school year.

With a four per cent increase for faculty salary lane change, new hires and increment, the school administration is predicting a deficit on June 30, 1984, of $358,000 unless cuts are effected. This assumes full payment of $1,475 per pupil unit, 65 per cent state funding for special education, and transportation aid based on reinstatement of 1982-83 units. The board is also hoping to establish a $250,000 fund balance to avoid or substantially reduce the necessity for short-term borrowing and attendant interest payment.

Copies of the budget summary will be available in the superintendent's office at the school district service center for anyone who wants to review them there prior to the Thursday evening meeting. Because of the size of the 75-page summary, only a limited number of copies were prepared.

Local Legislators Comment

Reducing Size Of Legislature Again Proposed

Special To The Times
by Lisa Burt and Cathy Carsberg
Northern Star News Service

Running the state more efficiently may be accomplished by reducing the size of the legislature. Then again, that might increase the cost of running state government. The prospect depends on who you talk to.

Legislators have introduced bills to cut down their own numbers every year since 1975. This time around supporters got a little boost from Gov. Rudy Perpich.

Cutting down the size of the Minnesota legislature seems to have more vocal support this year than at any other time in recent history, however, it's still considered an underdog to become a law.

Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer is "open to listen" to arguments on whether to cut the legislature's size, but his concern is about increasing the size of rural districts.

If rural districts are expanded, it will "create hardship for representatives visiting people," he said. Stumpf said he recently traveled 400 miles to get to three events within his district.

He would prefer unicameralism (a single body legislature) over reductions in the two chambers because district size would not have to increase; there would just be the elimination of one of the chambers.

Legislature size reduction bills probably originate in an attempt to make government more efficient, Stumpf said. "I want to get government running more efficiently, but I don't like the idea of increasing the size of already large districts to get the job done," he said.

The idea of cutting the size of the legislature to save money is largely symbolic, notes Rep. Wallace Sprby of Thief River Falls. The legislature accounts for about one per cent of the state budget. "It's not a large cost item in relation to the total budget," Sparby said.

In fact, Sparby is convinced a smaller legislature would only translate to increased staff and higher staff expenses. "It would reduce rural representation. I know my constituents are concerned about that," he said.

Some legislators see the question as a Twin Cities versus greater Minnesota split. Minnesota has the 12th largest geographic area of all the states and some of the legislative districts cover large chunks of ground because of spread out population. Many rural legislators argue that it would be nearly impossible to adequately serve constituents if the districts are made any bigger.

A new non-metropolitan legislators go on to argue that their inner-city colleagues would gain some power by reducing the number of lawmakers bunched together in the Twin Cities.

One of the more substantial legislature-reducing bills introduced early this session reduces the Senate from 67 to 35 seats and the House from 134 to 105. The cutback would

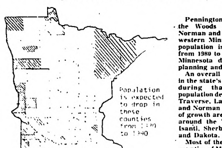
Population Decline Is Predicted



Population is expected to drop in these counties from 1980 to 1990

Pennington, Kittson and Lake of the Woods counties, along with Norman and Mahnomen, are northwestern Minnesota counties where population is expected to decline from 1980 to 1990, according to the Minnesota department of energy, planning and development.

An overall gain of seven per cent in the state's population is expected during that period. Largest population declines are predicted for Traverse, Lake, Pipestone, Murray and Norman counties. Fastest rates of growth are predicted for counties around the Twin Cities, including Isanti, Sherburne, Wright, Chisago and Dakota.

Most of the southern and western counties of Minnesota have tended to have a lot of outmigration and lost population in the past.

Senator Would Change Federal Election Rules

Senator Dave Durenberger has introduced legislation to make it easier for elderly and disabled Americans to vote in federal elections.

Durenberger's bill is designed to protect voting rights by removing physical barriers or overcoming other physical impairments which may exist in polling and voter registration places.

"Who knows how many elderly and disabled persons are sitting at home on election day because they can't climb a flight of stairs, because the building isn't accessible by wheelchair, or because they can't see who is on the ballot?", Durenberger asks.

Durenberger's bill establishes uniform requirements for federal elections, including:

+ Registration and polling places located in a building which can be made accessible by wheelchair;

+ Voting facilities on the ground floor unless accessible by elevator;

+ Large-print voting instructions for the visually impaired;

+ Paper ballots for persons who can't operate a voting machine; and

+ Absentee ballots available for persons confined to a home due to age, illness or disability.

The bill also would allow those persons who need assistance in the voting booth to bring in a person of their choice to help them vote.

A bill identical to Senator Durenberger's has been introduced in the House of Representatives by Congressman Hamilton Fish of New York.

Policy Plans Of NAWG Sent To Ag Secretary

Five high-priority policy recommendations of the national association of wheat growers (NAWG) have been sent to Agriculture Secretary John Block in a letter from Don Loeslie of Warren, newly elected president of the NAWG. Policy recommendations were agreed to by delegates from 16 major wheat producing states at the recently-completed NAWG convention.

"The NAWG continues to believe that a new, long-term grain agreement with the USSR containing higher minimum and maximum purchase levels is required to rebuild trade with the Soviet Union," stated Loeslie. He said that the President's sanction postponing grain agreement talks based on Soviet actions in Poland "has the effort of controlling exports" and obstructing efforts to increase farm income.

Secondly, the NAWG has asked USDA to explore minimum sales arrangements with foreign customers to counter competition from other exporting nations. Loeslie pointed out that U.S. competitors now have over 30 bilateral sales agreements with principal importing nations giving them guaranteed markets for a substantial portion of each season's crop. "Our competitors are confidently producing for assured markets, and, at the same time, taking advantage of U.S. efforts to curtail production and reduce stocks," he stated.

Third NAWG recommendation seeks the establishment of an "export PIK" program for wheat, which could be operated by "borrowing" wheat from the four million ton food security reserve. This procedure would require congressional approval, and the NAWG believes it would enable a new export initiative while maintaining the nation's humanitarian commitments.

In a related recommendation, the NAWG is urging funding for USDA's blended credit program at the full $500 million level approved by Congress. This would increase credit availability under the program to $1.25 billion.

NAWG's fifth recommendation calls for a "multi-year domestic farm program, which could include reduced acreage, paid diversion, and payment-in-kind components." Its purpose would be to adjust U.S. wheat supplies downward to the level required for domestic reserves, or 600-800 million bushels.

"A sustained effort is required to reduce U.S. wheat stocks," Loeslie said, and a multi-year program would carry the commitment needed to "achieve recovery."

Stumpf, Sparby Set Meetings For Saturday

Senator LeRoy Stumpf, District 1, and Representative Wally Sparby, District 1B, have scheduled three town meetings to visit with constituents on Saturday, February 12.

Stumpf and Sparby will be in Red Lake Falls at the Fairview Manor at 1 p.m.; in Plummer at the Home Plate Cafe at 3 p.m.; and in Brooks at the Cozy Bar and Restaurant at 4:30 p.m.

Sparby encouraged everyone to come visit with him and Stumpf. "We want to hear your concerns," he said. "The legislature has a lot of knotty problems to work on during this session, and we want to know what the citizens in our area think about them."

Women's Clubs To Identify Road Hazards

Minnesota Federation of Women's clubs has launched a statewide campaign to identify particularly dangerous highway locations and seek corrective action.

As part of the national general federation's eliminate highway hazards program, the 6,500 members of local clubs of the Minnesota Federation of Women's clubs will participate, according to Mrs. Margaret Orlich, Duluth, MFWC state safety chairman.

"The purpose of the eliminate highway hazards program is to identify dangerous sections of highways in our state and bring them to the attention of appropriate state and local transportation officials," Orlich says.

"Over the next two months, local MFWC clubs will compile two lists of documented high hazard locations," she explains. "One list will contain state highway locations and will be forwarded to state federation officers for presentation to state transportation officials. A second list of county and municipal high hazard locations will be presented to local traffic officials.

"Federal funds are available which can be used to improve safety at these types of locations," Orlich says. "Our task is to identify them and encourage that some corrective action be taken. We realize that it would be impossible to restructure all of these hazardous locations, but in many cases a problem can be cost-effectively corrected simply by improving delineation."

For more than 10 years, the general federation has actively campaigned for increased highway safety through the expanded use of raised reflective pavement markers.

"We also realize that reflective pavement markers might not be the answer to improving safety at every location," she added, "but we have long recognized this nighttime guidance system as an inexpensive way to reduce accidents and we feel improved delineation of this type should not be overlooked.

"A recent study performed by the Ohio department of transportation found that every dollar spent on reflective markers returned $6.50 in savings due to accident reduction."

Interested individuals and other civic organizations are being encouraged to join the GFWC campaign by contacting participating local women's clubs for instruction.

With 10 million members in 46 countries, the General Federation of Women's Clubs is the largest and oldest international service organization of volunteer women in the world. There are more than 500,000 members in 11,000 clubs in the United States.

EVANGELISTS Dan and Bonnie Utter, Rose City, will be featured at an 8 p.m. program on Friday at the Evangelical Free church in Thief River Falls. There will be no admission charge for the concert which is open to the public. An offering will be received for the Utters' Heartland Ministries. In addition to their musical ministry, the Utters are founders and publishers of a Christian newspaper, These Encouraging Times, in their home area of west central Minnesota.

Leadership Is Topic For Home Council Meet

"Sharpening Your Leadership Skills" was the theme of the home council leadership training seminar held in Thief River Falls on February 4, sponsored by the county extension services of Norman, Mahnomen, East and West Polk counties.

Deborah Matero, Pennington county extension agent, coordinated the day's events. "Masters of Slaves in a World of Change" was the keynote address given by Jim Lewis, extension specialist from the University of Minnesota, St. Paul campus. Lewis spoke on how change affects the self, the family and the community and how people today need to prepare to live in a world filled with change.

Barbara Oseth, West Polk county extension agent, spoke on "Influencing Your Local Group," emphasizing giving people a reason to participate, to give recognition to group members, and to clearly define and communicate goals of the group. This topic was expanded in the presentation made by Sharon Knutson, Norman county extension director, as she discussed how change occurs in a community.

A panel of local women shared ways in which they had experienced changed either personally or through community efforts. Donna Rae Jacobson, East Polk county extension agent, served as panel moderator. Panel participants were Betty Liden, Pat Krystosek and Kaye Marvin. Betty and Pat discussed the challenges and support networks they have discovered after returning to college as non-traditional students. Kaye explained "The Kids on the Block" project and how the efforts of local volunteers have helped increase handicap awareness among school age children. Following the panel discussion, puppeteers Kaye Marvin and Heidi Hoks presented a skit using two of the puppets.

The day was put into perspective by Barbara Klixbull, Northwest district program leader with the agricultural extension service.

Reducing Size Of Legislature Is Proposed

come into effect after the 1990 census and isn't likely to have an impact on many of the current members.

Proponents hope to see smaller legislative numbers add up to a smaller cost of running government. Opponents warn that fewer legislators will increase the need for more and higher paid staff and could usher in a full-time legislature that may be less responsive to constituents.

The most radical proposed change would eliminate the Senate, making Minnesota's Legislature unicameral. Nebraska is the only state with a unicameral legislature.

Council Takes Water Project Bids Tuesday

the final decision rested with the council. He indicated that the key words for council to consider in making its decision was whether the Nelsen firm was the "lowest responsible bidder." He stated that in making a determination of responsibility, based on their qualifications, council could consider a number of factors, including the opinion of the consulting engineers and appropriate technical experience.

Alderman Bill Penning noted that the utilities committee, of which he is chairman, had voted to take the low bid, over his objections. He explained that he felt it was a mistake to go against the advice of the consulting engineer, noting that they were paying Black and Veatch a lot of money to represent them. Penning claimed it was an illogical decision, made because of "personality problems" within the committee, and offered to resign from his position.

Aldermen Ken Murphy, Milan Borsheim and Ambrose Wysoski stated that they had made their decisions in favor of the low bidder based on the Nelsen firm's presentation, and hadn't been aware that Penning felt that way. All three made comments to the effect that the Nelsen company had not been shown to be irresponsible, and had shown a history of doing good work.

When the matter was brought to a vote before the council, Aldermen Murphy, Borsheim and Wysoski voted to accept the low bid, and Aldermen Penning, Don Goodrich and Mayor Carlson voted to reject the low bid. Aldermen James Womack and Clayton Restad were absent.

Efforts were made to contact Alderman Restad, who had been out of town on family matters, and after several attempts to arrange schedules, the morning meeting was set.

At the morning meeting, after reviewing all of the old arguments, a motion to accept the low bid was again made by Alderman Murphy and, on a roll call vote, only Aldermen Penning and Goodrich voted against it. Vote of Restad and change of Mayor Carlson's position made the final vote 5-2.

Project will now proceed to preparation of working drawings and beginning of construction. Both Nelsen and Foellmi indicated that they would have no problems working with each other toward completion of the project.

Other business conducted by the council during the Tuesday night meeting included:

— Rejection of a request to transfer $2,500 in revenue sharing funds into a special account for the wading pool project. Council's action was delayed pending further donations from the private sector for the project.

— Granting a request from the police department for free use of the sports arena to conduct a Law Enforcement Day exhibit on May 4.

— Heard that a public meeting would be held March 10 at Fort Snelling to consider nomination of the Thief River Falls Carnegie Library to the national register of historic sites. Consequences of such designation will be explained at the council meeting on February 22.

— Heard a report from city planner Jack Quinlivan regarding tax forfeit land in the city. Quinlivan noted that the city might be interested in lots 1-3, Block 1 of Tessum's addition. Located near the baseball fields, suggestion was made that it could be considered for additional parking. Matter was referred to the park and recreation board.

— Considered a recommendation that payback of errors on utility bills be limited to one year. Matter was placed on the agenda for February 22. Council approved crediting accounts of two customers who had overpaid.

— Approved a progression raise for Patrolman Jim Fulton.

— Approved regular and special bills of $3,179.80 from Grand Forks Fire Equipment; $28,826.30 from the Law Enforcement Center; and $4,000 from Holcomb Knudson and Company.

U of M To Request $42.7 Million For Faculty Wage Hike

If salary patterns and funding cuts in education continue, the nation's universities may be facing a severe brain drain in the next decade, President C. Peter Magrath of the University of Minnesota told the Minnesota House appropriations committee recently.

Universities have "never attracted and held good faculty because of salaries alone," Magrath said — people work at universities because they like the work and believe in it — but the growing difference between academic salaries and salaries in the private sector is driving some productive and promising faculty members into other employment.

Recent budget cuts have compounded the problem at the University of Minnesota by making work loads heavier and working conditions less attractive, he said. In his testimony in the opening round of budget discussions for 1983-85, Magrath summarized the impact on the university of budget cuts of the last 20 months.

"Assuming no further budgetary disasters, the university will finish the 1981-83 biennium with something like $54 million less than we thought we had at the start of this biennium," he said.

One measure of the cuts has been the reduction in staff numbers. Magrath said a comparison of the payroll in November 1982 with the payroll a year earlier shows a loss of 1,145 positions — 914 civil service positions, 410 of which were actual layoffs, and 231 academic positions, mostly quarterly appointments that were not renewed. More positions will be lost by the end of the biennium, he said.

Questions and comments from legislators reflected concern for the continued quality of the university and praise for the planning process that has enabled the university to survive retrenchment as well as it has.

University is proposing increased funding of $92 million from the legislature for 1983-85. Request is presented in three segments: $42.7 million for faculty salary increases, $28.8 million in money needed to stay even with inflation and projected increases in fuel and utility costs and $20.8 million for program improvements or expansions.

The $42.7 million for faculty salary increases would provide increases of eight per cent in 1983-84 and nine per cent in 1984-85. Faculty members suffered a 20 per cent loss in purchasing power in the 1970s, Magrath said, and the request for salary increase money is the university's first priority.

Faculty salary problem is a national one, he said, citing an article in the January 1983 issue of Harper's that listed changes in real income for about 30 categories of personnel in the 1970s. Changes ranged from an increase of 29 per cent to a decrease of 12.6 per cent — "and then down at the very bottom of the list, college professors with a minus 21 per cent," Magrath said. "College faculty are losing ground to other occupations."

Faculty members in engineering now earn about 60 per cent of what they could earn in the private sector, he said, and it is "small wonder that there are now something like 2,500 open teaching positions in American engineering schools."

Rep. Richard Cohen, St. Paul, asked if the increase the university was requesting would be large enough to address the problem. Magrath said a much larger request could be justified, but it would not be realistic in light of the state's financial problems. In response to a question from another legislator, Magrath said the starting salary of an assistant professor in the humanities is now about $16,000.

In recognition of the state's fiscal troubles, Magrath said, the money requested for program expansion or improvement — $20.8 million — is "the smallest increase requested in recent memory." Every item in the request is one that emerged from the university's planning process as very high priority, he said. "I can assure you that many more colleges and departments wanted to request increases, but we deliberately held the line in view of the fiscal problems of the state."

Even much of the money in this category would essentially be standstill money, he said. "Equipment replacement, facilities remodeling and library acquisitions, for example, are aimed more at repairing problems of the past than expanding something in the future."

Magrath said the university's requests are not demands but proposals. "We are saying to you and to the governor that these are things we can do that make sense in our planning and that make sense to Minnesota's current economic situation."

The university has always been vital to the health of the state, Magrath said, and "given the directions that we know economic development will have to take in this state, the university will be more important than ever before." For one thing, he said, "the University of Minnesota is one key reason we can even talk about a high technology future for this state."

Rep. James Rice, Minneapolis, chairman of the appropriations committee, said he hopes that, with all the talk of high technology, the humanities will not be forgotten.

Magrath said that in a time when people are out of work it is easier to talk about programs with a clear economic payoff, but support for the humanities and the arts must also be maintained or Minnesotans will "sell ourselves short as a state."

Questions Are Being Asked On Tax Returns

Taxpayers are having trouble determining what they can subtract on their Minnesota income tax return for federal taxes, according to state income tax director Chauncey Peterson. This is one of the most common questions asked of the telephone information center.

Most taxpayers should determine their allowable federal tax deduction by completing state form M-1B. If they were self-employed, or made additional federal tax payments in 1982, for a year prior to 1981, they must use Form M-1C.

In 1981 we went to the accrual method of deducting federal income taxes. Deduct your total federal income tax liability regardless of the payment date of the taxes. This change means you no longer have to report last year's tax refund on the state return, nor will you deduct a balance paid for 1981 federal taxes on your Minnesota return, Peterson added. You are reminded to read the instructions carefully when figuring this deduction. "If you follow the form, you won't go wrong," he said.

Peterson said another question that is being asked by many taxpayers concerns Minnesota's use of IRA subtractions claimed on the federal return for 1982. If covered under a qualified pension plan at work, the entire amount paid to an IRA should be added back on line 3 of your Minnesota return. If you were not covered by a qualified pension plan where you work, you must list, on line 3, the amount of your payment to an IRA that exceeds 15 per cent of your earnings.

If earnings were $10,000 or more, list the amount by which payment exceeds $1,500, or $1,750 if the payments were for you and your non-working spouse. It is important to read the instructions in order to determine how you should treat your IRA on the Minnesota return, adds Peterson. Minnesota has not adapted the current changes on IRA's made under the internal revenue code, is the reason for the difference in treatment.

USDA Summer Food Program Needs Sponsors

United States department of agriculture is looking for qualified agencies to sponsor the summer food program in Minnesota. Under this program, qualified sponsors get federal payment for meals served to children in needy areas.

Summer food program provides meals to children in needy areas during extended school vacation periods. It operates during the summer or during any school vacation of at least three weeks for schools with a continuous school year calendar.

Meals and snacks are served to children in such places as schools, playgrounds, and parks. Sponsors get training and technical assistance to start and operate the program.

Monroe Woods, Midwest regional administrator for the U.S. department of agriculture's food and nutrition service, said in order to qualify as a sponsor an organization must be a public or nonprofit private school food authority, public or nonprofit private residential summer camp, or a unit of local, municipal or county government.

According to Woods, some of the eligibility requirements are that the organization serve meals on a regular schedule to children or provide meals as part of an organized program for enrolled children; have facilities for children to eat meals at the sites where they are served; operate the program in areas where at least 50 per cent of the children would qualify for free or reduced-price meals under the national school lunch or school breakfast programs, or qualify as a camp; and accept financial and administrative responsibility at all sites where meals are served, demonstrate financial and administrative ability to operate the program, and have enough personnel to supervise, operate, manage, and monitor each site.

Summer food program of the U.S. department of agriculture is available to children regardless of race, color, or national origin.

If you would like to find out more about being a sponsor, contact the summer food service program, food and nutrition service, U.S. department of agriculture, 50 E. Washington st., Chicago, IL 60602, telephone (312) 353-3089.

Choose A Leader Who Will Listen

by Judith Raunig-Graham
"U" M News Service

As the 1984 presidential campaign heats up, Americans may feel at a loss to figure out who would be the best person for the job. One candidate talks about the unemployment problem, another talks about the need to cut spending. But will those candidates be able to lead?

Professor Robert Terry of the University of Minnesota Hubert H. Humphrey institute of public affairs believes voters can determine who the real leaders are by following the campaign. Terry, director of the institute's reflective leadership program, has come up with a few guidelines voters might want to consider before they step into the voting booth next time around.

"Major task of the president is to provide an interpretative framework to the people of the United States on where we're going and how to make sense out of our situation," Terry said. "I would say we don't have a power crisis in this country, but a mission crisis. We've lost discussion about the common good that transcends vested interests. We need to talk about what is just and equitable and transform the debate on liberal versus conservative."

Terry believes that a president who is a leader will articulate where the country ought to go, while a president who is merely a manager worries about developing programs. We need both, he said. Leaders must have a sense of mission and confidence that the mission can be accomplished.

"If you don't know where you're going, any plan will get you there," he said. In Terry's view, the current recession can provide an opportunity to take a hard look at some of the basics of democracy. That's something that society doesn't spend much time doing during periods of accelerated growth, he said.

"We need a president who is a progressive visionary with good administrative skills," he continued. "And the candidate must have concrete ideas on how to translate that vision into policy and practice."

Recent presidents have exhibited some visionary qualities, but have experienced trouble accomplishing their goals, he said.

How do voters decide whether a candidate is a visionary? Voters should look for someone who has a sense of the ironies of history and the confounding qualities of life and is able to offer a fresh viewpoint or insight, Terry said. Look at candidates, he suggests, who are intuitive, value-oriented, holistic thinkers.

Since the candidates who want the job may not be such visionary types themselves, Terry suggests that voters look at candidates who talk with such thinkers and surround themselves with people who can develop strong programs. It is important for a leader, he said, to choose a staff of people with complementary skills. That was a problem for President Carter, who was elected on an anti-bureaucratic campaign but didn't choose a staff able to develop methods geared toward stemming bureaucracy, Terry said.

Components of leadership are the same for the president as they are for any leader — corporate head or government official — Terry said, except that the content of what the president deals with is different.

Candidate who is a leader, he said, will have the courage to speak honestly about issues and will risk taking a stand. He or she will be able to say, "This is the way we're going to go."

Another element of leadership, Terry said, is the ability to raise the level of discussion to a higher moral plane, to reinterpret a situation or to change the character of the debate. Two men who were especially adept at doing that, he said, were Martin Luther King Jr. and Mahatma Gandhi. A leader is not afraid to go against the grain, he added.

Another area to look at in choosing a president, Terry said, is how the candidate stays in touch with a diversity of perspectives in the country. A leader won't be able to buy everything the people say, but should be able to capture the essence of what they are saying, he said.

So in practical terms, the voter should look at who the candidate is talking with and listening to during the campaign. See whether the candidate's "vision" is born from an involvement with people, Terry said.

Revenue Fund Sharing Would Assist States

State governments would receive general revenue sharing (GRS) funds for the first time in four years under revisions in the GRS program proposed by U.S. Senator Dave Durenberger.

Speaking to a meeting of the municipal finance officers association in Washington, Durenberger said the proposal answers the need "to build on the GRS program; to use general revenue sharing as a creative vehicle for federalism reforms that have been long sought and recommended by officials from all levels of government."

Durenberger said he would introduce the revised five-year GRS reauthorization in mid-February. The program's current authorization runs out on Sept. 30, 1983.

"I think we made a major error when we dropped the states (from the GRS program) in 1980," Durenberger said. "The Congress had a deficit and the states had a surplus, so we booted them out. Now we are in a scramble looking for new programs to get money back out to the states. As Senator Dole said recently, 'The best jobs program I know of is general revenue sharing.'"

Under Durenberger's plan, states initially would receive $6 billion per year. Like local government recipients, the states could use the funding at their own discretion to answer their own particular needs.

Local governments initially would receive $5.5 billion per year from the GRS program, $900 million above the current funding level. The bill also would make what Durenberger termed "practical adjustments" in the mathematical formula used to allocate the local funds, in order to achieve more equity. Durenberger said the changes "assure that cities of equal size and need will be treated equally" and "that more of the funds will go to local governments with greater need." However, he added, "No government will get less funds under this legislation than it would receive if the current program were simply reauthorized."

Parents Should Have Reading In The Home

"Generally, only about half of a child's progress in reading is the result of school learning," says Sharon Botelle, Faribult, of the Minnesota reading association (MRA). "This is the reason it is so important for parents to promote good reading habits at home."

Involving parents in the reading process is the main intent of the February "I Love to Read" month, sponsored by the MRA. Program is a cooperative, voluntary effort in Minnesota schools to work with parents and foster a love of reading in young people.

"A partnership between parents and teachers will increase the likelihood of a student's success in learning to read," says Peg O'Shaughnessy, Minneapolis, MRA president.

Many teachers will send students home with a calendar of reading month activities and other suggestions on how to make reading more enjoyable. Activities include visiting the public library, bedtime reading, finding ten new words, and reading something funny to the family.

Parents can promote reading by becoming positive role models, selecting the right books for a child's reading level, and planning reading activities at home. Parents should practice what they preach by reading frequently in front of their children. They should develop the habit of taking their children to the library and borrowing books on subjects that the children are interested in, such as hobbies, poetry, animals, and sports.

Parents can encourage reading by selecting books for their children. Good book for teenagers, for example, will have a quick, dramatic beginning; a natural, conversational writing style; the physical appearance of an adult book; easy-to-read print, and pictures that relate to the story.

Minnesota reading association has developed many activities and suggestions for parents and teachers interested in participating in "I Love to Read" month.

Senator Tells President Of Jobs Bill Need

Senator Rudy Boschwitz received what he called an "understanding" reaction to his suggestion to President Reagan that any jobs bill in this session be targeted to areas of structural unemployment.

Boschwitz met for 25 minutes with the President primarily to discuss jobs for Minnesota's depressed Iron Range.

"The President didn't say 'that's what we're going to do'" Boschwitz said. "That's simply not the nature of those meetings. But he was sympathetic with my suggestions."

Boschwitz, author of the Senate enterprise zones legislation, said he has been concerned that any new jobs bill would not look at those areas that will not readily bounce back with the economy.

"Places like the Iron Range, where jobs have historically been so connected to a basic industry, will not see an abundance of jobs bounce back in the foreseeable future," Boschwitz said. "Besides," Boschwitz added, "people simple aren't as mobile as they used to be. If a man or woman bought a house at six or seven per cent 10 years ago, he can't simply pick up and move to Houston where there may be some jobs.

"If we do have a jobs bill those areas of structural unemployment should be targetted. We need to help those areas that need it the most, and not just sprinkle efforts all around the country."

Consumer Price Index Drops In Midwest

Consumer prices in the North Central Region fell 0.4 per cent from October to December after slipping 0.1 per cent from August to October, according to the U.S. labor department's bureau of labor statistics. William E. Rice, regional commissioner for the bureau in Chicago, said lower homeownership costs were responsible for most of the latest decline. Also contributing were lower costs for grocery foods, apparel and transportation.

The largest reductions occurred in the region's smallest and its largest urban areas. Consumer prices fell 1.4 per cent in areas with populations under 75,000 (Class D) and were down 0.7 per cent in major metropolitan areas with over 1.25 million inhabitants (Class A). In contrast, small increases were reported in the regions medium size cities (Class B and C). Although homeonwership costs declined in all four city size groups, the declines were greatest in Class A and D size cities.

The rate of inflation, as measured by the U.S. city average consumer price index for all urban consumers, slowed to 3.9 per cent for the 12 months ended December 1982, down sharply from the 8.9 per cent rate recorded at the end of 1981. This slowdown was not as evident in the North Central region as it was in the other three regions of the country. Here, prices rose 6.3 per cent in 1982 compared to the 7.1 per cent gain in the 12 months ending December of 1981.

In the West, prices rose only 1.3 per cent in 1982 after posting a 9.8 per cent gain in 1981. Price increases in the South slowed to 3.7 per cent after recording a 10 per cent jump a year earlier. The Northeast consumer price index rose four per cent in the year ended December 1982, less than half of the nine per cent gain recorded in 1981. Large increases in homeownership costs and the cost of household fuels prevented the slowdown in the North Central region from being as sharp as in other regions over the last 12 months.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

Are judges fair? If so, how come I can't be with my daughter (Summer Day Paulson), when I wasn't the one who walked out on my marriage.

As my divorce became final in July, 1982, I became bewildered, frustrated and angered by what the judges consider to be equal treatment in divorce proceedings. No true reason was given for the breakdown of my marriage, but no true reasons are necessary under present law. Nor were the true facts ever brought out.

But the true facts are that I lost my daughter (Summer Day Paulson), my ex-wife was awarded ⅞ of my home, 100 per cent of property for which I helped pay, along with about 98 per cent of everything we purchased. I was awarded her lawyer fee ($600) which I had nothing to do with. I was forced to pay 25 per cent of my earnings per month in support payments while I only get seven per cent of time per month to visit my daughter.

As quoted from the judge, "the only winner is Summer Day Paulson". Being only 4½ years old, how can she be the winner when her home is completely broken; being put through something she had nothing to do with; to listen to the judge and to go along with what he says?

How can just one person decide what the life of another person will be? What about the person (me, the father) who didn't walk out? Don't we count? Are we there only for the money and to put the blame on? If so, the judges are doing a good job.

Along with the judges, I feel that too many women are out to destroy the father also. They don't seem to be happy until they completely ruin the father.

How should a person react to statements like: "Thanks for the last two months' child support; I used the money for my car payment" or "What makes you think that Summer Day is your daughter?" or "I'm going on a two week ski trip and my parents will be taking care of Summer Day"? I asked if I could keep Summer while she was gone but she (ex) said no.

When it's time for my daughter to return to her mom from visiting me she always sheds tears and asks, "Dad, why can't I stay with you? Please Dad."

When I received a phone call a few days ago from my parents, they asked why they received a letter from the welfare office. It stated that their former daughter-in-law had signed up for welfare and asked if they wanted to help pay support for her and Summer. They were quite upset about it. They said that if she's on welfare and is incapable of providing for herself, then how can she provide for Summer?

The "Ex" is receiving $393 per month from welfare plus other benefits. She drives a fairly new car and attends college part time. I have to work to pay child support but she doesn't. How does that work? Again I get frustrated for this is the life of many divorced women.

Custody to me means not saying "goodnight" to my daughter, not being able to help her when she attends school with her homework, having to watch someone else raise her and not being able to do anything about it, and watching her cry as she walks away with another person. But in my case it's not over until my daughter comes home, which she and I both want. Anyone can be a father, but it takes someone special to be a Dad.

What I want to emphasize is how women and judges can hurt fathers. I wonder if they know what they are doing. Maybe it is time someone tells them!

Aging Council Meets Monday

Pennington county council on aging will meet at 1:30 p.m. on Monday, February 14 in the city auditorium basement. All senior citizens are urged to attend. Coffee will be served.

How can you save $2,000 a year and deduct it from your taxes?
Your AAL representative has the answer.
All wage earners can now save up to $2,000 a year in an Individual Retirement Annuity (IRA) and deduct this amount from their income taxes.
That's right — you can save for the future and get a tax break right now. The growth of your plan is guaranteed and you pay no taxes on it until you retire. By then, you'll probably be in a lower tax bracket.

Recent Tax Laws Have Affect On Small Business

If you own a small business, your tax planning will probably be affected by improvements in pension plan options, recent increases in tax write-offs for purchases of capital property, and new corporate estimated tax requirements. According to the Minnesota society of CPAs, changes in rules for pensions and property write-offs may reduce what tax you owe for 1982, and new estimated tax requirements will affect what you will pay in taxes throughout 1983.

Changes in pension plan regulations may effect your 1982 taxes. Beginning in 1982 you can have an individual retirement account (IRA) even if you already have a Keogh account for your partnership or business. You can contribute up to $2,000 into an IRA anytime before you file your tax return, and then deduct the cost from your 1982 income.

You also have a couple of options for writing off the cost of most capital property. You can either depreciate the property according to a specific schedule, or "expense" up to $5,000 worth of business property all at once for 1982.

To make it more easily understood, let's say that during the year you bought a $5,000 computer for your business. In the past, you might have depreciated such an asset according to its useful life.

Under the accelerated cost recovery system (ACRS) begun in 1981, larger depreciation write-offs are allowed over a shorter period. Business property is divided into four groups written off in periods of three, five, 10 and 15 years.

Business computer in our example falls into the five year write-off period. Other five year property includes heavy trucks and most office furniture and equipment.

According to the write-off schedule for five-year assets, you deduct 15 per cent of the asset's cost in year one, 22 per cent in year two, and 21 per cent in each of the last three years. Thus, for the $5,000 computer, the deduction for 1982 is $750. You then deduct $1,100 in 1983, and $1,050 each year from 1984 to 1986.

Another savings you are allowed for capital property purchases is the investment tax credit (ITC). During the year of purchase you can subtract a portion of an asset's cost from your tax bill. For property written off in three years, the tax credit is six per cent of the asset's cost. For all property written off in more than three years, the ITC is 10 per cent.

Going back to our example of a $5,000 computer, which is written off in five years, the ITC is $500 (10 per cent of the $5,000 cost). The $500 is taken right off your 1982 tax bill. You can still depreciate the entire $5,000 computer cost over the five-year schedule.

Another improved tax option is also now available, CPAs point out. You can now "expense" the first $5,000 of your capital costs of assets for the year you made the purchase. In other words, you can write off the full cost of the first $5,000 worth of business equipment acquired during 1982.

Catch is, you cannot take the investment tax credit if you "expense" the cost. It is up to you to either claim the $500 ITC and depreciate the $5,000 over five years, or immediately "expense" the $5,000 and forfeit the $500 ITC.

If your small business is a corporation, you will probably have to increase your estimated tax payments this year, CPAs note. Under the new rules, these payments must equal 90 per cent of your final tax liability, or you will be subject to a penalty. The amount jumps from 80 per cent last year.

According to CPAs, there are other tax savings you may claim on your 1982 return. Tax credit for rehabilitating old buildings has increased from 10 per cent of your costs to 15 per cent, on buildings which are 30 to 39 years old. Higher credits may pertain to older buildings or certified historic structures.

In addition, if your small business is a corporation, you can now deduct 10 per cent your taxable income for any charitable contributions. That is double the 1981 rate.

Although it won't affect your 1982 taxes, the ACRS rate increases scheduled for 1985 and 1986 have been canceled. Also, in 1983 and beyond, the basis of your depreciable assets will be reduced by one-half the amount of the ITC. So, if you purchase the $5,000 computer in 1983, the cost basis for depreciation will be $4,750 ($5,000 cost minus half the $500 ITC or $250).

CELESTIAL BARS

1 pkg. active dry yeast
¼ cup warm water (110 degrees)
2½ cups sifted flour
2 tblsp. sugar
¼ tsp. salt
1½ cups oats
1 cup butter (chilled and cut in pieces)
2 egg yolks
½ tsp. vanilla
1 cup commercial sour cream

FILLING:
3 egg whites
1 cup sugar
½ tsp. vanilla
1½ cups chopped walnuts

GLAZE:
1½ cups powdered sugar
2½ tblsp. cream
½ tsp. vanilla

Soften yeast in warm water. Sift together flour, sugar and salt. Stir in oats. Cut in butter with pastry blender until mixture resembles coarse corn meal. Set aside.

Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored. Add softened yeast, vanilla and sour cream and mix well. Add to the flour mixture. Blend well. Cover and chill thoroughly (overnight if possible). When chilled, prepare filling.

Beat egg whites until foamy. Gradually beat in sugar and beat until stiff. Stir in vanilla and nuts. To complete bars, divide dough in half. Roll each half of the dough into a 9x15 inch rectangle that is 1/8 inch thick. Spread half of each rectangle with the filling mixture. Fold the unfilled half of the rectangle over the part with the filling and transfer to a lightly greased baking sheet. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes or until golden brown. Combine glaze ingredients and drizzle over top of rolls. When cooled, cut into squares, bars or triangles.

Ag Women To 'Speak Out' At Convention

"Speaking Out For Agriculture" is the theme chosen by Minnesota Women for Agriculture (MWA) for this year's annual convention February 25 in Waseca.

Hosted by MWA's District 9, the convention will focus on seeking an unified voice on issues concerning farming and the critical issues facing today's food producers.

Myrna Evenson, president, will announce the implementation of MWA's "Ag Unity" project. "Ag Unity" is based on similar programs in two or three other states — individuals representing the farm industry gather together and support issues and legislation in a unified voice for agriculture. The Minnesota project is the brainchild of Treasure Omdahl, MWA member from Warren, who will coordinate the project with assistance from the Minnesota department of agriculture.

"It's very difficult for people in the farming industry to unite and agree on the issues," says Omdahl, "but the idea is working in other states. Despite the diversity of agriculture in our state, we believe the 'Ag Unity' project has great potential in Minnesota."

According to Kathy Croswell, District 9 director from Lake Crystal, the Minnesota Women for Agriculture convention will be held at the University of Minnesota technical school in Waseca in conjunction with "Rural Development Emphasis Week", which highlights women in agriculture.

Registration for MWA's annual meeting will be at 5:30 p.m. February 25 and the banquet will follow at 7:30. Anyone interested in MAW is invited to attend. Tickets are $7 and reservations must be made by February 18. To register, call or write Marjorie Baerg, Route 1, Box 74, Butterfield, MN 56120 or call 507-956-2315.

Carol Leavens, American Agri-Women member from Ventura, CA, will be the guest speaker at the banquet. Leavens has been involved in agriculture for 30 years and now manages an 800-acre ranch of citrus and avacado orchards in addition to serving on councils relating to California agriculture.

Minnesota Women for Agriculture is a non-profit organization which promotes agriculture in Minnesota. An affiliate of American Agri-Women, its members are composed primarily of farmers and farm wives; people in agribusiness and government are also members. Membership information is available from Myrna Evenson, MWA President, Route 1, Box 95, Climax, Minnesota 56523.

HUD Grant To Minnesota Is $22.3 Million

Congressman Stangeland announces that a grant in the amount of $22,291,000 has been awarded to the state of Minnesota to make grants to nonentitled units of general local government to undertake community development activities. This grant was authorized by Title I of the housing and community development act of 1974, as amended.

Primary objective of the community development block grant program is the development of viable communities by providing decent housing and a suitable living environment, and expanding economic opportunities, principally for persons of low and moderate income.

"The state block grant program is one of a series of major administration efforts to return authority and responsibility to the states to better meet the needs of localities," Stangeland said.

Ag Women To Meet Feb. 18 In Crookston

Ed Ross, Fisher, will be the speaker at the District 1 Minnesota women for agriculture (MWA) meeting February 18 at Northland lodge, Crookston. In addition to being president of the Minnesota wheat council, Ross has a radio show. He will speak on "Ag in Perspective."

Business meeting will begin at 10:30 a.m. and the lunch will be served at 11:30 followed by the speaker. To guarantee a meal, contact Marion DeBoer, District 1 Director, route 1, Climax, 281-4369 by noon on February 17. Cost will be $4.50. Members and non-members are encouraged to attend.

Minnesota Women for Agriculture, Inc., is made up of 11 districts in the state. District 1 includes the counties of Kittson, Roseau, Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake, Polk and Norman. Recent project of MWA has been supplying all fourth and fifth grade classes in Minnesota an "Agri-School" packet. At present, they are working on extending the material to other grades.

District 1 will also have a booth located in the armory February 18-22 during the Red River Valley winter shows. MWA's annual meeting will be in Waseca, February 25.

Farm Receipts Chewed Up By Rising Costs

In 1981, the average Minnesota farmer saw over 90 per cent of his cash receipts chewed up by soaring farm production costs. An extremely tight financial year prevailed in 1982, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. The extent of farm outlays for production items in 1982 is now being measured by the service as part of the U.S. department of agriculture's farm production expenditures survey.

Carroll Rock, director of the service, says that low farm prices are common knowledge to the public. "However," he said, "not everybody understands how severe the cost-price squeeze for Minnesota farmers has become. Production expenses continue to take an increasingly larger share of cash farm receipts."

The service's field representatives will be contacting a cross-section of Minnesota farmers during February. Farmer cooperation is voluntary and all individual information is confidential, but the combined results will bring the farmer's economic situation into better perspective, Rock said.

Current farm prices are broadcast daily, weekly and monthly by many sources. According to Rock, however, the farmer's costs are measured by USDA once a year so their accuracy is crucial. "It all hinges on the cooperation and accuracy of the farmers we contact," he said.

Extension Of GI Benefits Is Announced

Unemployed or "underemployed" Minnesota veterans may be eligible for an extension of their GI bill benefits, the Veterans administration has announced.

Bob Nooner Jr., director of the St. Paul VA regional office and insurance center at Fort Snelling, said legislation provides for an extension of the 10-year education eligibility period for certain Vietnam-era veterans who may wish to pursue further vocational training.

He said Public Law 97-306 passed by Congress last year calls for an increase of certain education benefit time limits to Dec. 31, 1984.

The basic eligibility requirement is that a veteran be unemployed or underemployed for six months or more and that "some type of vocational training is required to obtain a reasonably stable employment situation consistent with his or her aptitudes and abilities," he said.

Nooner said the extension for occupational, apprenticeship and on-the-job training may not normally exceed the applicants' unused entitlement. The extension period for benefits is retroactive to Jan. 1, 1982 and ends on Dec. 31, 1984.

The VA official urged all interested Vietnam-era veterans to contact the VA regional office at Fort Snelling as soon as possible for more information concerning the new liberalized education extension regulations.

Veterans in the 15 northwest Minnesota counties served by the Fargo VA office call toll free 1-800-437-4668.

Cenex Official Comments On Farm Recovery

United American farmers and their cooperatives must provide agricultural leadership, if the world's farm economy is to recover, Farmers Union Central Exchange, Inc., board chairman Joseph Larson told delegates to the cooperative's annual meeting.

"Agriculture throughout the world suffers from problems as severe as those in the United States," Larson said. "And world agriculture is looking to us for leadership in solving those problems."

Larson was addressing more than 2,000 member-owners who met in Minneapolis for the regional cooperative's 1983 annual meeting. Convention delegates represented the member-owners of more than 1,600 Cenex-affiliated local cooperatives in 14 states.

Larson said high interest rates, low prices for farm commodities and rising production costs are taking a heavy toll on farmers worldwide.

"We have to face those problems and do something about them," he said, adding that loyalty and cooperation among farmers and their cooperatives have been a key factor in recovering from past down cycles in the agricultural economy.

On the farm credit issue, Larson said, "In short, the O.M.B. wants to gut the farm credit corporation, one of the most vital sources of farm capital. Clearly, protecting farm credit programs must be considered a legislative priority for 1983."

Larson also expressed the board's strong support for programs designed to protect prime farmland from erosion, contamination and overzealous residential, commercial or industrial development.

Larson pointed out that one-fourth of the U.S. cropland has water erosion rates in excess of five tons per acre; the Great Plains alone loses more than five tons of soil per acre per year to wind erosion; and more than one million acres are lost each year to non-agricultural use.

"The grand total of these losses is about three million acres every year," he added. "So, we must work hard to conserve our land and preserve the environment.

"Crop soil and farm management programs can play a vital role in the preservation of farmland and Cenex is developing such programs," Larson said.

"We have more than 14 Central co-ops serving 3,000 farmers and 364,000 acres," Larson said. "With this important service, we are not going for huge crops one year at the expense of long term productivity. Instead, we are saving for the future, while harvesting for the present."

The board has also voiced active support for the family farm system, Larson said.

"We realize that we didn't simply inherit the land from our forefather. We are borrowing it from our children and grand children," Larson said. "So we are committed to preserving it for them."

Larson also commented on commitment to agricultural research and education, pointing out that more than 100 agriculturally-oriented scholarships are provided by the co-op each year.

In his closing remarks, Larson explained that all these activites and board actions were the result of resolutions approved by member-owners.

"The board believes it is essential that we are successful in promoting economic programs," Larson said. "After all, agriculture provides 40 per cent of the United States' gross national product and contributes one-third of our employment opportunities. The economy of the nation and the economy of the world can't improve unless the farm economy improves."

Cutting The Mega-Deficits Down To Size

by Walter W. Heller
U of M Economist

As we look at the cascade of mega-deficits pouring out of Washington, several things stand out:

— For the next three years (1983-85) Reagan's budget has built-in deficits of about $200 billion a year, even if all of his recommendations are accepted.

— If Congress rejects his standby tax, the next five years would boost the federal debt by $1 trillion.

— Those collosal deficits continue even in the face of an economic expansion that brings us to Reagan's full employment target of roughly six per cent five years from now. Even then, the Reagan budget will have a $170 billion deficit in 1988 if his standby tax fails.

Such huge federal deficits in those out-years would crowd out private investment, trigger high interest rates and invite a new round of inflation. What would a sensible anti-deficit program do?

First, sort out that part of the deficit that will disappear as economic recovery boosts revenues and cuts costs of unemployment compensation, food stamps and the like. This so-called cyclical deficit disappears at six per cent unemployment.

Second, face up to the scary fact that the rest of the deficit — the structural part that persists even at six per cent unemployment — will grow steadily as the economy expands.

Third, phase in a balanced program of spending cuts and tax boosts to shrink that deficit by about $100 billion three years from now:

— Start with the Reagan-endorsed Social Security Commission program. That will shave $15 billion from the 1986 deficit.

— Cut another $15 billion out of other (non-means tested) pension and benefit programs.

— Slim down the fat defense budget by about 10 per cent, or $30 billion.

— Kill income-tax indexing or put it on ice. That saves $20 billion in 1986 and much more later.

— Raise another $30 billion by trimming tax shelters and over-generous income tax deductions.

This program would bring the deficit under control, reassure financial markets and energize investments. It will step on a few toes. But for the country, it's a no-lose program.

Tax Counseling Workshop At UMC This Week

Workshop for volunteer income tax assistance-tax counseling for the elderly (VITA-TCE) volunteers will be held in early February, according to Harl Gamber, VITA-TCE coordinator for this area. Training will be put on by tax specialists from the Internal Revenue service and the Minnesota department of revenue.

Workshop is designed for all new volunteers to the VITA-TCE program. Topics to be discussed include personal and dependent exemptions, deductions, dividends and interest and special credits, Gamber said. At the completion of the workshop, volunteers will be able to help individuals fill out the state tax forms such as the M-1A, M-1, and M-1PR and federal tax forms such as 1040EZ, 1040A and 1040.

Answers from the Bible by Pastor Don Peres

Q. Pastor Don, I have been interested in the study of pre-historic animals, such as dinosaurs, and other extinct reptiles for years. I have also looked into the Bible and find no record of such animals at all except one that is called a Leviathan. Would you please explain what a Leviathan is in your newspaper column.

A. There seems to have been a widespread reference in the mythology of the Mediterranean people to a great sea monster capable of devouring on a large scale. A many-headed creature, it also had serpentine features, somewhat parallel to the many-headed Leviathan mentioned in Ps. 74:14.

Ps. 74:14 says, "Thou brakest the heads of the leviathan in pieces, and gavest him to be meat to the people inhabiting the wilderness."

The Living Bible refers to this creature as being a many headed sea god.

Isaiah 27:1 L.B. says, "In that day the Lord will take his terrible, swift sword and punish leviathan, the swiftly moving serpent, the coiling, writhing serpent, the dragon of the sea."

Ugaritic literature, dating 1700-1400 B.C. has information about pictures being drawn on temples and buildings during the Canaanite time, which is the Old Testament Period.

Many animals are not specifically named in the Bible dinosaurs among them. Lack of mention means little, other than that they did not come into the history of man in a way significant or necessary to record.

It is apparent that dinosaurs did exist from fossil records of the great dinosaur beds, presumably preserved by a catastrophe, such as the flood of Noah.

We can conjecture that either dinosaurs did not make it into the ark because, plausibly, God intended them to become extinct at that time, or that because of climatic conditions after the flood, they failed to reproduce in sufficient numbers and died out. We simply do not have enough data to go on beyond conjecture at this point.

If you have any questions you would like to have answered from the Bible, please write Pastor Don Peres, Box 129, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

Old Mill Park Is Open For Winter Outing

Old Mill state park west of Newfolden is open for winter recreational activities and both ski and snowmobile trails are groomed and in excellent condition, according to park manager Leonard Anderson.

There is about eight inches of snow in the park, he said, and the groomed ski trails have a three-to four-inch base. There are about three miles of separate trails for each sport and hills for sliding are also popular.

Picnic shelter is enclosed for the winter and has a barrel stove and a fireplace for heat with some wood provided. Trail maps are available at the entrance and a state parks vehicle sticker is required for park use. The stickers are on sale at the park office and the park is open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. every day.

"There have been rumors that the state budget cuts have resulted in park closing," Anderson said. "Cutbacks have not reached that stage at this time and the Old Mill park is available for anyone looking for an enjoyable winter outing."

Ceiling Panels: A Radiant Idea

Imagine being toasty warm all winter long and saving 30 to 60 percent on fuel bills. Impossible? Not with radiant heating panels.

Radiant heating is nothing new, the sun has been doing it for millions of years. What is new, are man-made methods of generating radiant heat safely, quickly and efficiently. One good example is UL-listed radiant heating panels which mount on or in the ceiling. These panels convert electricity into infrared (thermal) radiant energy to directly warm people and objects indoors.

Unlike conventional central heating systems, which must raise the temperature of the surrounding air to create a comfortable climate, radiant heating panels—and their zoned heating capabilities—produce equivalent comfort with the thermostat set 6 to 8 degrees lower in occupied areas. Thermostats can be set an additional 8-10 degrees lower in unoccupied areas. Result: dramatic energy cost reductions. A good example of just how cost efficient radiant heating panels are has been proven by one Long Island, N.Y. family. They heated their entire house with 19 Energy-Kote® radiant heating panels and realized 60% savings over their previous oil/forced air central heating system.

Heating panels are safe (no danger of overheating), efficient (each panel heats evenly), easy to install and can be used in conjunction with existing heating systems, or as the prime heating source, without costly plumbing or duct-work alterations.

In addition to being cost efficient, radiant heating panels are silent, don't circulate dust (great for people with allergies) and don't dry out the air or affect humidity levels.

"We think that radiant heating panels are the wave of the future," says Charles McConnell, president of TVI Energy Corporation of Beltsville, Md., manufacturer of Energy-Kote® radiant heating panels. "Considering the high price of heating fuel, the high start-up costs of solar as well as the hazards of kerosene and quartz heaters and wood burning stoves, radiant heating panels are a viable, safe and cost efficient heating alternative."

It looks like the top four seeds in the 1983 Section 8 high school hockey tournament will go to Fergus Falls, Lake of the Woods, Thief River Falls and Bemidji.

Final positions will be known following games Tues., Feb. 15, but it's likely the Otters, Bears, Prowlers and Lumberjacks will be seeded 1-2-3-4 and get the automatic berths into the tournament quarterfinals while the other 14 teams try to join them through sub-section eliminations.

Sub-section games will be played at the various sites of higher ranked teams Feb. 19-21-22. Section 8 quarterfinal doubleheaders will be played at East Grand Forks Fri., Feb. 25, and Sat., Feb. 26. Single semifinal games will be played Mon., Feb. 28, and Tues., March 1. Section 8 championship game is scheduled Fri., March 4.

If those top four teams finish where they're projected, No. 1-seeded Fergus Falls would open the tournament Friday at 6:30 p.m. vs. the No. 8 seed, with No. 4-seeded Bemidji in the same bracket, playing the No. 5 seed in the 9 o'clock game that night. On Saturday it would be No. 2-seeded Lake of the Woods vs. the No. 7 seed at 6:30 p.m., followed by No. 3-seeded Thief River Falls vs. the No. 6 seed at 9.

The winners in the games involving Fergus Falls and Bemidji would meet in Monday's semifinals, with the winners in the game involving Lake of the Woods and Thief River Falls meeting in Tuesday's semifinal.

EGF Emerges As Top Basketball Team

East Grand Forks established itself as the No. 1 team in North Half Region 8AA basketball over the weekend with an impressive sweep over Fergus Falls 72-59 and Detroit Lakes 61-52, a pair of top contenders.

The wins raised the Green Wave record to 9-4, including five straight wins and victories in eight of their last nine starts.

Meanwhile, Moorhead, appeared headed for a high North Half Region 8AA tournament seed despite a mediocre overall season record, had its visions of a top seed smashed by Bemidji 55-51 Saturday. It was the first Bemidji win in the series since the 1977-78 season — the heyday of Jim Jensen and Co. Since then, the Lumberjacks have absorbed several one-sided thrashings at the hands of the Spuds, reports the Bemidji Pioneer.

Bemidji built a stunning 32-17 lead early in the third quarter before Moorhead out-scored the host Lumberjacks 14-2 over the next seven minutes to trail just 34-31 with seven minutes left in the game. But Bemidji held on, improving its record to 6-7, while Moorhead dropped to 5-9.

It was an especially noteworthy triumph for the Lumberjacks, noted the Pioneer, since they went into the game missing starting center Rod Ames, out for nine weeks, and reserve guard Craig Masse, out two weeks, due to training violations. They were among a large number of students penalized following an ill-fated trip to a Roseau hockey game the weekend before, the paper reported.

But Bemidji sophomore Scott Kerick stepped into the breach, scoring 12 points and pulling down 14 rebounds in his first varsity start. And guards Govind Nadesan and Tom Luoma combined for 33 points.

Thief River Falls, 5-7 for the year and just 1-5 against North Half Region 8AA foes, will be in Fergus Falls Friday for an 8 p.m. game and will be at Park Rapids Tuesday before finishing the year with four straight home games, including visits by Bemidji and East Grand Forks.

+ Bemidji high school is seeking a new football opponent after Little Falls unexpectedly dropped the Lumberjacks from its schedule.

+ Crookston girls high school basketball team, scheduled to be in Thief River Falls Thursday, has lost just twice in 13 games this winter — and both losses have come at the hands of Bemidji. The Lumberjills, a 43-25 winner over Thief River Falls Monday, ended a seven-game Crookston winning streak Friday 49-41 after earlier this year beating the Pirates 56-42.

+ Thief River Falls' Bob Fitzgerald scored in the final three minutes Friday night to enable the Bemidji State Beavers to gain a 4-4 tie against Mankato State in a NCHA hockey game at Mankato.

+ Since taking over as Park Rapids high school athletic director five years ago, Al Potter has trimmed the Panthers' athletic budget from $52,000 (excluding salaries) to $31,000. But his efficiency may go unrewarded since the school board is seeking to trim another $16,384 from the total. At the moment it appears that all sports will remain with user fees, coaches doubling as bus drivers and various fund raisers being discussed to make up the deficit.

Northwest Division Co-Leaders . . .

Spartans' 101-95 Win Is End Of NCC Win Streak

Prior to Monday night's Northwest Division first place showdown with Fergus Falls, Northland community college basketball coach Chet Engelman said, for print, that the Northmen were better than the Spartans. If both sides played well, he pointed out, Northland would win. However, if the Northmen played poorly and the Spartans played well, Fergus Falls would win.

It was a case of the latter as Fergus Falls won it 101-95 before an overflow Thief River Falls crowd. That left both sides 7-1 for a first place tie in the four-team Northwest Division race. It also snapped a 12-game Northland winning streak dating back to Dec. 4, leaving the Northmen 14-2 overall. Fergus Falls is 12-3.

"I thought they (Fergus Falls) played very well," acknowledged Engelman. "They took advantage of our mistakes, and we had quite a few. At times we did some things right, but in the second half we got behind and let them control the tempo of the game."

The result was a little surprising in light of last week's scores when Fergus Falls lost a 94-87 game at the University of Minnesota-Crookston, while Northland went there two days later and handled the Trojans 98-80.

"When we played Crookston we didn't play with this intensity," explained Fergus Falls coach Dave Retzlaff. "We played well tonight. Hey, we don't beat Northland on the road unless we play well."

It was a hotly contested basketball game between two teams who have had a lock on Northwest Division titles over the last dozen years until Fergus Falls turned a narrow 81-89 lead with 5:19 remaining into a 93-81 cushion with 1:45 left.

That was a reversal from the start when Northland scored on its first six possessions and jumped out to a 12-4 lead with just 2:33 gone. But after Fergus Falls battled back to tie it 18-18 with 14:01 left in the first half there were six ties and the lead changed hands five times before the Spartans' Chris Capps converted a three-point play with 13 seconds remaining for a 57-56 Fergus Falls edge at intermission.

Things remained that way briefly at the start of the second half before the Spartans ran off a string of seven straight points to erase a 60-59 Northland lead. With the 66-60 advantage and 15:23 remaining, Fergus Falls was in command the rest of the way.

A spread offense — working the ball smartly around the perimeter while looking for a sure thing inside and running time off the clock — kept Northland at bay and had Fergus Falls sitting on a 79-72 lead with 8:08 to play.

"All you can do is play it tight, hope you can overplay it and pick one off," described Engelman in explaining how to cope with the spread offense, something the Northland have used effectively this winter.

Northland did manage to battle back, with Matt Fontes and Scott McKeever, their two main weapons, rattling off eight straight points. Fontes, who led all scorers with 37 points, scored on a rebound to start the come-back. McKeever, who had 22, then hit consecutive artillery lobs before following two free throws by the Spartans' Kevin Boe with a fast break lay-up that had Northland within 8-189 and 5:19 still in the clock.

But that's as close as the Northmen got. Fergus Falls scored 12 of the next 13 points. There were two three-point plays in there, including a back-breaking technical foul on the Northmen for hitting the backboard while the ball was still in flight. It was 85-81 when that happened. David Johnson, a smooth-shooting sophomore guard from Columbia, Mo. who finished with 28 points, got both the basket and the free throw on the technical with 3:36 left for an 88-81 spread. And the ensuing possession eventually led to a pair of free throws by Boe, making, it, in essence, a five-point play. Brian Hagen, a 6-4 sophomore forward from St. Cloud who had an outstanding 30-point game for the Spartans, added the second three-point play on the Fergus Falls charge that made it 93-81 with 1:45 showing.

That series of events was the key to the outcome, confirmed Retzlaff. "When our seven-point lead was cut to one, we were able to hang on and move it back out again," he said. "We were able to weather it out."

It went to 100-87 — the biggest margin of the game — on a pair of free throws by Boe with 49 seconds remaining before Northland made it a little more respectable on the final county scoring eight of the last nine points.

Fergus Falls shot 45 per cent from the field (37-for-82) and had a productive 28-for-35 night at the free throw line. Northland shot 55 per cent from the field (41-for-74) and was 13-for-20 at the line.

Fergus Falls would up with a 46-43 edge in rebounds and Northland topped the turnover figures 20-13.

Engelman tried to minimize the effects of the loss. "All this did was tie it. It didn't kill us," he said.

Northland can get new life by winning its final three regular season divisional starts: Saturday vs. Brainerd; Monday at Fergus Falls; and the following Thursday, Feb. 17, vs. the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

NCC Ends Schedule With Mesabi Series

Regular season 1982-83 schedule ends for the Northland community college hockey team this weekend when the Northmen play a Friday night-Saturday afternoon Minnesota Community College Conference series against Mesabi at Virginia.

The following week the Northmen will be participating in the 1983 MCCC state hockey tournament in Rochester. Top four teams in the final six-team league point standings earn post-season berths. Those top four — Rochester, University of Minnesota-Crookston, Rainy River, Northland — are already known, but their exact order of finish is still in question.

In another season-ending series this weekend, UMC will be at Rochester in a match-up of the league's top two teams. The games are worth four points apiece, so a sweep by the Trojans would vault them ahead of the Yellowjackets for the tournament's top seed.

Hibbing and Mesabi have already been eliminated from the playoff picture. Northland swept Mesabi earlier this winter in Thief River Falls by 6-3, 10-9 scores, with the second one going into overtime.

GOING AFTER A loose ball, Northland sophomore Deb Koskela (15) came up with a rebound as teammate Lorene Bulzomi looked on during Monday's women's community college basketball game against Fergus Falls in the Northland gym. Dana Berglund (50) and Mickie Foy of the Spartans were out of position on the play. Northwest Division leader Fergus Falls won the game 85-67.

Women's College Basketball . . .

Fergus Falls Easy 85-67 Winner Over Northland

Northwest Division-leading Fergus Falls mixed accurate outside shooting with a strong inside game Monday and rolled to an easy 85-67 community college women's basketball win over host Northland.

Five Fergus Falls scorers hit double figures, led by 6-1 sophomore center Dana Berglund's 20 points, a figure matched by Northland freshman forward LeAnn Paetznick. But no other Northland scorer hit the double-figure mark while the Spartans had forwards Mickie Foy and Barb Kruize with 15 and 12 points, respectively, with guards Connie Olson and Terri Byrne getting 12 and 10.

Northland started with a handicap when Paetznick and Tara Nicholson, the team's leading scorers and rebounders, arrived late from a funeral. The didn't get into the game until the final minutes of the first half when Northland was trailing 28-17. In fact, after a three-point play by freshman guard Mary Kuznia tied the game 6-6 with 4:02 gone, the Northwomen were never able to catch the Spartans, who led 38-28 at the half.

Coach Deb Jacobson was hoping Nicholson, who averages 14.7 points and 9.4 rebounds per game, and Paetznick, averaging 10.1 points and 9.5 rebounds, would provide the Northwomen with a second half spark. But the Spartans' lead was never smaller than 11 points after intermission. It was 55-42 five minutes into the second half and 67-48 at the ten-minute mark. For the first part of the second half the Spartans hit from the outside as the Northwomen sagged in on Bergland and her back-up, 6-0 freshman Brenda Volkman. When Northland finally came out to pick up the wings, they simply fed the ball inside.

Fergus Falls finished with a 45 per cent shooting figure from the field (39-for-86) while Northland shot 37 per cent (25-for-67). The Spartans were 7-for-10 at the free throw line where the Northwomen were 17-for-23.

Marshall County Central hit the .500 mark for the year Monday with a 78-50 high school basketball win over Strandquist at Newfolden. Now the trick is to get over the hump. It's the fifth time the Nordics, now 7-7, have evened their record this winter, but they've never been able to go above .500.

And it won't be easy the rest of the way for the Nordics, who will be visiting rival Middle River Friday before finishing with Tri-County, Warren and Hallock, all top District 31 or District 32 contenders.

Marshall County Central's offense was clicking in the rare Monday night outing as Scott Anderson scored 18 points, Ted Thompson 16, Larry Larson 12, Todd Stokke 11 and Kevin Boe 10. John Thompson had 12 points for the Warriors.

The Nordics led at the quarter stops 20-13, 41-27 and 63-39.

"We played real well," mentioned Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland, who was especially pleased with the Nordics' offense that produced its highest point total of the 1982-83 season, and followed a 72-point out-put at Grygla just last Friday. "Defensively, though, we had some breakdowns that I don't like to see under any circumstances. We gave up a few cheap baskets," he said.

Marshall County Central shot 42 per cent from the field (35-for-83) and 62 per cent at the free throw line (8-for-13). Strandquist shot 46 per cent from the field (18-for-39) and 44 per cent at the line (14-for-32). The Nordics had a 38-26 rebound edge and the Warriors topped the turnover charts 26-12.

RLF 45

Scott Groven, who beat Red Lake Falls with a final second shot 58-56 back on Jan. 18, did it again Tuesday night by hitting a jumper from the free throw line with one second remaining to give Goodridge a 47-45 victory over the Eagles.

Jeff Langan made a pair of free throws to give Goodridge a brief 45-43 lead near the end, and after Red Lake Falls tied it 45-45, the Huskies worked the ball for the final shot. Groven wound up with the ball with four seconds left, dribbled to the free throw line and got the game-winner.

"It was a good team effort," reported Goodridge coach Rick Nelson. "In the first half we played some really good basketball."

Goodridge, ahead 12-6 at the end of the first quarter, had a 24-20 halftime edge. Defensive breakdowns in the third quarter saw the Huskies fall behind 39-32, but they out-scored the visiting Eagles 15-6 over the final eight minutes.

Langan scored a game-high 21 points for the winners. "He played an exceptional game for us," praised Nelson. "It was probably one of his most consistent efforts."

Red Lake Falls shot an impressive 57 per cent from the field (21-for-37), but the Eagles were just 1-for-6 at the free throw line. Goodridge shot 47 per cent from the field (21-for-45) and went 5-for-9 at the line.

Middle River 76
Grygla 69

Both offenses were in high gear Tuesday as Middle River out-scored Grygla 76-69 in a North Border Conference game at Grygla.

"We played well, but they played better," pointed out Grygla coach Vern Johnson. "We had a good game, especially in our offensive end."

Middle River led at the quarter breaks 25-16, 48-33 and 60-49.

Kevin Roppe had 23 points for the winner and Kevin McKeever hit 20, with Brad Berg adding 11. Tony McLean and Mike Brateng had 18 and 16 points, respectively, for the Eagles, but both got into early foul trouble and both fouled out in the third quarter.

Middle River took advantage of 27 Grygla fouls to score heavily at the free throw line. Both sides made 30 field goals, but the Skippers were 16-for-31 at the line (52 per cent) and the Eagles were 9-for-17 (53 per cent).

"We just kept hammering and hammering them, and we got called for fouls," acknowledged Johnson.

Middle River was a hot 30-for-49 from the field (61 per cent), according to Grygla charts that showed the Eagles 30-for-72 (42 per cent).

"A lot of offense, very little defense," is the way Middle River coach Eldon Sparby described the game. "Offensively we played well, but defensively I wasn't very happy."

The win boosted the Skippers' record to 8-5 heading into a Friday night home court showdown with rival Marshall County Central. The Nordics won the first encounter this winter, 53-46 back on Dec. 17 at Newfolden. Grygla, 5-8, will be at Lake of the Woods Saturday afternoon.

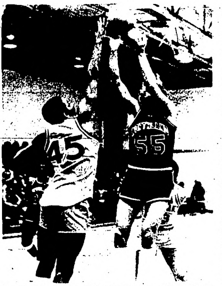
TRF 1-0 Winner Over Hallock

Lincoln high school junior varsity hockey team kept pace with the varsity's 12-4-1 record Tuesday with a 1-0 victory at Hallock.

Game's only goal was scored by John Tranby on assists from Billy Desrocher and Bob Brelland.



Fergus Falls defender Chris Capps went up with Northland shooter Steve Holloway in an attempt to block a first half shot during Monday's Northwest Division community college basketball game played in Thief River Falls. The Spartans upended the Northmen 102-95 to create a first place tie in the divisional standings.

Bemidji Defeats LHS Girls 43-25

Bemidji broke open a close ball game with a 10-point burst to close the third quarter Monday and the Lumberjills went on to beat Thief River Falls 43-25 in a girls high school basketball game played at Bemidji.

Trailing 17-12 at halftime, Thief River Falls was still within 27-21 with three minutes remaining in the third quarter. That's when the roof fell in on the Prowlers, who suddenly had problems against a Bemidji press they otherwise handled all night and surrendered 10 straight points to trail 37-21 at the start of the fourth quarter.

"We played a good ball game except for three minutes," reported Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer. "We just made some awfully dumb mistakes. We did everything wrong during those three minutes. Otherwise, we played a heck of a game."

Bemidji got nearly half (20) of its 43 points in the third quarter. Thief River Falls shut down the Lumberjills the rest of the way, but the Prowlers, who were slowed by illness, couldn't get anything going themselves on offense, finishing with just 11 field goals and a 29 per cent shooting figure from the field.

"We played good defense," mentioned Schafer. "Offensively, it was awfully tough to get a shot against those guys because of their height. They pushed us outside and we weren't hitting from out there."

There were no double figure scorers on either side. Kara Abrahamson had 9 points to lead Bemidji, with Paula Meyers and Michelle Olson getting 6 each to lead Thief River Falls' modest total.

Bemidji shot 42 per cent from the field (20-for-48) and was 3-for-9 at the free throw line. Thief River Falls was 11-for-39 from the field and 3-for-9 at the line. The smaller Prowlers managed to stay within 27-23 on the boards, but topped the turnover figures 18-5.

It was the ninth straight loss for the Prowlers, who will play host to a strong Crookston team Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

Snowmobile Race Called Off At Goodridge

Goodridge Jaycees have postponed their annual cross-country snowmobile race scheduled for this Saturday due to the limited amount of snow available, according to Alan Swanson, project chairman.

The sixth annual Goodridge 100 race has been re-scheduled for Saturday, March 12, snow conditions permitting. Last year the race got underway in good shape but had to be stopped at the mid-way point due to a sudden and heavy local blizzard. That re-scheduled race drew 10 more entries than on the originally-scheduled date, Swanson said.

He added that members of the committee had traveled the proposed race course during the weekend and that it would probably hold up for the racers but could be dangerous in some spots. "Rather than risk having somebody get hurt," Swanson said, "we decided it would be better to wait and hope that we get more snow in the next few weeks."

Sno Drifters Set Shoot-Out Racing Sunday

Sno Drifters second annual "Shoot-out" snowmobile race will be held Sunday with registration beginning at 9 a.m. in banquet room B at the Best Western Inn in Thief River Falls.

Registrations will be closed at 10:30 a.m. for a drivers' meeting at the same location. Racing will begin at noon, with trophies and 100 per cent payback in five performance rated stock classes. In addition, there will be a masters race for drivers aged 40 and over, with a maximum class of Stock B, and trophies awarded to the first three finishers. All classes will have a LeMans-style start.

Grand finale of the competition will be a buddy race in which three-person teams will compete for trophies. All three drivers will be required to start and finish together.

Race course will feature 25 miles of ditch and river riding, and race organizers report that the ditches are in much better condition than expected and the river looks excellent.

All participants under 18 years old will be required to have parent's signature to register. Persons desiring further information should call 681-6298.

TRF YOUTH HOCKEY

by John Michael Anderson

February 5-12 is National Youth Hockey Week. The event, in its second year, is sponsored by the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States (AHAUS). Many special events are being planned to honor the many players, coaches and volunteers that have helped make youth hockey the great sport it is throughout the USA.

Locally, team and group pictures have been taken and printed in The Times, plus a special "Great National Youth Hockey Week Shoot-Out Contest" will be concluded between the junior varsity and varsity high school hockey game with Detroit Lakes Friday in the sports arena.

Nationally, a between-period interview with a national AHAUS official during the National Hockey League all-star game Tuesday on the USA Cable Network publicized the sport.

The growth and participation in youth hockey in the United States has advanced at a steady rate in recent years, and is really booming after the recent USA Gold Medal in Lake Placid's 1980 Olympics. The popularity of the Minnesota state high school hockey tournament, the NCAA hockey tournament (in Grand Forks this year) and the National Hockey League Minnesota North Stars has brought hockey to the minds of many area people.

Hockey is played in nearly every state and it is estimated that over 200,000 players on over 11,000 teams compete in the sport annually.

"National Youth Hockey Week gives recognition to those individuals who make the game what it is today," says AHAUS Executive Director Hal Trumble. "It's a tribute to their hard work and dedication. And, while several players go on to college, professional and perhaps Olympic and National teams, the AHAUS still seeks to recognize and promote the

Teams Gearing For '83 State Tournament Play

Maddening pace of March ecompasses all of the more than 500 schools of the Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) in some fashion, even though the annual state tournaments in the Twin Cities perhaps captures the most attention and exposure during this busy time for high school youth.

Television cameras will focus on the performers during "March Madness," and when it comes to an end on the last weekend of the month, more than 300,000 people will have attended state tournaments in wrestling, gymnastics, hockey, swimming and basketball, according to Larry Larson, MSHSL director of information and publications.

Many thousands more will have watched television during the broadcasts of state tournaments in hockey and basketball. And others will have peered through the fine lines of print in morning newspapers, looking for results of contests played the night before in single elimination district, section and region tournaments.

During this 24-day period of action-packed drama there will be moments of the no-tomorrow agony of defeat and the ecstacy of victory. To become a state team or individual champion is not an easy task. The energy and effort takes a strong committment.

Young men and women who participate in the MSHSL competition in March — and the year 'round for that matter — the League offers congratulations for your accomplishments in the past, thanks for your sacrifice, effort, and contributions to the interscholastic activities program, and good luck in the upcoming playdowns.

Wrestling

Forty-sixth annual state Class AA and Class A wrestling tournament March 3-4-5 is the first of six winter season sports events concluding with state tournaments in March.

Championships will be decided in both team and individual competition. Team dual meet format has been in effect since 1975 and Minnesota remains the only state nationally to have it a part of state championships. Individual state titlists will be named in 11 different weight categories in each of classes AA and A at the St. Paul Civic Center.

Apple Valley, rated No. 1 all-season long, is picked by some observers as the team to beat in AA, while Staples, Class A champions four of the last five years, is once again the pick in that division.

In the individual competition, will the seven individuals who won state titles last year as underclassmen win again in 1983? Wrestling fans will know sometime the night of March 5.

Attendance is likely to surpass the 55,000 mark for the third straight year.

There are 328 schools statewide competing in interscholastic wrestling this season.

Girls Gymnastics

Another state event to be conducted by the MSHSL during the first weekend in March is the ninth annual state Class AA and Class A girls gymnastics meet. Girls will compete for team laurels on Friday, March 4, and vie for top honors in the individual events on Saturday, March 5 at the Minneapolis Auditorium.

State team champions in 1982 were Burnsville in AA and Mahtomedi in A. A new team titlist is certain in A as Mahtomedi is now a AA division school.

In the AA individual competition, new champions are assured as last year's all-around winner and holder of gold medals in floor exercise, balance beam and vaulting, Sue Litschke, now a senior at Hastings, suffered a broken ankle in a January invitational meet and is not expected to return. Nor is the other AA individual victory a year ago, freshman Crystal Savage, Brainerd, in uneven parallel bars. Her family has moved to Sioux Falls, S.D.

However, in Class A, 1982 champions expected to win their way back include all-around winner Carolyn Boos, Blake senior, who also won the uneven parallel bars, and Ellie Dunlavey, the Jackson senior who won floor exercise and vaulting a year ago.

Last year's state meet attendance was a record 6,161. The previous high was 5,766 in 1979 when the two-day affair was held at St. Cloud State University.

There are 159 schools statewide competing in interscholastic girls gymnastics this season.

Hockey

Two more state tournaments take place during the second week in March. The first to get underway will be the thirty-ninth annual state hockey tournament March 10-11-12.

St. Paul Civic Center Arena, home of the tournament since 1976, will again be filled with spectators in excess of 100,000 for the three-day event, as the eight team, six-session, 11-game tournament is once again a sell-out for the championship series. Only tickets remaining are those set aside for the participating schools.

Considered to be the greatest state high school tournament of any kind in the nation, this event will be a feature article with illustrations in Sports Illustrated the week prior to this year's event.

Edina, the defending state champion, is one of 148 high schools playing interscholastics hockey this year. The only undefeated and untied team through mid-season was Hill-Murray, who is rated No. 1 by most pollsters.

First televised in 1965, the 1983 tournament will be the first of a three-year contract with WCCO-TV, of Minneapolis.

A format change will be implemented in 1983 as one semifinal game will be played Friday afternoon and the other Friday night. Previously both games were played during the Friday night session. This change was implemented so as to provide additional tickets to participating schools.

Boys Swimming-Diving

Sixtieth annual state boys swimming and diving meet will be another interesting event with sell-out crowds on hand for the two sessions March 11-12 at the Cooke Hall pool on the University of Minnesota campus in Minneapolis.

Defending state team champion Lakeville may be hard-pressed to repeat as titlist. No school has repeated since the years when Hopkins Eisenhower (1974-77) and Rochester (1953-59) won four or more consecutive crowns. Only Biwabik (1960-61), Edina (1967-68), and Golden Valley (1971-72) can boast with Hopkins and Rochester as schools winning back-to-back team titles during the last three decades.

Three underclassmen who won individual championships in 1982 are expected to win their way back into the 1983 meet through section meet qualifying. They include seniors Bob Hauck, Northfield, and Jeff Brown, St. Cloud Tech, and junior standout Jeff Lee, Richfield.

Hauck was outstanding a year ago en route to winning two events, the 100-yard backstroke and the 200-yard individual medley, in record 1:55.59 time. Brown scintillated in the 50-yard freestyle where he won in :21.49 time, while Lee became one of the few sophomores ever to set a state record when capturing a gold medal in the 500-yard freestyle event with a record 4:41.10 clocking.

Oldest current record among the 11 swimming and diving events at state competition is the record established in 1974 by John Prins, Bloomington Jefferson, who swam the 100-yard backstroke in a time of :52.51.

Boys swimming and diving interscholastic competition was conducted in 110 Minnesota high schools during this winter season.

Girls Basketball

Eighth annual state Class AA and Class A girls basketball tournament takes over the state tournament scene during the month's third week.

Three-day schedule finds the first day, Thursday, March 17, with games being played at two sites — the Minneapolis Auditorium (Class AA) and the Met Center in Bloomington (Class A). Eight teams in each class will win their way through district, sub-region and region tournament play to the state event.

Semifinal and championship games will be held on Friday and Saturday, March 18 and 19, at the Met Center. In a format change, Class A will play semifinal and final games Friday and Saturday afternoon with Class AA devoted to the two evening sessions those days.

The tournament has grown in interest since its inception in 1976. Names Janet Karvonen, Kelly Skalicky, Annie Adamczak, and Kay Konerza are prominent players from those first years. The event also ranks among the tops in the nation in attendance. Three of the past four years total attendance has surpassed the 50,000 mark.

Scheduled to be televised all three days by WTCN-TV, Channel 11, Minneapolis, St. Cloud Apollo in Class AA and Moose Lake in Class A are the defending champions. Through mid-January Apollo, winners of all 25 games last year, had extended its winning streak to 31 games without a loss and were ranked third in most statewide polls, but Moose Lake, an entrant in state the last four years, is not expected to return this season.

Top rated teams all-season long have been Hill-Murray, a perennial state entry, in AA, and East Chain in A, last year's state runner-up.

There are 490 high school interscholastic girls basketball teams competing throughout Minnesota this season.

Boys Basketball

Oldest of the March winter events, the seventy-first annual state Class AA and Class A basketball tournament, rounds out the March calendar of state tournies.

First day of quarterfinal game competition for the eight teams in each class will take place in two buildings — Class A in Williams Arena and Class AA in the St. Paul Civic Center Arena.

Semifinal and championship games the next two days, Friday and Saturday, March 25 and 26, will be held at the St. Paul Civic Center Arena. In a format change Class A will play semifinal and final games Friday and Saturday afternoon with Class AA devoted to the two evening sessions those days.

Televised in its entirety since 1954, this popular tournament drew 91,811 fans to the 1982 state tournament. WTCN-TV will televise this year's event once again.

Defending AA champion Bloomington Jefferson hopes to repeat in '83. The Jaguars were off to a great start this season when winning their first nine games and extending a winning streak of 27 games dating back to the 1981-82 campaign. Although Jefferson has scintillated, the pollsters rated them second to unbeaten Coon Rapids heading into the latter days of January.

In Class A, defending champion Winona Cotter hasn't fared as well, but is still hopeful of being a contender in post-season play. The "experts" have been rating Westbrook and Starbuck as top teams most of this season in Class A.

There are 496 high school interscholastic boys basketball teams competing throughout Minnesota this season.

During the month of March the last three years, total attendance has been hovering around the 300,000 mark. It is anticipated that this year's total will again be near that figure.

Plummer Girls Tip Oklee 67-41 For 11-2 Record

Plummer out-scored Oklee 24-5 in the second quarter Monday en route to a 67-41 girls high school basketball win in the Pershing high school gym.

"We had a good second quarter," said Plummer coach Rick Koivisto in an understatement. "We started kind of slow. We tried using a man-to-man defense and it didn't work." The Cardinals went to their more accustomed zone press in the second quarter and it paid handsome dividends, pushing a 15-12 first quarter edge into a 39-17 halftime bulge. It was 57-31 after three quarters.

Jody Pahlen has 22 points and 10 rebounds for the winners, with Bonnie Fisher getting 21 points and 16 rebounds. Karen White had 17 points for the losers.

Plummer shot 48 per cent from the field (31-for-44) and went 5-for-9 at the free throw line. Oklee shot 32 per cent from the field (20-for-62) and was 1-for-3 at the line. Plummer built a huge 40-29 rebound advantage and Oklee had more turnovers, 21-16.

With the win Plummer moves to 11-2 for the year going into a key Thursday night Polar Conference game at East Grand Forks Sacred Heart. The youthful Cardinals will also host Stephen Friday.

U.S. Senator Rudy Boschwitz reports to Minnesota

Exports: Important Part of the Future of the American Farmer

We all agree that American farmers are the most efficient and productive in the world. They produce far more than we could use in the U.S. markets. Consequently, we export a large portion of our agricultural commodities.

That's why I feel my position as Chairman of the Foreign Trade Subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Agriculture is among my most important assignments here in Washington. That is why, as well, I have introduced the Agricultural Free and Fair Trade Act of 1983, a bill I consider to be the most comprehensive we have seen in making sure that U.S. farmers get a fair shake on world markets.

I came across something produced by USDA recently that in simple terms points out the importance of agriculture to our economy. I'd like to share the information with you.

Let's look at what might happen if suddenly we stopped exporting all farm products. Admittedly, that's extreme, but there's a point to looking at what would probably happen.

. . . Jobs for more than one million people would be wiped out. They are the Americans who raise, process, ship and finance our farm exports.

—The tens of thousands of tractors and other pieces of equipment used to produce crops that are exported would be idled. Some farm equipment manufacturers would go broke. Many local businesses that sell supplies to farmers would be driven into bankruptcy. That would bring a sharp population decline in rural towns, forcing people into urban areas looking for jobs.

. . . The production from one cropland acre out of three suddenly would not be needed. More than 100 million farmland acres are now used for growing crops for export. That's about equal to the combined size of Indiana, Illinois, New Jersey, New York, South Carolina and Hawaii. With their income sharply reduced, farmers couldn't afford to invest in the modern practices and conservation needed to keep that expanse of land in good production condition, safe for future generations.

. . . Retail food prices would probably drop during the first year or so due to oversupplies and a sudden decline in farm prices. But farmers get only about 33 cents from a retail food dollar, anyway. The increases in a 67-cent portion of the food dollar would keep climbing. After a while food prices at the supermarket most likely would rise since many farmers would be forced out of farm production.

. . . Loss of export markets would sharply reduce farm income. Unprecedented government financial support would be needed to help farmers adjust, which in turn would place a heavier burden on American taxpayers.

. . . Hundreds of thousands of farmers would go out of business; others would have to reduce production. Wholesale farm bankruptcies would hit hard in the 16 states where one-third to one-half of farm income now comes from agricultural exports (Arkansas, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, and South Carolina).

. . . Land prices would collapse, causing heavy losses to farmers and farmland owners and banks, life insurance companies, and other financial institutions that hold mortgages based on today's farm values. People who have a stake in those financial institutions would lose, too.

. . . Millions of people in other countries who depend on our farm products would suddenly be short of food. Worse yet, many would suffer from malnutrition; others would starve. American farm exports are the difference between starvation and survival for more than 40 million people around the world.

. . . The loss of approximately $40 billion a year in farm export income would deepen the deficit in our balance of payments. That would make the things we buy from other countries more expensive. The deficit would weaken the dollar, raise the price we pay for foreign goods, and fan the fires of inflation which eat away at the purchasing power of people's incomes.

Admittedly, that extreme scenario of stopping all farm exports is not likely to happen. It does, however, help us see the importance of U.S. farm exports.

Survey Shows Full-Size Cars Most Common

Surveys conducted at driver's license exam stations throughout the state show that more Minnesotans generally drive full-size cars than any other type of vehicle. Second most often driven vehicle was a mid-size car.

Survey, conducted in the last few months of 1982, questioned over 844 Minnesotans. A list of vehicle types was supplied survey respondents and they answered as follows: six per cent - subcompact; 19 per cent - compact; 29 per cent - mid-size; 33 per cent - full-size; nine per cent - truck; four per cent - van or other type of vehicle.

There was some significant difference in the types of vehicles driven most frequently by men and women. While 69 per cent of the women reported they usually drove either a full-size or mid-size car, only 51 per cent of the men replied similarly. More men reported driving a truck (18 per cent) than did women (only four per cent).

Survey respondents from rural areas were more likely to report driving trucks (14 per cent) than were urban or suburban respondents (eight per cent).

"These survey results reemphasize the wide variety of vehicle types mixing on Minnesota highways. Drivers must be alert and aware of vehicles of all types," said Paul Tschida, commissioner of the department of public safety. "Whether you are encountering a motorcycle, sports car or semi-trailer truck, courtesy, common sense and the rules of the road must be followed."

LARGEST FISH caught during the Knights of Columbus fishing derby held Sunday on the Red Lake River in front of the Eighth Street landing in Thief River Falls, was this 1.1 pound northern taken by Amy Hagman of Thief River Falls. While it might not have made much of a trophy, it was good enough to net Amy a $50 savings bond.

TOO LUCKY, Lawrence Gutterud, route 2, Thief River Falls, hauled in this two pounder less than a minute before the official opening of the Knights of Columbus fishing derby held Sunday in Thief River Falls. Had he waited just a little longer, he would have won a $50 savings bond for biggest fish and a sleeping bag for first fish. Conservation Officer Craig Backer, left, of the Minnesota department of natural resources weighed in the entries, with assistance from fellow officer Jim Hinz.

Fishing Derby Drew 450 Out In Cold Sunday

About 450 people turned out in spite of cold weather on Sunday for the 26th annual Knights of Columbus fishing derby held on the Red Lake River in front of the Eighth Street landing in Thief River Falls.

Cooperation of the fish was reported better than in some previous years, with a total of six fish, all northerns, caught. If a prize had been given for being the most skillful (or luckiest) fisherman, it would have had to have gone to John Peterson of Thief River Falls, who hauled in half of that total. He took prizes for catching both the first fish and the most fish (three).

Largest fish taken in the contest was a 1.1 pound northern caught by Amy Hagman, also of Thief River Falls. According to spectators, both prizes were nearly lost to a man who pulled in a two pounder less than a minute before the contest was officially opened.

Fish were weighed by Minnesota department of natural resources personnel Craig Backer and Jim Hinz, who also did the honors in awarding prizes.

Other prize winners included Leonard Brekke, 91, Thief River Falls, who was the oldest fisherman; Brian Walseth, one and a half, the youngest fisherman; and Gary Peek, Decatur, IL., who came the greatest distance.

All profits made by the Knights of Columbus were designated for scholarships to Thief River Falls area vocational—technical school and Northland Community college, or for youth activities.

Major activity of OEA week is the bowl-a-thon being held Thursday at the Family Bowl in Thief River Falls. Special olympians from the school district will be bowling along with 50 or more OEA members.

Proceeds from this activity will go to the local children with learning and physical disabilities involved in the special olympics program.

Second major event OEA is sponsoring for special olympics is a hockey game on Saturday, February 19, at 3 p.m. in the old arena. This game will feature the Thief River Falls Old Timers vs. the Winnipeg Old Timers. Tickets for this game are being sold by OEA members ($2 for adults and $1 for students) and will also be sold at the door.

Fertilize for wheat PROFIT!

You may be looking for ways to cut costs. Who isn't? But one thing all agronomists tell us is: "Don't cut back in areas that cause yields to decrease!"

They are talking about fertilizer. They encourage the wheat farmer to select varieties and apply fertilizer for optimum yields — that's your most profitable yield.

Yes, your cost per acre will increase as you move up toward your optimum yield. But your cost per bushel will be reduced. (See chart.)

You not only get more bushels per acre, you get more profit from every bushel you raise!

Base your fertilizer applications on soil test results and your yield goals. Let our Fertilizer Specialist help you.

Be Careful In Selecting Tax Preparer

You should be as careful in your selection of a tax preparer as you are in choosing a doctor or lawyer, according to the Internal Revenue service.

While most preparers are honest, a few abuse the responsibility they have. Avoid preparers that talk of "beating" the system, promise a refund or claim to have special contacts with the IRS.

Do not sign: a blank return, a partially completed return or a penciled-in return.

In addition, you should have the preparer sign and date your return as well as fill in his or her identification number. A copy of the completed return must be furnished to you.

"Say Yes To Less" Is Theme For March

"Say Yes To Less — Less Fat, Less Salt, Less Sugar." This is the theme for March as national nutrition month. This theme points the way to improved nutritional health, according to Deborah Matero, Pennington county extension agent.

Many Americans eat a diet high in fat, saturated fat and cholesterol. People in the U.S. have a high incidence of heart attacks too. There is controversy about whether elevated blood cholesterol levels are the cause of heart disease. However, it is sensible for Americans, generally, to avoid too much fat in their diets. Do this several ways. Choose lean meat, fish and poultry. Limit intake of butter, cream, hydrogenated margarines, shortenings and coconut oil. Broil, bake or boil rather than fry.

Americans like salt too. The average person in the U.S. eats two to 2½ teaspoons of salt per day or 8½ pounds per year. Salt is essential for good health and exists naturally in many foods. However, most of us eat more than we need. Twenty per cent of the population has high blood pressure or hypertension. Studies have shown that individuals predisposed to hypertension may be at higher risk if their diets are high in sodium-salt. Learn to like unsalted flavors and cook with small amounts of added salt. Avoid salty foods and remember that processed foods are usually higher in sodium. Foods can be seasoned to taste with herbs, spices and other flavorings.

Average person in the United States consumes 130 pounds of sugar each year. Sugar is not bad, but most of it is not necessary. If you wish to control your weight or prevent tooth decay, you may wish to reduce the amount and frequency of your sugar intake. Many of us consume more food energy-calories than we use up in physical activity. Many of these calories come in the form of sugar. Most Americans should eat fewer sweets, including all sugars, syrups and honey. Instead select fresh fruits or those canned in light syrup. Avoid frequent sweet snacks to avoid tooth decay.

Pvt. Gregory Finishes Army Unit Training

Army National Guard Pvt. Hans G. Gregory, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed W. Gregory of rural route 3, Thief River Falls, has completed one station unit training (OSUT) at the U.S. Army infantry school, Fort Benning, Ga.

OSUT is a 12-week period which combines basic combat training and advanced individual training.

Training included weapons qualifications, squad tactics, patrolling, landmine warfare, field communications and combat operations. Completion of this course qualifies the soldier as a light-weapons infantryman and as an indirect-fire crewman.

Soldiers were taught to perform any of the duties in a rifle or mortar squad.

State Is Ranked 32nd Nationally In Business

Top officials of the Minnesota association of commerce and industry (MACI) and former Minnesota commissioner of economic development David Printy are advising state business and political leaders to be neither overly pleased, nor overly disappointed, with the results of a soon to be released study ranking Minnesota's "business climate" 32nd among the 48 contingüous states for 1982.

The study was done by Alexander Grant and company, a national accounting firm, in cooperation with the conference of state manufacturers' associations (COSMA). MACI, Minnesota's largest business-lobby organization, is Minnesota's COSMA affiliate.

States were ranked nationally on the basis of 22 factors including state and local fiscal policy, state regulated employment costs, labor costs, availability and productivity of the labor force and a variety of considerations relating to energy, the environment, and the overall population.

With its rank of 32nd, Minnesota's business climate status among states remains unchanged, according to Grant, from 1981. Study ranks Minnesota among the top 12 states in three categories: low tax increases as related to income (affects of 1979 tax bill); high percentage of enrollment in vocational-technical education, and high percentage of high school educated adults.

However, Minnesota ranks among the worst states in four categories: high total tax burdens, high unemployment compensation deficit, high workers' compensation rates, and high welfare expenditures.

Referring to the workers' compensation section of the Grant study, MACI general counsel John B. Lennes, Jr. said the study showed "that for 'selected manufacturing occupations,' (Alexander Grant's selection, not ours) Minnesota's workers' compensation costs ranked fourth highest in the nation behind Oregon, Connecticut, and Rhode Island.

"Of additional significance," Lennes continued, "was the fact that in states where a 'competitive' state insurance fund was in place, the costs for manufacturers ran 25.1 per cent higher than the national average. If the statistics for competitive state fund states were subtracted from the national average to show 'competitive' state fund states vs. 'private-only' states, the difference would, of course, be greater." MACI has historically opposed a workers' compensation state fund as expensive and unnecessary. Association is also advocating a major overhaul of Minnesota's workers' compensation system in order to make the state more competitive with Wisconsin, neighboring states, and other states with which Minnesota must compete for jobs and capital investments.

Mark Anderson, MACI's vice president of tax and economic development, further cautioned that "it's difficult to define an overall 'manufacturing business climate.' Minnesota has 6,000 manufacturers which produce goods for international, national, regional, statewide, and purely local markets. We have many manufacturers with one employee and several with as many as 20,000 employees, making everything from dinner rolls to industrial cranes, to sophisticated computer hardware and software. Each manufacturer is affected differently by every factor cited in the Grant study. For some manufacturers, the Minnesota business climate is excellent. For others, it may be terrible. Still others are surviving, but are unable to grow and generate more Minnesota jobs until factors important to them improve."

From a national perspective, Anderson pointed to the danger in generalizations, explaining that "one state's tax structure may be competitive for high value-added processes and at the same time may be onerous for a simpler manufacturing process. Or, for particular products and markets, one state may find itself in competition with another state with a much more beneficial tax structure. In those instances, average tax burden analysis are misleading."

MACI president Win Borden added that while the Grant study was able to measure and compare factors such as workers' compensation, unemployment compensation, and tax costs, "positive factors for Minnesota. . . our healthy environment, and our overall quality of life were not considered because there is no precise way to measure and compare those things on a national basis." Borden said results of the study underscore the need for business, labor, and government to help improve workers' compensation and specific aspects of the state's job-business climate. "But," he added, "the Grant study, taken by itself, certainly doesn't provide a total picture of business in Minnesota. Business people must still examine their particular situations and make their investment location decisions on the basis of many specific factors, general environments, and attitudes."

Printy, Minnesota's commissioner of economic development from 1979-1980, and who now chairs MACI's economic development committee, is now more optimistic about the state's future jobs-business situation. "There is a widespread realization that future economic growth will be in business activities which require highly trained people with scientific and technical skills. The financial and business services infrastructures in Minnesota will allow us to effectively compete for job creation with the other industrialized states of the northeast and Great Lakes region."

Printy said the state's new political attention to job creation and business expansion holds promise for better times ahead for Minnesotans. However, he cautioned that "new jobs require high capital investments. Minnesota must provide a competitive and predictable financial atmosphere. We can't excessively tax existing investments, because we need substantial re-investment of capital returns to provide prosperity and employment in the future."

In 1981, daily newspapers received a 28.4 percent share of the nation's advertising revenues. Television followed with 20.6 percent, radio had 6.9 and magazines, 5.8 percent.

For nearly a decade, the number of weekly newspapers has been rising steadily, so that now there are over 7,600 and a total estimated readership of nearly 120 million.

Polls show that newspaper advertising is considered more believable than that of any other medium.

Metro Jobless Rate Holds At 7.5 Per Cent

Minneapolis-St. Paul metropolitan area's unemployment rate in December was 7.5 per cent, unchanged from November, according to Commissioner Barbara Beerhalter of the Minnesota department of economic security. The December 1981 unemployment rate was 4.8 per cent.

Comparable national unemployment rate for December of 1982 was 10.5 per cent and the statewide unemployment rate in December was 9.3 per cent.

Compared with December a year ago, the size of the Twin Cities metropolitan area civilian labor force decreased by 0.3 of one per cent; the number of employed persons decreased by 3.1 per cent; and the number of unemployed workers increased by 55.1 per cent.

The metropolitan area labor force in December was 1,168,100, down 3,300 from November and down 3,800 from December of last year. Number of persons employed in December was 1,080,700, down 3,400 from November and down 34,800 from December a year ago. Number of unemployed persons in the Twin Cities area in December was 87,500, up 200 from November and up 31,100 from December a year ago.

The unemployment rates pertain to the entire labor force and are not used to determine whether or not unemployment insurance benefits payments will be extended beyond the usual 26-week maximum. The unemployment rate among persons covered by unemployment insurance is used to determine whether or not the benefit payments will be extended.

Control Factor Offers Look At Drunk Driving

Even when they are under the legal drinking age, young people drink. Annual statistics on drunk driving also tell us that young people drink and drive. Almost ten per cent of the drivers in Minnesota are 15 to 19 years of age, and yet in Minnesota last year, teenagers were involved in almost 20 per cent of the traffic crashes. Substantial number of those crashes involved alcohol.

In an effort to lessen the degree to which young people drink and drive, the Minnesota safety council, with funding from the Minnesota department of education and the Minnesota department of public safety, pilot-tested an innovative youth drinking and driving program called "The Control Factor." Program, focusing on alcohol and drunk driving information, risk-assessment and decision-making, calls upon the direct involvement of young people.

Acting as volunteer program instructors, selected sophomores, juniors and seniors from high schools throughout Minnesota are trained to present a three class-period multi-media program to students in their local schools. Having its prime emphasis on individual control, "The Control Factor" offers students receiving the program the opportunity to take a closer look at the problem of drunk driving and through non-traditional classroom activities, gives them ways in which they can more effectively deal with potential drunk driving situations.

In 1981, its first year, "The Control Factor" reached over 1,600 Minnesota high school students through the efforts of peer instructors. Since beginning its second year of operation in October of 1982, "The Control Factor" boasts an additional 273 trained peer instructors, with over 5,000 local students slated to receive the program in Minnesota high schools before the end of January, 1983.

Rex Morriss, project coordinator and one of the program's originators, commented, "The response we've received has been extremely positive. The students seem to thoroughly enjoy the program and from the information we've received so far, it looks like it's working. We think it will have a positive impact on the drunk driving problem in Minnesota."

For additional information about "The Control Factor" program, write to Minnesota safety council, 555 Wabasha street, suite 102, St. Paul, Minnesota 55102; or phone (612) 291-9150.

News Council Evaluates News Media Actions

In "Absence of Malice," actor Paul Newman discovers he is falsely linked to serious crimes in the morning paper. He seeks revenge. But instead of going to court, he sets up the newspaper in a con game to catch the real culprit.

It is a sad comment on what can happen when a newspaper ignores its duty to play fair and goes for a big story at any cost.

But the movie didn't have to turn out that way. Had it been set in Minnesota instead of Florida, Newman would have had another option. He could have taken his case to the Minnesota news council.

Set up in 1971 as an independent media watchdog group, the news council hears and evaluates complaints against newspapers and broadcast stations.

In its first case, the news council reprimanded a newspaper for publishing unfounded allegations of influence-buying at the state legislature without confirming the story with knowledgeable sources.

And four years ago, when a television station aired inaccurate newscasts accusing a county commissioner of poor attendance on the job, the council admonished the media not to make unofficial charges without giving the accused a chance to respond.

These cases were among more than 500 complaints the news council has received to date. Most came from private citizens, and each was unique.

The council, the nation's only state news council, is a non-profit public service organization committed to the belief that a free press need not exist at the expense of a fair press. In the nearly 50 case decisions it has issued, the council has urged the state's news media to air all sides of a story, correct mistakes promptly and give the public access to the airwaves and letters columns. Half the decisions favored the complainant.

In other cases, the news council has criticized a metropolitan newspaper for endangering the life of a kidnap victim by trying to be present at ransom drops; censured a weekly newspaper for not observing generally accepted journalistic ethics in its "open season" on local politicians; and praised a small community newspaper for taking a city alderman to task for his performance.

The news council will only hear cases that have a legitimate basis. Before filing a grievance, complainants must contact the news organization and attempt to resolve the matter. Many complaints are settled at this level.

For example, a dog trainer recently complained that her business was nearly ruined by a feature story that depicted her training style as cruel. But her complaint was resolved when the newspaper ran a follow-up story.

If face-to-face discussion fails to resolve a dispute, the complainant may pursue the case with the news council. Any individual or group may file a complaint. There is no charge.

Complainants must sign a waiver agreeing not to seek legal or government action against the news organization. The council is an alternative, not a supplement, to legal remedies.

The council, after contacting the newspaper or broadcaster for a response to a complaint, may schedule a public hearing where both sides discuss the issues in an informal setting. Its 24 volunteer members, drawn equally from the public and the news media, then review the testimony and make a determination.

News council findings are reported by newspapers and broadcasters throughout the state, regardless of the outcome. Since the council cannot penalize a news organization or enforce its decision, it relies instead for its impact on the "loud bark of publicity" it generates.

For more information, contact the Minnesota News Council at (612) 376-7102 or write P.O. Box 14147, Minneapolis, MN 55414.

Some men are remembered for their deeds . . . the battles they won and the prizes they gained. But not A. Lincoln!

Men still call him "honest Abe," and they take courage in his humility. Men honor his devotion to the principles for which he stood; they esteem his love for humanity; they marvel at his capacities for sympathy, understanding and forgiveness.

History has known few men whose memory could survive the hatreds of war and find sanctuary in the hearts of victor and vanquished alike. But Abe Lincoln belongs to all of America. Christian nobility is revered for itself, whether it wore blue or gray.

As the character of a man can bind up the wounds of a nation, so the Christian faith which moulded Abe Lincoln can build under God a world of peace and understanding. To that proposition our Churches and Synagogues are dedicated.

Gold Facts and Fancies

Man's love for gold has spanned the centuries and it's easy to see why. The rarity of gold, its malleable qualities and lustrous beauty, have made it a mark of wealth for more than 6,000 years.

Gold has always been so prized, in fact, that many people once believed that — rather wishfully — it could be made by artificial means, using lesser metals as a base, through a "science" known as alchemy. Though this was no more than a fancy then, modern scientists have succeeded in making some of the alchemists' dreams come true.

Do you have a particularly prized piece of gold jewelry? Even if you've just bought it, it may be much older than you think. Many gold objects have been cast, melted down, recast, remelted and so forth, so the gold in an earring could have been worn by someone thousands of years ago.

Transparent featherquills filled with gold dust were used as "coins" in Pre-Columbian Mexico. Today, Mexico mints gold bullion coins in nine sizes, including a new one-ounce, one-half ounce and one-quarter ounce coin. These are known as the "Gold Coins of Mexico," a series whose circulation is more than 75 million worldwide — more than any other series of currently marketed gold bullion coins. Minted at the Casa de Moneda de Mexico, the oldest mint in the Western Hemisphere, they are particularly prized by American investors and collectors. In addition to providing a range of choices to investors, the attractive Mexican gold coins, considered by many experts to be the world's most elegantly crafted bullion coins, can be fashioned into pendants, earrings, rings or stickpins.

A series of beautiful and valuable gold bullion coins minted in Mexico have the highest worldwide circulation — more than 75 million.

Thoughts On Poetry

We appreciated the opportunity a couple of weeks ago to visit with John Minczeski while he was in Thief River Falls to share his views on poetry with local students. It is always interesting to visit with people about their specific interests and ideas and to learn from them.

The visiting poet-in-the-schools responded to our question about the seeming abandonment of rhyme in poetry by saying that virtually all poems written now are free verse compositions. Rhyme gets in the way of thought many times, he said, and the "content should be at least equal to the form."

It's his profession, and he should know as much about it as anyone who has studied it at all, but we still have difficulty accepting "free verse" as poetry. Descriptive prose may be a better term, particularly as it applies to thoughts written without any semblance of rhythmic uniformity.

Of course, rhyme doesn't necessarily make poetry of itself. Just because the last words of lines rhyme is no justification for calling non-rhythmic writing poetry. The true poet, to our way of thinking, is the person who can take ideas and form them into rhythmic expressions that include rhyme. Poetic talent lies in that ability, not simply to think of descriptive phrases and write them down in lines of varying length.

It was purely coincidental that a couple of days after our talk with Minczeski that we received the February edition of the FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin and, lo and behold, there on page one was a poem by John C. Kairis, training officer for the Fairbanks, Alaska, police department. It was an honest-to-goodness, thought-rhyme-andrhythm, real live bonafied poem! We were amazed; they just don't write them kinds of poems no more!

Read through the four verses three of four times and savor them a little. I don't believe that free verse could come close to providing the same impact with the same message. See if you don't agree.

No! There's the land. (Have you seen it?)
It's the cussedest land that I know,
From the big, dizzy mountains that screen it
To the deep, deathlike valleys below.

Some say God was tired when He made it;
Some say it's a fine land to shun;
Maybe; but there's some as would trade it
For no land on earth — and I'm one.

You come to get rich (damned good reason);
You feel like an exile at first;
You hate it like hell for a season,
And then you are worse than the worst.

It grips you like some kinds of sinning;
It twists you from foe to a friend;
It seems it's been since the beginning;
It seems it will be to the end.

Tough Lesson To Learn

Following editorial is from the Wadena Pioneer Journal:

Over the years an attitude developed in America that workers and their employers were adversaries. The "take this job and stuff it" syndrome became pervasive in many large industries where the employer was considered only as a greedy, wealthy profiteer to be hated and villified. Workers took no pride in their work, avoided it as much as possible, were sloppy and careless about quality and looked at their jobs only as a way to get money to enjoy a comfortable life.

Things have been changing in the last year or so, but the change is coming the hard way. Chrysler corporation's very survival has hinged on the cooperation of its employees. While the company is by no means home free, widespread efforts at all levels have extended the Chrysler firm's life and perserved jobs. Recently when Canadian Chrysler workers struck, many of their American counterparts sharply criticized the Canadian auto workers.

The recently announced shutdown of the Lackawanna, NY steel plant and the loss of 10,000 jobs will be devasting to that community. If there is anything good to come of that shutdown it will be that it reinforces the realization that it was the free enterprise system that has been the foundation of America.

Free enterprise has built the U.S. We should never lose sight of the fact that free enterprise and the profit motive are good for America, not evil forces as many among us have come to believe.

The steelworkers in New York won't have to worry about going out on strike anymore to punish their employers for not giving them enough wages. They now, no doubt, would be willing to sacrafice a lot so that the company could make a healthy profit.

At one time, they probably never gave it a thought. Maybe they even felt good when the company lost money. No more. They're learning the lesson about the importance of a strong free enterprise system that returns a profit to those who take the risks.

That's a tough way to learn the lesson. We hope the rest of America gets the message before it's too late.

The President's Budget

Following editorial comments are from the Morris Tribune:

President Reagan, in his budget message sent to Congress this week, took the courageous step of calling for cuts in the growth of entitlement programs. Such programs, which represent almost half of the federal budget, have grown over 1000 per cent in the last 20 years. But few political leaders have dared to question this incredible jump in spending. Indeed, entitlements have become a favorite way for Congress to play Santa Claus.

Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid, unemployment insurance, and military and civilian pensions are among the better-known entitlement programs. It is interesting to note that only one-sixth of such spending is "means tested" — limited to those who can demonstrate need. Most entitlement funds go to those in middle and upper income brackets.

Entitlements automatically increase with inflation, and recipient groups are growing at a faster rate than the general population. It is easy to see why these programs are contributing heavily to the nation's budget deficit.

Mr. Reagan is proposing a one-year freeze on federal pay and pensions. He also seeks to postpone the increase in Social Security benefits for six months.

We believe that Mr. Reagan's proposal for a 2.9 per cent increase in spending for domestic programs is right on target. Adjusted for inflation, this amounts to a 2.1 per cent decrease. Just twenty years ago, social programs accounted for only 23 per cent of the federal budget. Today, they represent 53 per cent of expenditures. The growth in social programs has gone far enough.

The unrealistic part of the president's budget is the call for 10 per cent real (inflation-adjusted) growth in defense spending. Mr. Reagan is asking that military outlays rise to $239 billion, an increase of 14 per cent over the current year.

The outstanding example of waste in the military budget is the allocation of funds for the MX missile. The modern, accurate cruise missiles currently being deployed make old-fashioned ICBM's like the MX obsolete.

Also, Mr. Reagan's proposed commitment to NATO is too large; there is no reason to increase U.S. troop strength in Europe when our NATO allies are not carrying their share of the defense burden. Mr. Reagan is asking for a $30 billion jump in military spending; yet Pentagon supporters acknowledge that a $10-15 billion increase would be adequate.

Much of Mr. Reagan's proposed budget deserves support. We believe the president would increase his chances of Congressional approval by accepting a smaller increase in defense spending.

Borrowed Nonsense:

"Why do you want to enter the United States?" asked the immigration official.

"I want to lead a peaceful life and make an honest living," replied the immigrant.

"Good," said the official. "Neither of those fields is overcrowded."

The elderly gentleman, a pillar of his small community, was addressing a group of Boy Scouts. "Honesty, decency and good clean living should be a way of life," he said. "Boys, let me tell you that I have never taken a drink of liquor, I have never smoked a cigarette, I have never looked at a woman other than my wife, I have never left the table over-full and I have never gone to bed after 10 p.m. And do you know what? Tomorrow I will celebrate my 89th birthday." From the midst of the group of youngsters came the question, "How?"

Test Your Knowledge Of Household Energy Costs

??????????????????????????????????

Do You Know What May Halve Your Water Heating Costs?

Do you have a cool idea of the cost of heating water for the family's use each year? Most people don't know since that cost is usually buried in the over-all utility bills.

You might be surprised to learn that the cost for water heating is exceeded only by the cost of heating and cooling the home. According to Department of Energy (DOE) estimates, the typical yearly cost to heat water with a standard electric water heater is $400. That's based on DOE figures for a family of four using 64.3 gallons of hot water per day at an electric energy cost of 6.3 cents per kilowatt hour.

One way many people are cutting that cost by as much as half is through the installation of heat pump water heaters. In some cases they can save up to $200 a year. These are appliances that can be added to existing or new electric, oil or LP gas water heaters. They extract heat from the surrounding air and, through heat pump action, transfer the heat to the water, which is heated to 140 degrees.

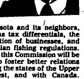
Do you know how much it costs to heat your hot water each year?

Heat pumps, like the Tempo 341, from Carrier, a subsidiary of United Technologies Corporation, also dehumidify, helping to dry out damp basements or humid environments in the summer. It also supplements air conditioning systems, offering extra energy savings.

If the heat pump water heater is installed near a waste heat source such as a washing machine, dryer or wood burning stove, it will make use of that heat, operating at an even greater efficiency.

To answer your questions about this new money saving product, Carrier has prepared a booklet called "Meet an Energy Saving Friend of the Family." For a free copy, write to Carrier, PO Box 4800, Syracuse, NY 13221.

CAPITOL COMMENTARY



by LeRoy Stumpf
State Senator — District I

This week, I met with Governor Perpich's staff to discuss a proposed increase in North Dakota's coal conversion tax.

The tax, which is levied on all electricity generated in coal-burning power plants in North Dakota, now costs consumers one-quarter mill per kilowatt hour. North Dakota Governor Allen Olson has proposed raising the tax to three mills per kilowatt hour.

Such a hefty tax increase would have a drastic effect on electric rates in many Northern Minnesota communities that buy part or all of their electricity from coal-burning plants in North Dakota. The Red Lake Electric Co-op, for instance, would have to increase its rates by 17 per cent as a result of the higher coal conversion tax.

I am very concerned about large rate hikes, particularly in these difficult economic times. I am working with Governor Perpich and other state leaders to try to convince North Dakota officials to reconsider this proposal.

I also want to report to you about the minimum pricing measure for farm products which is now being discussed in the Senate Agriculture and Natural Resources Committee. This measure would help ease the strain on our poor farm economy by setting up a multi-state grain "cartel" to effectively set the prices of commodities at an agreed-upon fair price (parity) when a minimal amount (60 per cent) of that commodity is produced within the states making up the cartel. Governor Perpich has indicated his support for this concept, and his Assistant Commissioner of Agriculture, Anne Kanten, discussed the proposal with our committee last Tuesday.

Some important questions remain about the proposal. A pact by several states to band together in this way might be challenged on Constitutional grounds as an unlawful restraint of interstate trade. The states also might risk pricing themselves out of the market by asking for a price higher than the world average.

Still, I believe the bill is a creative attempt to provide some much-needed help to our state's farms, which are so critical to Minnesota's overall, economic well-being. I will pay close attention to this measure in the coming weeks.

Finally, I want to tell you about my recent appointment to the Interstate Cooperation Commission. I will work with other members of the House, Senate and executive branch to represent the State of Minnesota in our dealings with other states, particularly those in the Midwest.

I see this assignment as an opportunity to help solve border differences between Minnesota and its neighbors, such as tax differentials, the migration of businesses, and Canadian fishing regulations. I hope this Commission will be able to foster better relations among the states of the Upper Midwest, and with Canada.

Please feel free to write to me with your comments or questions. My office address is 306 Capitol Building, St. Paul, Minnesota, 55155 and my phone number is (612) 296-8660.

REPORT

From The

Minnesota House of Representatives

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

Since the beginning of the legislative session, I have had many visitors from our district, including county commissioners from Red Lake, Pennington and Marshall counties, several members of REA Boards, and many other persons interested in state government decisions.

House committees have begun very busy schedules. I serve on the governmental operations committee, which deals with most of the legislation pertaining to state government. It is a very busy committee.

I also serve on the agriculture committee along with a sub-committee titled "export and marketing" division. The agriculture committee has heard testimony about the mortgage foreclosure moratorium bill. There is a considerable amount of debate on this bill, and we want to consider all the pro's and con's carefully.

The export and marketing division will be hearing presentations in the near future.

I serve on one other major committee — local and urban affairs. Last week this committee toured the city of Minneapolis and reviewed housing needs and urban problems in general. We visited areas where churches have set up soup lines and heath care clinics for the poor. Many churches have opened their doors to people who have no jobs, no unemployment compensation benefits, and basically no place to sleep or eat.

It was very sad to see this situation; however, it is there and it is real.

The unemployment situation is not good in many parts of the state. I serve on a sub-committee of the government operations committee which will be working on programs and proposals to try to create jobs for Minnesotans.

A considerable amount of debate and discussion about the college tuition reciprocity agreements between Minnesota and neighboring states is taking place. Governor Rudy Perpich has stated that he wants tuition reciprocity eliminated.

The program, which permits students in Minnesota and neighboring states to cross borders to attend colleges without paying non-resident fees, is costly to Minnesota because more students leave here to go to out-of-state colleges than come to Minnesota to enter colleges. Many lawmakers feel that at the current cost of educating a student in Minnesota, the net effect of cancelling reciprocity may be an even higher cost to the state.

Another potential drawback to cancelling tuition reciprocity is that it could threaten other reciprocity agreements, including the income tax agreement we have with Wisconsin. When all the interesting facts and figures on this matter are analyzed, I feel that it will not cost Minnesota any more to keep the present system than it would if we dropped the agreements.

I am very much opposed to the governor's proposal and will do all I can to try and convince him to keep the present agreements intact.

If you have any specific concerns or feel that I can be of assistance to you, please feel free to write to me at Room 263 State Office Building, St. Paul 55155 or call (612) 296-9918. Or watch for announcements of town meetings that Senator LeRoy Stumpf and I are holding around the district and come and visit with us.

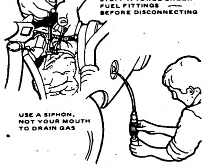
Get Out and Get Under... Safely



STUFF A TOWEL UNDER FUEL FITTINGS — BEFORE DISCONNECTING
USE A SIPHON, NOT YOUR MOUTH TO DRAIN GAS

Years ago, there was a popular song whose refrain went "...get out and get under, to fix that automobile." It's still something you have to do, but unfortunately, unless you do it right, a small repair can turn into a major headache.

Paul Weissler, Mechanix Illustrated's auto-service expert, makes these suggestions to home mechanics: Have the right tools, and be sure they are of good quality. Poor tools, or the wrong ones, can often cause injury to both yourself and the auto. Don't use metric tools on American-dimension parts or vice-versa.

When disconnecting a fuel line, stuff a towel under the fitting to catch fuel spillage. Then plug the line to stop the fuel flow.

Keep a fire extinguisher handy, no matter what job you're doing or how safe you think it is.

Always have adequate lighting, and if you use a portable bulb, it should have a metal safety case around it.

If you have to drain gas from the tank, use a siphon, not your mouth. A good gulp of gasoline can kill you.

If you have to use a bench grinder, use gloves to handle hot parts, and always wear safety goggles, even if the grinder itself has a guard.

Buttery Italian Biscuit Ring

- 1/3 c. LAND O LAKES® Sweet Cream Butter, softened
- 1 tsp. Italian herb seasoning*
- 1/8 tsp. garlic powder
- 2 (12 oz.) pkg. refrigerated big buttermilk biscuits

Heat oven to 400°. In small bowl combine all ingredients except biscuits; stir to blend. Spread one side of each biscuit with slightly less than 1 tsp. seasoned butter. Place biscuits on edge in 9" round baking pan, forming a ring. Bake 20 to 25 min. or until biscuits are deep golden brown. Let stand 5 min. to absorb butter. Remove from pan. YIELD: 20 biscuits.

WHILE CHAIRMAN Chris Twomey of the chamber of commerce legislative affairs committee listens thoughtfully, Rep. Wallace Sparby comments and Sen. LeRoy Stumpf awaits his turn to speak. The composite photo is from a meeting Saturday morning at which the local legislators reported to the public on activities in the legislature to date. The legislative report was sponsored by the legislative affairs committee.

Winterfest To Wind Up With Sunday Events

Al Rux, president of the Thief River Falls Jaycees, says he was encouraged by the participation shown during the first weekend of Winterfest activities, adding that he was looking forward to the additional events scheduled for this week. Noting that the Jaycees plan to make Winterfest an annual activity, he said the experience and recognition gained this year would only serve to make the event bigger and better in years to come.

Rux noted that he hoped they could build recognition for the event up to the same level as the "Summerfest" (Aquacade) project, adding that their primary goal was to promote tourism and stimulate business in an atmosphere of fun. Plans are to hold the event annually between Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays, and Rux noted that by having the dates set in advance, other organizations or individuals who wished to schedule activities around the Winterfest theme would be able to do so.

With the curling bonspiel, presidential blitz promotion, regional Jaycee broomball tournament, Sno Drifters Shoot-Out race and one of two bowling tournaments completed, Rux noted that a number of activities still remained on the agenda for this week.

Jaycees will be holding a "taco night" at 8 p.m. Tuesday, February 15, for all young men between the ages of 18 and 35. State Jaycee President Jim Neia will be attending, and Rux noted that the evening would provide an opportunity for young men in the area to have free lunch, fellowship and learn more about what the Jaycee organization stands for.

Other events scheduled for this coming weekend will include a gun and antique show set for 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday; Oldtimers hockey tournament Friday, Saturday and Sunday;

Sparby Named To Committee Of DFL Caucus

State Representative Wally Sparby, District 1B, has been elected by his colleagues to sit on the DFL caucus steering committee as the rural freshman legislator.

Steering committee handles internal party policies at the legislature. Each session new members are elected, including a first-term representative from a rural community and one from the metropolitan area.

"I am honored by my fellow representatives' vote of confidence," Sparby said. "The steering committee deals with issues that can lead to a smoother operation at the capitol, and I look forward to taking part in that."

"I hope to bring the rural point of view to the steering committee as well as represent my own district."

Jaycee Women Week Observed

Jaycee Women week in Thief River Falls February 13-19 has been officially proclaimed by Mayor Bob Carlson in recognition of the organization which has as part of its creed, "May we leave the world a better place because we lived and served within it".

Mayor Carlson notes that the Jaycee Women organization has been active in Minnesota for 33 years and now has a membership of more than 4,600 young women (ages 18-35) in over 266 communities of the state. The organization provides individual development to tomorrow's leaders.

State-wide activity of the organization includes on-going projects such as accent on youth, aid to retarded citizens, community service cystic fibrosis and kidney disease, epilepsy, Reyes syndrome and "Today's Woman", the mayor's proclamation notes.

Annual projects for the local chapter include the charity ball, assistance to the Jaycees in Operation Christmas and the Miss Thief River Falls

LHS Musical To Be Presented March 25-29

Casting is completed and rehearsals are now in progress for "Little Mary Sunshine," Lincoln high school's 1983 musical, to be given March 25, 26, 28 and 29. Taking principal roles are Susan Waale, Craig Goodrich, Kerry Wollin, Tammy Eckstein, Todd Wing, Barbara Laidley, Steward Sandstrom, Lee Genereux and Ryan Bakke.

One of the most successful off-Broadway shows ever produced in New York, the musical played to packed houses in Manhattan's Greenwich Village for almost three years (a record for an original musical) and won every award for its score and performance.

Musical is a spoof of old-time operetta favorites like "Rose Marie" and "Naughty Marietta." It has become something of an American institution, as well as an international favorite in such faraway places as England, Austria, Holland and Germany, according to director David Morken.

Coffee Day For Camp Will Be Held Feb. 25

Seventh annual Camp Confidence coffee day will be observed in Thief River Falls February 25 under sponsorship of the Thief River Falls Jaycee Women chapter.

Under the program, customers purchase a $1 coffee day button and are entitled to drink free coffee that day at participating restaurants and food counters. Cooperating with the program in Thief River Falls are the Rex cafe, Carol's cafe, Woolworth's and Country Kitchen.

Buttons will be sold by counter attendants at the various places and proceeds will go to Camp Confidence, the year-around camp on Sylvan Lake near Brainerd for mentally retarded citizens. The camp is free.

As an incentive for button salespeople, 30 vacation packages for two are to be awarded to the top button sellers in the state.

Bank Donates Prints To Hang In TRF Schools

Forty-five framed prints of masterpiece paintings are being donated to the elementary schools of Thief River Falls by the Northern state bank. The Zehlians, a Federated Women's club, and volunteers in the "Art Adventure" in the elementary schools have aided in selecting and organizing these paintings to be installed in each classroom, grades one through five, this week.

Last fall a selection committee of classroom teachers, art teachers from Franklin and Lincoln, students and art adventure volunteers and Zehlians met and set the following criteria for selection: That the artists be master painters, not illustrators or cartoonists; that the subject be of interest to children; that color be of primary importance; that prints be of high quality, matted and framed to last many years. Different prints will be within each building.

Members of the selection committee were Jan Peterson, Elayne Sandahl, Marian Gigstad, Barb Myhre, Karen Ellertson, Marion Madden, Don Fugleberg, Don Lerud, Tara Cross, Jamie Madden, Matthew Erickson, Ina Thorsgaard, Margaret Saetre and Gretchen Beito.

Winslow Homer's "Breezing Up," Renoir's "Girl With a Watering Can," Tuner's "Keelmen Heaving Coals in the Moonlight," Millet's "The Gleaners," Picasso's "Le Gourment" and Wyeth's "Faraway" are among those selected.

Directors of the bank and the many community people involved in the project wish to give children the opportunity to live with fine paintings and to help them grow in the ability to respect and value the expression of artists of other ages. The idea for the project was generated by art adventure volunteers at Knox school who noted that children remembered and asked about Breton's "Song of the Lark" and Gilbert Stuart's "George Washington" that they had seen in their second and third grade classrooms.

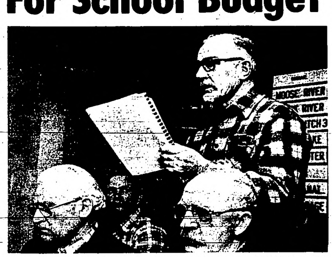
Attendance Small Thurs. For School Budget Meet



HARLEY SHURSON, one of the viewers appointed by the Red Lake watershed district for work on the Black River dam project in Red Lake county, responded to questions Thursday at a hearing on the project. The hearing was conducted in the watershed district's offices in Thief River Falls. Located in Wylie township, the dam will impound 4,700 acre feet of water to assist in reducing downstream flooding and is estimated to cost $1,019,000. Funding will be composed of $450,000 from the legislative commission on Minnesota resources (LCMR), $335,000 from the Lower Red River management board and $234,000 from the Red Lake watershed district.

Approximately 100 people — somewhat less than the number attending the girls' basketball game in the same building — assembled in the Lincoln senior high school auditorium Thursday evening for a meeting on a proposed $944,000 in cuts for the 1983-84 school district budget.

Purpose of the meeting was two-fold: To further inform the public of the proposals being made for budget cutting and to permit residents of the district to provide their input and ideas on the budgeting process for the coming school year. Only five people testified at the meeting — four of them members of the school district faculty.

School board chairman Harry Sjulson of St. Hilaire opened the meeting and pointed out the anticipated shortfall in the district's budget. He added that cuts are not easy but that the budget must be balanced. He introduced Supt. Robert Block who reviewed the proposal presented to the school board by the administration the previous week. The review included a brief explanation of the reasons, rationale or results of proposed actions in each area.

Supt. Block said he had recommended closing of Knox elementary school rather than Northrop because there is another elementary school located in the Knox area (Mark Twain elementary) and the rooms at Northrop are larger than in Knox.

Regarding proposal for a four-day school week, he said that savings would be primarily in transportation and personnel, although greater savings could be possible in the future. Presently all contracts call for a five-day school week, he said, and a four-day week would have to be considered as contracts come due.

Supt. Block also noted that he and the board are concerned about the larger class sizes which would result from some of the cut-backs.

First to testify was Mike Lehrer, instrumental music instructor and past president of the Thief River Falls Education association. He prefaced his remarks by noting he had stated at the end of the local teachers' strike a year ago that he hoped "we could all be on the same team" in an effort to provide quality educational opportunity for students in this district.

Lehrer questioned figures used in the budget reduction summary, stating that cuts were being made from a list of figures which were projected expenditures without the cuts. When those projections were included, he said, some areas showed an increase over the current 1982-83 term rather than a decrease as indicated in the summary. "I think we should look at where we are this year instead of where we would have been next year," he said.

Jim Fremstad said that in his position as counselor he could see a direct correlation between the need of students and the time a teacher has to spend with them and he expressed his concern about increasing class sizes. If cuts are to be made, he said, they should be made in areas where they least affect direct contact with students.

Gary Page questioned why a projected $300,000 shortfall in the budget required a $900,000 reduction in expenditures. He expressed his appreciation for

Black River Dam Hearing Recessed

Because of questions which arose at the Thursday afternoon hearing on the Black River dam and flood control project, the Red Lake watershed district board recessed the hearing to February 28 and has ordered a committee from the board to serve as viewers on the project.

Landowners in the area of the proposed dam and impoundment in Wylie township of Red Lake county were among some 25 poeple in attendance at the hearing conducted in the watershed district offices in Thief River Falls. They questioned the acreages which were included in the project and the valuation placed on land in the 100-year flood plain.

According to the engineering report on the $1,019,000 project, the project consists of a multi-purpose controlled outlet dam on the Black river to increase flood relief on the Red Lake river and the Red river of the north. The dam would create 4,700 acre feet of available water storage to reduce flood peaks on the mainstream rivers. Outlets would permit Black river flood flows to pass with minimal loss of storage capability, while control gates could be closed when mainstream peak flows occur.

Rationale for expenditure of the funding for upstream control is the extensive damage which flooding causes. The 1979 flood, which is estimated to be about a 100-year recurrence magnitude for the Red river, caused a reported $113 million in damage. It is generally recognized that reduction of the flood damage requires development of flood plain zoning measures, dike construction, drainage control measures and impoundment construction.

Since few large impoundment sites are available in the valley, numerous smaller impoundments are necessary to reduce the flood flow. There is a limited recorded flow history on the Black river, the engineer's report indicates. In 1978 the Black river flood peak preceded the Red Lake river crest by four days. In 1979 the Black river's second crest preceded the Red Lake river crest by only one day. Travel time of floodwater from the Black river to Crookston is about 18 hours.

BLACK RIVER DAM being proposed for construction in Wylie township of Red Lake county would impound water from approximately 75 per cent of the river's 148 square mile watershed. The project is estimated to cost $1,019,000 and would assist in flood control along the Red Lake river and Red river of the north.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Swanson And Thompson Vows Said At Redeemer

Nancy Rae Swanson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Swanson, rural Thief River Falls, became the bride of James Erling Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Erling Thompson, also of rural Thief River Falls, at a four o'clock ceremony at Redeemer Lutheran church in this city.

Approximately 200 attended the wedding with Rev. Don Knudson officiating. Joyce Halbasch, a friend of the family, played "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," as the bride was escorted to the altar by her father. During the ceremony, Jane Halbasch and Brenda Marben sang "Endless Love," "Wedding Song," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Arrangements of gladioli and carnations in white and purple graced the chancel. Purple and white satin bows marked the pews.

The bride was attired in a white, floor-length gown made by her sister Julie Sullivan. It was styled with a satin strapless underdress topped by an embroidered overgown of sheer lace featuring a mandarin collar, long sleeves, and a slightly gathered skirt encircled at the waistline by a satin ribbon. Pearl buttons created back interest. A white crepe covered hat with face netting held her shoulder length veil. Her jewelry consisted of pearl earrings and her mother's locket. She carried a silk bouquet featuring three large white mums, white roses, mauve azaleas, babies' breath and ferns with white ribbon streamers.

Lori Thompson, Minneapolis, a sister of the groom, was maid of honor. Bridesmatrons were the bride's sisters: Mrs. Kent (Susan) LeMoine, Mrs. Tom (Wendy) Goddard, Mrs. Randy (Cory) Jorde, all of Thief River Falls; Mrs. Danny (Julie) Sullivan, Moorhead, and Mrs. Gary (Jody) Usitalo of Hancock, Mich. Their mauve colored long-sleeved chiffon gowns with pleated bodices, buttoned in front, were fashioned with ruffles on the collar and cuffs. They wore matching pillbox hats trimmed with small mauve mums on the sides. They carried nosegays of gardenias in shades of lavender and purple, white stephanotis and babies breath, accented with lace and satin ribbon. Their pearl earrings and necklaces were gifts from the bride. Junior bridesmaid was Kara LeMoine, a niece of the bride. She was attired like the bride's attendants and carried a white lace basket filled with rose petals which she scattered along the aisle. Serving as flower girl was Kristine Goddard, also a niece of the bride. Her gown was of the same style and fabric as the bride's. She carried a miniature nosegay of white stephanotis and greenery. Both wore wreaths of white and mauve flowers, accented with babies' breath and a white satin bow. Their pearl necklaces were gifts from the bride.

The rings were carried by Marc Severson, a cousin of the groom. Like the groom, he wore a black tuxedo and bow tie.

Danny Thorstad, a friend of the couple, was best man. Groomsmen were Darin Olimb, Warroad, Joe Kraska, Jeff Mongoven, friends of the couple, Gary Usitalo, Hancock, Mich., brother-in-law of the bride, and John Thompson, brother of the groom. They wore gray tuxedos with white button mums pinned on their lapels. The groom's boutonniere featured three white roses backed with fern.

Ushers were Bob Fitzgerald and Joel Hallstrom of Bemidji.

The mother of the bride wore a coral chiffon street-length dress with a rounded yoke, a pearl necklace and a corsage of white roses. The groom's mother was attired in a light mauve, crepe street-length dress with ruffles around the V-neckline and on the long sleeves. Her corsage featured a large wine colored rose and two smaller mauve roses. All flowers were made by the bride and her sisters.

Honored guests were Clara Lietzow, Gunda Thompson, grandmothers of the groom, Tillie Conklin and Mabel Furr, great-aunts of the bride. The bride's personal attendant was Robyn Dallman.

For the reception that followed the church parlors were decorated with purple and white wedding bells and streamers. Carnations in purple and white centered the tables. Highlighting the guest book table were pictures of the couple's parents on their wedding day.

Host and hostess were Dr. and Mrs. John Seaverson, uncle and aunt of the groom. Mary Jane Johnson, a friend of the couple, was at the guest book, and Carrie Thompson, a cousin of the groom, ladled the punch.

The four tiered wedding cake, iced in white and decorated with purple roses, was topped by a satin wedding bell backed by a lace heart. It was baked and decorated by Margaret Rupprecht and cut and served by Mrs. Elaine Koop, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Carolyn Casavan, Wessington, S.D., aunt of the groom.

Mrs. Pearl Wold and Mrs. Joan Robson, aunts of the bride and groom, respectively, poured the coffee. Waitresses were Lisa and Debbie Torgerson, Cindy Russell and Kristie Rupprecht.

Following a wedding trip to the Twin Cities, the couple is at home in rural Thief River Falls. The bride is employed by Falls Red Owl, and the groom by E.T. Bees, J.T. Honey company. Both are graduates of Lincoln high school. The groom is also a graduate of Northland Community college. Photo, Lund Photography, Roseau.

Attendance At Budget Cut Meet Small

such things as high school music programs and concerts for the public and said he believes many people, like himself, would rather put out a little more money than lose such programs.

"It would be more than a dollars and cents loss if we lose such things," he said. He also expressed the opinion that the public wasn't ready to buy a new building (a recent high school bond issue failed almost four-to-one) but would probably be willing to pay more for education.

John Egge suggested that rather than going to a four-day week, the district use five-day weeks in spring and fall and "bank" the extra days for a six-week winter closing, thereby reducing energy costs by having schools closed during one of the colder times of the year.

He also suggested retaining the "cheaper" extra-curricular activities which in some cases involve relatively large numbers of students. He singled out the hockey program as being expensive in relation to the number of students involved.

Egge was also critical of the committee appointed to make a set of recommendations on extra-curricular activities, saying the board had "put the fox in charge of the hen house". He questioned the seemingly minor reduction of administrative personnel in the budget cuts and stated that the student class size ratio at Thief River Falls was among the worst in the state.

Charlie Cornell expressed the opinion that the figures on average class size were deceptive. The averages projected would be appreciated, he said with tongue in cheek, since they would mean a reduction of about 10 students from his present classes. He said that class size averages are determined by counting all school personnel, including administrators, and that because some programs like special education have only several students per teacher, the actual class sizes in a number of cases may be much larger than the averages listed.

In response to questions or in further explanation, Supt. Block explained that decisions were being made now because of time required for notification, hearings and postings regarding personnel changes. Lay-offs can't be made after June 1, he said, so the process which may involve lay-offs has to be started now.

Regarding a $900,000 cut to cover a $300,000 deficit, he said that the $358,000 deficit is projected "assuming the best of all possible worlds", including full basic aids from the state of $1,475 per pupil unit. If the basic aid is reduced to $1,400, he said, the district would be short another $216,000. Five per cent delinquency on local taxes (1982 delinquency was just over five per cent) could cost another $170,000.

Supt. Block said that energy saving efforts are much better than they were three years ago but he recognized that more could and would be done.

He assured those in attendance that class size averaged were determined by considering only classroom teachers, not administrative staff as Cornell had testified. Defending extra-curricular activities, he said he believed the community would soon realize their value "if we just dump 500 kids on the street at 3 p.m."

With no other parties indicating a desire to testify, chairman Sjuleson closed the meeting within an hour after it started.

Black River Dam Hearing Is Recessed

for the Black river dam are as follows:

(1) A dam providing maximum water storage capability at least cost, consistent with all dam safety requirements;

(2) A normally open gated outlet works capable of passing all reasonably expected stream flows without using more than a minimal amount of the available storage capacity;

(3) A reliable gate closing mechanism that can be worked during infrequent flood emergency situations;

(4) A reliable gate closing mechanism that can be worked during infrequent flood emergency situations;

(4) An operations plan under which gate closing and opening decisions are tied to flood flows on the Red and Red Lake rivers; and

(5) a spillway system that can safely pass flood flows once the storage capacity has been filled.

Black river drainage area is 142 square miles and outlets into the Red Lake river at Huot. The proposed dam site is about eight miles upstream from the outlet and would include 107.7 square miles or about 75 per cent of the Black river drainage area. Runoff from an additional 16 per cent of the Black river drainage area is attenuated by the existing Baird-Beyer and Goose Lake impoundments.

Proposed dam embankment is about 1,000 feet north of Red Lake county road 13 where the river valley is 1,000 feet wide and has a maximum depth of 36 feet.

With the proposed 100-year flood pool elevation at 988 feet above sea level, the inundated area would be 400 acres. At the freeboard flood elevation of 992 the area flooded would be about 500 acres. There would be a small permanent pool at the dam site — about 12 acres — with a typical depth of six feet and excavated during dam construction.

The earth-fill dam is to be constructed from borrow available at the site. Sideslopes would be at three-to-one grade and seeded to grass with a 20-foot stability bench included on both the upstream and downstream faces of the dam at 970 elevation. Rock rip rap will be installed below elevation 968 on the upstream slope for erosion protection. Top of the embankment will be crowned 16 feet wide with a centerline elevation on 992.5 feet.

The gated outlet is designed to pass 2,500 cubic feet per second with an 11-foot increase in pool elevation which corresponds to a 900-acre feet reduction in available storage capacity. An intake weir with 62 feet of length is provided, including stoplog bays to adjust the pool level between 953 and 965 feet of elevation.

Downstream from the intake weir, two 6x14 feet grates will be installed. Conduit through the embankment will be a 12-foot square box culvert. A tower spillway with 120 feet of weir at 985.5 feet of elevation discharges through the conduit, entering downstream of the control gates.

A vegetated spillway 660 feet long at 988 feet of elevation is located west of the embankment. Since the spillway will be infrequently used — about once every 100 years — and then only for short durations, no rip rap is being used there. Erosion on the emergency spillway cannot endanger the dam and the minor erosion which may occur is considered more cost-effective to repair than to prevent.

Property most affected is the Donald Schirrick farm where the structure will be placed. Other affected properties will be the lands inundated during the infrequent use of the flood pool. Land rights and highway costs in the project are placed at $97,000 with engineering, administration, legal and contingencies costs estimated at $215,500. Actual construction costs are estimated at $706,500.

Construction is expected to include 700 cubic yards of concrete, 1,200 square feet of deck, 300 cubic yards of rip rap, 300 cubic yards of gravel drain, 5,000 cubic yards of core trench excavation, 150,000 cubic yards of embankment fill and 25 acres of seeding. Gates and lifts are expected to cost $100,000.

Senator Would Spread Heavy Vehicle Use Tax

Senator Rudy Boschwitz has introduced legislation that would lessen and spread out the new heavy vehicle use tax for truckers.

The Boschwitz bill would reduce the heavy vehicle use tax to $1,200 and phase it in by thirds over three years. The present law, adopted as part of the Surface transportation act last session, assesses a $1,600 to $1,900 fee with a phase-in which begins July 1, 1984 and ends July 1, 1987.

The bill is similar to an amendment to the surface transportation act offered by Boschwitz. "I felt then, as I feel now, that it is absurd to expect an industry as hard hit by the recession, and deregulation as the trucking industry to absorb tax increases of over 700 per cent.

"No one can dispute that the trucking industry is in serious trouble. Since 1980 in Minnesota alone six major interstate carriers have gone out of business, and six other such carriers have either filed Chapter 11 reorganization or have substantially cut their services," Boschwitz said. "These 12 companies generated $168,000,000 of revenue in 1982 and employed over 3,300 people. Scores and scores of smaller carriers have simply disappeared in Minnesota. Who knows how many owner-operators have gone under.

"In fact," he added, "in the last two years, the entire trucking industry has had 202 established large interstate carriers go out of business and an additional 57 carriers which either filed for Chapter 11 or significantly reduced services. This has cost more than 49,000 people their jobs.

"We must go back and reduce the heavy vehicle use taxes. We cannot expect an industry which made only $210 million in profits on $44 billion in revenues (½ of one per cent rate of return) to absorb the increases which passed. The use tax increases passed equal $2 billion. . . 10 times the entire industry's net profit. Even under my bill it will still be an additional billion dollars."

Auditions Set For FFCC Music Scholarships

Auditions for music scholarships at Fergus Falls community college (FFCC) will be held at 1 p.m. on Saturday, February 26 and April 16 in Room h 624 of the humanities building. High school musicians who are presently seniors, and who intend to enroll at FFCC for the 1983-84 school year are eligible to apply. Awards are made on the basis of talent.

At the present time 27 FFCC students are recipients of music scholarships. At the recent SPAM benefit, over $2,000 was donated by Fergus Falls area music boosters for scholarships for the 1983-84 school year. Tax-deductible donations are still being received by the Fergus Falls area foundation, which awards the grants to talented FFCC musicians.

Gloria Swanson Selected For OYWA Award

Gloria J. Swanson, formerly of Thief River Falls and now living in Minneapolis, has been selected as an Outstanding Young Woman of America for 1982. The announcement was made by Margaret Arnold, chairwoman of the board of advisors for the OYWA association in Montgomery, AL.

Purpose of this award is to recognize young women between ages 21 and 36 who have achieved success within their professional lives and who also give their time, talents, and dedication to enrich the quality of American life.

She is presently serving as a consultant in aging ministries to the Northwest Conference of the Covenant Church of America, is active in the Gray Panthers, Minnesota Gerontological soceity, Minnesota Women's Political caucus, the Twin Cities National Organization for Women, a volunteer to patients and families with chronic illness at Abbott-Northwestern hospital and a facilitator for a support group of persons with chromic lung disease at the American Lung association.

Kids Invited To Address U.S. Leaders

"Dear Mr. President, This is the biggest problem facing children today and here's what we can do about it. . ."

Thousands of children are invited to address top government leaders on this subject as Save the Children, the international child assistance agency, begins its sixth annual national letter-writing campaign.

Campaign will culminate during Save the Children week, April 25 to May 1, in Washington, D.C. At that time all letters will be presented at a children's hearing in the U.S. House of Representatives and at the White House. Concerns mentioned most frequently by the children will form the 1983 children's agenda for action. This agenda, as presented to members of the executive and legislative branches of government, directly expresses young children's views on the problems they face today.

Save the Children Week will be proclaimed in each state by the governor. Julie Andrews is serving as honorary chairperson.

Letters should be mailed to Save the Children, Dept. P, Box 911, Westport, Ct. 06881 by April 15. Name and address of each school and the teacher's name are also required in order to receive a response.

Tax Strategies Can Help Farm Tax Liability

If you farm for a living, such risks as sudden market fluctuations or bad weather are part of your life. No two years are likely to generate the same income or expenses. That's true no matter what type of farm you operate.

Nevertheless, you can counter certain hazards of farming by developing tax strategies to help prepare your 1982 tax return on farming income, says the Minnesota Society of CPAs. In three years farm income has fallen 40 per cent, down to $19 billion, the lowest level since the Great Depression. Because of these economic conditions, tax savings become all the more urgent.

If you operate a farm as an individual you must complete tax Schedule F with your Form 1040. There were two million of these forms filed with 1981 tax returns.

Income from all sources, including loans from the Commodity Credit corporation (CCC) has to be reported on your return. This year a record total of CCC income may be reported on farmers' taxes. For fiscal year 1982 federal outlays through the CCC grew to nearly $12 million, four times the original government estimate.

Depending on your financial picture, CPAs note, when you first get a CCC loan you can elect to report it in the year received, or in the year the crop is actually sold.

An advantage of treating the loan as income for 1982 is that it tends to match related farming expenses, especially if you are a cash-method taxpayer. Also, if you have a net loss for 1982, reporting a CCC loan now may enable you to utilize your regular exemptions and itemized deductions you might otherwise forfeit because of the loss.

To explain further, if in 1982 you received a CCC loan for a crop of spring wheat, that income may have enabled you to finish the year with a gain instead of a loss. If so, you can use your regular exemptions and deductions to reduce the gain for your taxes.

Then, in 1983 when the spring wheat is sold, you repay the loan. This won't affect your 1983 income because you already reported the loan in 1982. Any loss on the sale would be a deduction; any extra profit you incur would be an extra gain.

Generally, the higher your annual income, the heavier your tax liability. Try to declare extra income in the year your total income is lower.

If you received income from crop insurance or federal disaster payments, it may be advantageous to postpone reporting that income until the insured crop normally might have been sold. Insurance premiums are deductible in the year they are paid.

If you are uncertain whether to report certain income in 1982, or delay until next year, CPAs say it is generally better to defer it. An unexpected deduction may arise in 1983 and reduce your taxes. Remember, too, the final portion of President Reagan's tax reduction plan is scheduled to go into effect in July, and that should lower overall taxes for 1983.

Don's forget other tax savings, such as tax credits for diesel fuel and gasoline, if the price included state and federal taxes for fuel used off the highway for farm machinery. Other deductions include the costs of licenses, advertising, attorney fees, breeding and veterinary fees, interest and repairs and maintenance.

Finally, remember to include the ordinary deductions claimed by most taxpayers. If your spouse works and you file a joint return, you can take a marital deduction of five per cent of the lower income. Maximum deduction is $1,500. You may also be eligible for the dependent care tax credit, if you must pay someone to care for your children or other dependents while you and your spouse work. Appropriate portions of costs of your house, automobile, phone and utilities may also be deducted if used for business. If your 1982 income is substantially higher than that of the previous four years think about income averaging as a means to reduce your taxes.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

Regarding Jerry Paulson's letter to the Editor. I was offended and disgusted reading the one-sided and obviously personal attack he made.

I don't feel this should be a gossip column for people to air their dirty laundry. He obviously could have made his point without dragging out details which may or may not be true. He was just looking for a way to embarrass and hurt. I don't feel he's looking out for the best interest of his daughter dragging her name into it.

Divorce is painful enough without mudslinging.

Simplified Tax Form 1040EZ Now Available

New, highly simplified form, called 1040EZ is now available to over 20 million single wage earners, according to the Internal Revenue service. 1040EZ is for single taxpayers with one personal exemption and no dependents. Taxpayer's income must come from wages, salaries, tips and no more than $400 in interest.

Taxpayer can claim the new partial deduction for charitable contributions on the 1040EZ. For single persons, this deduction is 25 per cent of the first $100 donated to charity.

Form 1040EZ contains only 11 lines, half the number on form 1040A for 1982. Like the 1982 form 1040A, it is divided into steps that guide the taxpayer through the form. Simple language of the form and instructions, which complements the graphic layout, makes the form easy to use, IRS says.

Most of the instructions needed to complete form 1040EZ are on the back of the form. However, this year's 1040EZ filers will need the 1040A instructions for the tax table and the special worksheet used to figure the deduction for charitable contributions. Becuase of this, and because the IRS wants all 1040A filers to know about this new short form, the 1040EZ is included in the 1982 form 1040A tax package.

If you did not receive one of the short form tax packages, forms are available through IRS distribution centers and at banks, post offices and public libraries.

Mental Health Is Harmed By Joblessness

"There is good evidence that losing one's job can increase health risks, intensify chronic and latent disorders, alter usual patterns of health-seeking behavior, and exact numerous other social and interpersonal costs," say two researchers in an article appearing in last month's "American Psychologist."

The article, written by Boston college phychologist Ramsey Liem and Brandeis university sociologist Paula Rayman, views recent studies on the social and personal costs of unemployment. It also makes suggestions about areas needing further study.

According to the authors, because unemployment touches all aspects of life, it is "inescapably a problem for interdisciplinary research requiring conceptual tools that can link distinctly economic, sociological, and psychological processes."

For a reprint of the article, "Health and Social Costs of Unemployment, Research and Policy Considerations," write to: Ramsey Liem, department of psychology, Boston college, Chestnut hill, Mass. 02167.

FACTUAL NEWS REPORTING
EFFECTIVE ADVERTISING

A "Perk" that Irks

Privilege of elected U.S. Congressmen and Senators to have free postal service to provide their districts with worthwhile information is a legitimate one. There should be a free flow of knowledge from the offices in Washington to the folks back home so they will know — or at least have the opportunity to know — about things going on in the Capitol that affect them.

We scarcely consider word that Sen. Dave Durenberger has been named "legislator of the year" by the national association of regional councils to be worthwhile information, but the senator apparently believes it is. That word arrived yesterday in an envelope proclaiming it was a "public document" and "official business" and bearing the senator's facsimile signature where a stamp should be.

Now, we don't consider the national association of regional councils to be a very influential group with the public. In fact, only six of the 10 regional councils in Minnesota are members and only 300 belong nationwide. But the senator must believe his selection constituted some sort of endorsement — or at least implied it — or he wouldn't have been so eager to share the "news" with the public.

Logically, the release should have come from the association itself. If that group did not want to spend its own government money to publicize the selection, Sen. Durenberger's campaign committee should have shelled out the bucks for postage and materials. The public (meaning taxpayers) should not have had to share in the cost.

Ira Jackson, president of the association of regional councils, was quoted as stating of Durenberger: "He has chosen the fundamental issues of how we can better govern ourselves. In this he has invested his considerable energy, talents and abilities, and he has demonstrated his wisdom."

In trying to blow his own horn at public expense in this instance, we believe, he has demonstrated not only a lack of wisdom but a fundamental disregard for the best interests of those he was elected to serve.

Gramm's Boot An Insult

Following editorial is from the Dallas (TX) Morning News:

The House Democrats' decision to discipline conservative Democrat Phil Gramm is one that their party may live to regret. Gramm's decision to change his party rather than change his philosophy underlines that prospect.

The matter of party discipline has troubled the professionals since parties emerged in the early 19th century. Lacking the formal tools for enforcing discipline that exist in the parliamentary system, major American parties have never been able to get their members in Congress to move in lock step.

And yet the structure of the two-party system has been valuable in making the process of democratic representation work. A Congress made up of 535 parties-of-one would be able to produce only chaos.

The parties have been most successful when their leaders could mesh together a wide variety of personalities, philosophies and regional viewpoints. By any measurement, the most skilled at this subtle balancing in this century has been the Democratic Party. It is no coincidence, we think, that the Democratic Party has also been the most successful in getting its policies translated into law.

For many years, the Democratic Party was a wide umbrella, under which could be found rich socialists and poor farmers, civil-rights activists and segregationists, businessmen and labor unionists, Americans of nearly every faction, race, region and creed.

Since the Reconstruction era, a major part of that Democratic coalition, the bedrock of its power base, has been the South, a region known for conservative views and conservative representatives. Conservative Democrats may not have had decisive influence, but they have had input, they have had status and have been allowed to work within the party process as first-class citizens. The Democratic Party has won many elections, local, state and national, because voters have been confident that they could be both sincere conservatives and good Democrats.

The House Democrats now seem to be saying to millions of conservative Democrats out in the country that that situation is changing. Their punishment of Phil Gramm implicitly warns other conservatives in their ranks to beware of excess zeal. And beyond the House itself, all those voters who share Gramm's views must be wondering whether their views are welcome now in the Democratic Party.

Phil Gramm is an outspoken, uncompromising man of strong opinions. The national Democratic leaders who favor liberal solutions to national problems must have found him a difficult man to deal with. But he has never concealed either his convictions or his determination to work for them from the voters of his district. They elected him knowing — and rather more accurately than most voters in America — exactly what they were getting.

The Democratic leaders in the House undoubtedly feel that they have made an example of Phil Gramm. That they have. The future will decide just what sort of example.

Unwise Withholding

Following editorial is from the Grand Rapids Herald-Review:

"We believe Congress should repeal the interest and dividend withholding law as unfair, cumbersome, costly and detrimental to economic recovery," declares former Gov. Elmer L. Andersen in an editorial in the Princeton Union-Eagle, the newspaper he publishes.

"Basically, we believe our lawmakers should go back to the original philosophy of establishing the standards by which we govern ourselves, and focus on those who depart from them rather than hassling everyone with requirements, regulations and controls which, for the most part, are unnecessary and frequently harmful," the editorial concludes.

In simple terms, the new law will require financial institutions to deduct ten per cent of the interest or dividends earned on savings or investments, effective July 1, 1983. Money would then go to the Internal Revenue Service in much the same way payroll deductions are now handled.

It may have been passed only because it was included by the Senate in the tax bill which authorized an additional ten weeks of unemployment compensation for workers who have exhausted other benefits. Eighth district Congressman James L. Oberstar says that he worked without success to have the tax provision deleted, but felt compelled to vote for the overall bill and its unemployment compensation payments. He has since sponsored H.R. 7055, a bill to repeal "this burdensome legislation."

Sponsors insist that the tax law is designed to catch a small minority who evade taxes on their interest and dividends. In fact, the law will penalize the great majority of savers and investors who now pay their taxes faithfully. It will allow the government to hold the funds for a year or more before it is determined if the government is entitled to all or part of what was deducted.

It is ridiculous to demand another layer of red tape when the IRS already has tools for catching evaders. Every financial institution must send a copy of interest earnings, for example, to the IRS as well as to the account holders. An IRS study from 1981 documents that taxpayer compliance is about 96.7 per cent when the IRS has information reporting, as it does from 1099 forms from all interest and dividends earnings. Who will pay the cost of another reporting process?

"For relatively minimal gains in revenues, withholding tax (on interest and dividends) will impose heavy paperwork burdens on financial institutions, businesses, taxpayers, the U.S. government and a great many retirees," Congressman Oberstar declares.

It's true that there will be some exemptions among the low income and elderly people. But the applications for exemptions will add another complicated batch of paperwork for those who may already understandably be somewhat confused about the mass of records they must keep.

Saddling honest taxpayers with this complicated, clumsy system to boost tax revenues doesn't make good sense. Congress should repeal it.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Patient in doctor's office: "If I had known I was going to live this long, Doc, I would have taken better care of myself."

Lady at cocktail party: "What became of that pretty maid who was mixing cocktails a few minutes ago?"

Hostess: "Oh, are you looking for a refill?"

Lady: "No, I'm looking for my old fool."

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

Thirty years ago I saw an interesting employment application. There were three unique questions: (1) How much money do you expect to be earning in one year, two years and three years? (2) What kind of an assignment would satisfy you after five years? (3) What is your definition of "the good life"?

I asked the small businessman who used this application why these questions were important. His answer was simple and sensible. He wanted to know, before hiring and training anyone, whether his job opportunity would satisfy the applicant. If the applicant's expectations were beyond what the job and firm could offer, he felt that the applicant should be told.

At the time I had some reservations about this approach. As time passed, I saw how well his system worked. He took more time to fill a vacancy, but he had very little personnel turnover. He hired only people who could be happy and satisfied with what he had to offer.

Recently, as part of a course on The American Business System, I have been asking all of the students to submit a paragraph on their definition of "the good life". The idea is to see whether our next generation has objectives that can be attained in our free enterprise society. I think you might like some insight into what the next generation of Americans feel is really important so what follows are excerpts from some of these paragraphs:

"I want good health, a solar heated house in a safe neighborhood, a small economical car, good medical care, access to recreational and cultural activities, and a job that gives me the money to afford all of these things."

"If I could maintain my physical and mental health, have a happy marriage and be financially secure, with a challenging and constructive job. . ."

"Being well off financially healthy, having a nice house, car, and possibly a family, with a cabin and a boat."

"The good life does not include all glitter and glamour, as portrayed in movies. I want a job that I can look forward to every day without boredom, one that challenges me. I want a farm, a loving wife with kids who would respect me and whom I could love. But most of all, I want good health."

"A good marriage, family and happiness."

"Being happy with what I have and who I am, no matter how bad things get."

"Security, happiness, good health, and knowing that there is a God and believing in heaven."

"Marriage and a family are the most important part for me."

"Since you can not take it with you, the good life is being content with what I have and not upset over what I do not have."

"I want to get married, have a family, a nice house, a good job that is challenging, close friends, a free country, and, most important, to feel worthwhile and happy."

"I want self respect, more love for everybody, a stable steady financial situation, and special people with whom I can communicate, including friends, a wife and family members."

"Freedom, justice, honest relationships, happiness, a family, self esteem, security, and someone to get me up every morning in order for me to get anything done."

"Being happy and content with my future career, boss, peers, secure and resourceful, having a home, good family life, being respected and surrounded by wonderful and caring friends."

"Living in a free country, having religious freedom and a family, with job security in a job I like and where I can make a comfortable living."

"Money, luxuries, success and being important are not my answer. My faith, love and trust in God, contentment, a good marriage and a happy family and self esteem are all part of it. Frankly, my belief in God is all I really need. The rest is just a dividend that I could live without."

"The right attitude, being relaxed and content with what you have instead of being upset about what you do not have, coupled with faith and trust in God, is all I need."

"How you look and feel about your life determines whether you are pleased and will enjoy the good life. I plan to always be a positive person."

Based on this brief look, which is representative of the views of college freshmen and sophomores in some of my classes, I have a good feeling about our country's future. These kids, our future, are solid thinkers whose perspective seems clear. They are willing to work for what they get. . . they have faith. . . they believe in and want freedom. . . and they want an opportunity, not a handout. I am proud of them. I feel that our future is going to be in good heads, hearts and hands.

That's Straight Talk!

FARMER UPDATE
Many bushels of wheat coming out of the farmer-held reserve have now been contracted. Approximately 40% of the wheat coming out in this area has been contracted, in contrast to 10% to 20% in many other areas. For this reason, we feel the market could slip further when the farmers haul in their wheat for cash on the maturity date of their loan.
We are also seeing a lot of bushels being forward-contracted for August through January delivery from farmers who are signing up in the P.I.K. program. We feel you should be watching these forward markets closely and take advantage of these marketing strategies when you feel they are favorable.
We appreciate your confidence in us doing the best possible job of marketing your grain and purchasing your supplies.

Soo Board To Ask Change In Ownership

Board of directors of Soo Line railroad company declared a quarterly dividend of 60 cents per share on the common stock of the company recently. Dividend will be payable April 29 to shareholders of record April 8.

Board also approved a resolution to be presented to shareholders at the 1983 annual meeting on April 20 calling for the establishment of a holding company. Plan approved by the board recommends that a new company called Soo Line corporation become the owner of the Soo Line railroad company and its subsidiaries.

Approval of the holding company proposal requires an affirmative vote of two-thirds of the outstanding shares of stock of the Soo Line railroad company. Proposal is also contingent upon receiving favorable tax rulings with respect to the exchange or conversion of shares. Soo Line has 9,595,455 shares of common stock outstanding.

Commenting on the Board's action, Soo Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Thomas M. Beckley said formation of a holding company would give Soo more flexibility in managing non-carrier assets as well as reducing governmental restrictions on financing and would facilitate diversification into other lines of business if that becomes desirable.

Details of the proposal to establish a holding company will be contained in the proxy statement to be mailed to shareholders in March.

Banker Survey Predicts Areas For Recovery

Minnesota's bankers see construction and high-tech manufacturing as the industries that will lead the economic turn around toward recovery, according to a Minnesota Bankers association survey released today at Economic Options '83, a program designed to probe the state's economic future.

Bankers predict increases in capital spending of 18 to 20 per cent in these industries, with full recovery in these areas by the fourth quarter of 1983. Predictions about the state and U.S. recovery as a whole were not as optimistic. Bankers expect only moderate recovery in 1983 with continued double digit unemployment.

Agriculture and mining, says the survey of approximately 17 per cent of the state's banks, will be the last of the state's major industries to enjoy economic turn around.

Bankers in the Twin Cities area and southern Minnesota think the national recovery will begin in the last quarter of 1983, with state recovery coming about three months later. Bankers in northern Minnesota felt U.S. recovery would not occur until at least 1984.

The survey included responses from 125 of the state's 760 commercial banks, and was conducted in the first week of February by mail. It was prepared as part of the Economic Options '83 program in which 400 state bank executives and state Senators and Representatives heard presentations on Minnesota's economic future from prominent state economists.

"The survey shows two points," said MBA President John Ingebrand. "First, bankers see a mixed bag for the state with gains in construction and certain types of manufacturing, offsetting sluggish performance in mining and farming. The second point, which is not surprising, is that the state banking executives did not vary widely from views held by regional and national forecasters on the outlook for the economy as a whole."

Ingebrand said bankers have a "working grasp" of when and where recovery will occur because they work with the basic units of recovery on the local level.

"In most Minnesota communities, the banker is intimately involved in the individual projects and ideas that translate into jobs and improved economic conditions," he said.

The Minnesota Bankers association is the professional trade association representing nearly 760 banks.

Thief River Falls' final home appearance of the 1982-83 high school hockey season Tuesday against Warroad in the sports arena will have a big effect on the Prowlers' placement in next week's Section 8 tournament quarterfinals.

Fergus Falls, Lake of the Woods, Bemidji and Thief River Falls rank 1-2-3-4 in the Section 8 standings this morning and they won't be knocked out of the top four, although their exact order of finish isn't set yet. Tuesday marks the final day for games to count in the Section 8 standings where the top four finishers earn automatic berths into the Section 8 tournament quarterfinals.

Fergus Falls finishes with Detroit Lakes while Lake of the Woods ends with Indus. The Otters and Bears will be heavily favored to win those games, so it's apparent they'll go into the tournament seeded 1-2. Bemidji has completed its Section 8 schedule. A Thief River Falls win over Warroad Tuesday would vault the Prowlers past the Lumberjacks into third place.

And third place would appear to be a very inviting position. Should the sub-sectional results come out as expected, you'd find the Section 8 tournament upper bracket featuring No. 1 Fergus Falls vs. No 8 East Grand Forks and No. 4 Bemidji vs. No. 5 Roseau on Fri., Feb. 25. In the bottom bracket would be No. 2 Lake of the Woods vs. No. 7 Brainerd and No. 3 Thief River Falls vs. No. 6 Alexandria on Sat., Feb. 26.

Sub-section eliminations begin Saturday at various sites at the higher seeded teams, then continue Monday and Tuesday of next week to fill the final four spots in the Section 8 tournament quarterfinals.

Section 8 statistician Frank Fee of Crookston rates the current top five teams in Section 8 as Roseau, Fergus Falls, Thief River Falls, Bemidji and Lake of the Woods. He's also predicting a Roseau victory over Thief River Falls in the Section 8 tournament finals.

Northmen Eye Division Title

Northland community college basketball team, boasting its best record since a 24-1 finish in 1974-75, has two shots this week at winning a Northwest Division title.

The 15-2 Northmen were scheduled to visit Fergus Falls tonight (Monday) before closing out the 1982-83 regular season schedule with a home game Thursday against northwestern Minnesota rival University of Minnesota-Crookston.

A state tournament participant every year since 1974 except for a two-year absence in 1977 and 1978, the Northmen would like to enter the 1983 Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) state basketball tournament Feb. 24-26 at Normandale in Bloomington with the No. 1 seed from the Northwest Division.

Northland has not won a Northwest Division pennant outright since 1975-76 when the Northmen won their third straight title. They were co-champions with Fergus Falls in 1978-79 and 1979-80. They entered the state tournament as Northwest Division runner-up the past two years.

This is the tenth straight winning season for the Northmen, but the last six years have also included up to as many as ten losses (13-10 a year ago; 17-9 the year before).

There was just one winning season (13-12 in 1971-72) during the first eight years of the basketball program at the school in 1965-66. The 1973-74 season featured the appearance of NJCAA All-American David Dickey and the Northmen went 20-5 for a division title and a state tournament berth. They've been winning ever since, but that outright Northwest Division title has eluded coach Chet Engelman the past six years.

Wins in their next two starts would assure the Northmen of getting that title. Obviously it won't be easy. Fergus Falls snapped Northland's 12-game winning streak just last week, 101-95 here in Thief River Falls. But in recent years the two rivals have never been able to sweep each other. Not since 1977-78 when Fergus Falls followed a 107-89 home court win with an 85-83 overtime victory here has either the Spartans or the Northmen taken both ends of the series. They split in 1978-79, 1979-80, 1980-81 and 1981-82. Northland hopes last year's events repeat themselves when the two rivals won on the road and lost at home in the series. Northland went to Fergus Falls and won 90-87, but came back home and lost to the Spartans 69-67.

Meanwhile, the Thursday game here against UMC shouldn't lack for intensity. It's a keen rivalry despite Northland's big edge in the series, which includes 17 wins in the last 18 games between the two schools. The Northmen beat the Trojans 98-80 earlier this month.

Miscellaneous

+ Park Rapids surprised Moorhead 44-42 in a recent North Half Region 8AA girls high school basketball game as sophomore Kim Coborn hit a field goal at the buzzer for the win. The Panthers were led by 6-2 Orla Hohnstadt's 19 points. Thief River Falls lost to Park Rapids 46-38 and fell to Moorhead 52-31 earlier this winter.

THERE WAS AN open net to shoot at, but Thief River Falls' Tim Bergland (9) watched his shot bounce wide of the goal Friday as Detroit Lakes goalie Chad Meyhoff reached out in vain during the second period of the Section 8 high school hockey game played in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Bergland, who did collect a three-goal hat trick, slipped by Detroit Lakes' big defenseman Butch Inderrieden on the play, with Chris Jorde (15) of the Prowlers keeping an eye on the action. The Prowlers beat the Lakers 6-3. They'll close out their 1982-83 home season schedule Tuesday vs. Warroad.

Northmen Get By Brainerd 87-75

Fortunately for the Northland community college basketball team, that on-and-off switch that controls the play of the erratic Northmen was in the "on" position at the end Saturday to preserve an 87-75 Northwest Division over visiting Brainerd.

Northland's roller-coaster efforts had taken a 33-33 halftime and turned it into a 15-point, 64-49 cushion midway through the second half, only to see underdog Brainerd claw its way back to within 77-75 with 1:17 remaining.

That's when the Northmen once again plugged themselves in and scored the last 10 points to up their record to 15-2, including an 8-1 position in the Northwest Division where a first place showdown awaits them tonight (Monday) at Fergus Falls.

"We did everything in our power to give it away," snapped Northland coach Chet Engelman after Saturday's less-than-inspiring effort. "We had a pretty good thing for a while in the second half," he added. But it didn't last.

Brainerd, which led for the last time at 39-37 1:41 into the second half, had things going its way when reserve forward Ted Franz put in a rebound to cut Northland's once imposing lead to 77-75 with 1:17 still on the clock.

But that's when the Red Raiders' bubble burst. Duncan Gregory started the game-ending Northland string of points by hitting both ends of a bonus free throw situation with 1:05 left. Brainerd then turned the ball over four straight times against the Northland press, with the Northmen turning each of them into points: two more free throws by Gregory, a lay-up by Matt Fontes, a short jumper by Kyle Ramsey and a fast break lay-up by Scott McKeever.

"So close, yet so far away," sighed first-year Brainerd coach Mike Rollins.

Ramsey, a 6-4 freshman from Milwaukee, was a real bright spot for the Northmen with a 15-for-20 shooting day from the floor that netted him 32 points, more than double his season average of 15.7. McKeever finished with 15 and Fontes 12, while reserve Rick Van Camp, a freshman from Newfolden, came into the game and drilled three baskets during Northland's second half surge that produced that big lead. Chuck Jones, a 6-1 freshman guard, led a balanced Brainerd attack with 15 points.

First half brought catcalls from the crowd when Brainerd, jumping out to an 8-2 lead, went into a definite stall just 4:05 into the game. It helped Brainerd earn a 21-13 lead with 8:23 remaining, but there were a few Red Raider turnovers in there, too, and the result was a 33-33 tie — the sixth of the half — at intermission.

Rollins defended the tactics, which bordered on boredom for the spectators. "There's no way we can play those guys (NCC) 94 feet for 40 minutes," he explained. "That's their game. We wanted to slow it down and control the tempo."

The key, though, he admitted, is that you've got to be tired or ahead to use it. Brainerd fell behind quickly in the second half and never got a chance to utilize the delay game again.

Still, Rollins was satisfied. "I'm happy with the way the guys played," he said. "I think they're playing as well as they can."

Engelman wasn't able to say the same thing about the Northmen, even though they won to set up tonight's clash with the Spartans, a team that ended Northland's 12-game winning streak just last week, 101-95.

Northland shot 52 per cent from the field (38-for-73) and 58 per cent at the free throw line (11-for-19). Brainerd shot 51 per cent from the floor (34-for-67) and 48 per cent at the line (7-for-15). Northland had a 42-37 rebound edge and Brainerd topped the turnover charts.

Although Fontes was held well under his state-leading 31.5 scoring average, he still led the Northmen with 12 rebounds, handed out seven assists, came up with 10 loose ball recoveries and blocked five shots. Gregory also had seven assists.

HIGH-POINT SCORER in Saturday's Northland vs. Brainerd community college basketball game played in Thief River Falls was Kyle Ramsey of the Northmen, who went above the crowd for this easy first half basket enroute to a 32-point performance that sparked the Northmen to an 87-75 Northwest Division win over the Red Raiders. The group under the basket included Shorty Johnson of the Northmen, plus, left to right, Brainerd defenders Rob Veith, Steve Schiller and Mark Kovall.

Final Home Game vs. Warroad . . .

Prowlers Beat Lakers; Host Warriors Tuesday

Thief River Falls collected its 13th win of the 1982-83 season against just four losses and a tie Friday with a 6-3 conquest of Detroit Lakes, but outside of the fact that it was a key victory for the Prowlers in their bid for an important top four finish in the final regular season Section 8 standings, the results weren't particularly well received in the lockerroom afterwards.

"We're not very pleased with our play tonight," lamented Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand after his team struggled with a 5-12 squad that managed to keep close to the heavily favored Prowlers despite a shortage of personnel that left the Lakers with just two lines and two sets of defensemen. Thief River Falls, meanwhile, skated three lines and rotated five defensemen. They had defenseman Rod Harder, who suffered a broken bone in his arm earlier this year, but used Tom Kenville, bothered by a shoulder injury, only briefly.

A three-goal hat trick performance by Tim Bergland, plus single goals from Steve Wiskow, Jeff Storhuag and Rick Spong gave the Prowlers their eighth straight win at home after a 5-2 loss to Fergus Falls in their home opener back on Dec. 11. Thief River Falls closes out its home season schedule Tuesday against Warroad and ends the year at Fergus Falls Friday.

A sluggish first period ended in a 1-1 draw. Detroit Lakes' Bob Caulfield tipped in Brett Friesen's slap shot from the left point at the goal mouth at 5:44 and Bergland tied it on a power play at 10:12 as he waited until Detroit Lakes goalie Chad Meyhoff went down before he stickhandled in front and lifted up a point-blank shot.

Thief River Falls controlled most of the play in the second period, out-shooting Detroit Lakes 17-8 and taking a 3-1 lead. Bergland got his second goal at 3:34, thanks to Tim Bottem, who checked a Detroit Lakes player off the puck near the Lakers' net. Bergland picked up the loose puck in front and slipped it under the goalie.

Wiskow scored at 10:34 when he reached in behind Meyhoff and put the puck into a wide open net on a rebound that came off the backboards on a slap shot by defenseman Allan Ness.

The scrappy Lakers still had

Otters Defeat Prowlers 67-63

Beaten 67-63 at Fergus Falls Friday, the Lincoln high school basketball team will make its final regular season road trip of the 1982-83 season Tuesday when the Prowlers play a 7:30 p.m. game at Park Rapids.

Final four Thief River Falls starts will be at home, including a double assignment this weekend vs. Bemidji Friday and Middle River Saturday. The home stand also includes games Feb. 25 vs. East Grand Forks and March 4 vs. Warren.

Thief River Falls' third straight loss Friday dropped the Prowlers to 5-8 for the year, including just a 1-6 mark against North Half Region 8AA opponents.

"We didn't play a bad ball game," explained Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt. "We gave them too many second shots, and that was basically the game," he added. "We hurt ourselves by not keeping them off the offensive boards. We didn't do a good job blocking people out."

Fergus Falls led at the quarter stops 24-18, 41-34 and 51-40. The Prowlers came back to within striking range in the final two minutes, but couldn't get any closer than the final four minute spread.

Mark Gere and Randy Naeseth provided the Prowlers with a strong 1-2 scoring punch with 22 and 16 points, respectively. Tim Swenson had 25 for the Otters, with Brian Roers getting 16 and Steve Thom 12.

Both sides shot well. Thief River Falls was 23-for-45 (51 per cent) and Fergus Falls was 30-for-61 (49 per cent). The Prowlers enjoyed a 17-for-22 night at the free throw line (77 per cent) where the Otters were 7-for-15 (46 per cent). Fergus Falls had a 31-28 rebound edge and Thief River Falls topped the turnover charts 15-9.

"Offensively, if we play like that we'll be all right down the stretch," remarked Hunt. "Defensively, outside of giving up some buckets on the offensive board, we played pretty well."

Hunt had special praise for Gere, who was 8-for-16 from the field and had 14 rebounds to go along with his 22 points, and Naeseth, who was 6-for-8 from the field and had eight rebounds to go with his 16 points.

Northwomen Stop Red Raiders 63-37

Slim post-season playoff hopes of the Northland community college women's basketball team were kept alive Saturday when the Northwomen racked up an easy 63-37 home court victory over Brainerd.

That left Northland 7-9 for the year and 3-6 in the Northwest Division standings where the top two regular season finishers earn state tournament berths. The Northwomen can land one of those spots with wins in their final two regular season starts this week: tonight (Monday) at Fergus Falls and Thursday at home against the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

It won't be easy. Fergus Falls, the already-crowned Northwest Division pennant winner, beat Northland 85-67 a week ago and UMC, with an inside track on the runner-up spot, downed Northland 56-44 recently.

But then, Brainerd had beaten Northland the first time around, too, 42-38.

Saturday, though, Northland scored 31 points in the first half and added 32 after intermission while Brainerd also came up with near-duplicate halves, only much lower figures of 19 and 18 points.

Three Northland scorers hit double figures, with Tara Nicholson getting 16 while LeAnn Paetznick and Kim Phillips had 10 each. Deb Koskela and Mary Kuznia were close behind with eight points apiece in a balanced Northland attack. Freshman forward Janelle Regelin of Brainerd led all scorers with 17 points, but Northland coach Deb Jacobson was most pleased with the defensive work by Kris Johnson, a freshman guard from Baudette, who held Brainerd's Glenda Streeter, one of the team's better players and play-maker, scoreless.

Northland shot 43 per cent from the field (26-for-60) and 69 per cent from the free throw line (11-for-16). Brainerd shot just 34 per cent from the field (13-for-55) and 52 per cent at the line (11-for-21). The Northwomen had a 46-33 rebound edge, with Nicholson grabbing 16, Paetznick 10 and Phillips 10. There were a few too many turnovers to please Northland coach Deb Jacobson — 37 by Brainerd and 31 by the Northwomen.

Northmen Sweep Mesabi To End Regular Season

Northland community college hockey team completed its 1982-83 regular season schedule with a weekend sweep over Mesabi at Virginia, winning 3-0 Friday night and taking a 9-5 decision Saturday afternoon.

The wins provided Northland with a 10-8 Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) finish and vaulted the Northmen past idle Rainy River into third place in the six-team league where the top four finishers earn post-season playoff berths.

It also enabled Northland to go into the 1983 MCCC state tournament, scheduled to be played Saturday and Sunday at Rochester, with five wins in their last six starts.

"These games didn't mean much in the outcome for the playoff," admitted Northland coach Tony Dorn, Jr., "but it was still good to see the boys win them. "It's good to finish with a win to carry us to the state tournament with a victory behind us. It also feels good to finish third and to finish with a winning season."

Meanwhile, the University of Minnesota-Crookston repeated as regular season league champion by sweeping season-long leader Rochester 10-9, 9-5 in a Saturday-Sunday series at Rochester to close out the schedule. The Trojans needed two wins to overtake the Yellowjackets and that's what they got.

That sets up the MCCC state tournament semifinal draw Saturday when No. 2-seeded Rochester plays No. 3 Northland at 6 p.m. and No. 1-seeded UMC faces No. 4 Rainy River at 9. Sunday's consolation game is at 12 noon and the state championship game will be played at 3 p.m.

Freshman goalie Bill Bye stopped 44 shots Friday to record the first shutout of his life, he said, as Northland blanked Rainy River 3-0.

Northland scored at 3:35 of the first period on a goal by Vic Evavold and that margin stood up until Murray Jorde made it 2-0 at 16:52 of the third period. Todd Gregoire got the third goal with just one second left.

Despite the shutout, it wasn't a particularly impressive performance by the Northmen, and it was a costly win as sophomore forward Tony Loeffler of Thief River Falls suffered a broken arm early in the game and sophomore defenseman Keith Huerd became involved in a late-game fight that brought him (plus Scott Smylie of Mesabi) game disqualifications and forced them to sit out Saturday's contest.

Skippers' Free Throws Tip Rival Nordics 57-54

Middle River, a team that was shooting just 51 per cent from the free throw line coming into the game, sank 21 of 22 free throw opportunities Friday to pull out a 57-54 North Border Conference high school basketball victory over rival Marshall County Central.

It was no secret, noted Middle River coach Eldon Sparby: "Free throws won it for us."

Middle River, after opening with a 14-8 first quarter lead, had to settle for a 22-22 halftime tie when the Skippers' second quarter offense was reduced to a single free throw. Marshall County Central had a 41-39 edge at the start of the fourth quarter, but as Sparby described: "We made a slight defensive change and got the momentum."

With the lead, Middle River went into a delay game just past the midway point of the fourth quarter. The Skippers weren't particularly effective with it, turning the ball over three times, but the Nordics weren't able to capitalize on the opportunities.

Ahead 55-54, Middle River clinched it when Kevin Roppe was fouled on a rebound and, following the game-long pattern, hit two free throws with 22 seconds left to complete the scoring.

"It was an excellent game," reported Sparby. "A typical Middle River - Newfolden game with so much tension that the kids would miss a lot of cripples, but then come right back and hit two or three in a row."

The outcome reversed a 53-46 Marshall County Central win over Middle River at Newfolden back on Dec. 17. It left Middle River at 9-5 for the year and dropped Marshall County Central to 7-8 as the Nordics failed for the fifth time this winter to surpass the .500 mark.

Roppe finished with 24 points for the Skippers, who were without guard Kevin McKeever, sidelined with a back problem. Larry Larson scored 15 points for the Nordics, with Scott Anderson getting 13 and Kevin Boe 12. They were much quieter at the free throw line, going 4-for-8.

Middle River hosts Badger Tuesday, then has a pair of road games on the weekend, Friday at Warroad and Saturday at Thief River Falls. Marshall County Central will host Tri-County Friday.

Plummer, a 57-54 winner over East Grand Forks a week earlier to snap a 51-game losing streak, saw its winning streak end at one game Friday with a 60-34 home court loss to Polar Conference foe Stephen.

The Tigers led at the quarter stops 17-15, 31-21 and 43-25 as the Cardinals' record dropped to 1-13 for the year. They'll host Red Lake Falls Tuesday and entertain Warren Friday.

"We started out quite good," pointed out Plummer coach Jim Baron, whose team shot 50 per cent from the field for the first eight minutes, but then cooled off considerably after that "Our shooting just died and their's continued," he noted.

Plummer finished with a 29 per cent shooting figure for the game (15-for-52) while Stephen shot 47 per cent (28-for-60). The Cardinals were 4-for-9 at the free throw line where the Tigers were 4-for-11. Stephen had a 33-28 rebound edge and Plummer topped the turnover figures 22-16.

Alvarado	41

Goodridge emerged with a 54-41 win at Alvarado Friday in a see-saw Polar Conference game.

The Huskies saw a 24-17 halftime lead disappear when the Indians scored the first eight points of the second half, but then answered with 11 straight points of their own to maintain a 37-27 spread at the end of the third quarter.

"It was kind of ragged," admitted Goodridge coach Rick Nelson. But he was more than happy with the Huskies' 45-21 rebound edge and praised the play of Tony Wiseth and Tim Bakken, who came off the bench during the Huskies 11-point run when Ross Parnow and Jeff Langan ran into foul trouble.

Scott Groven had 16 points while Darrin Easthouse scored 15 and grabbed 11 rebounds for the winners. Troy Boman led Alvarado with 15 points.

It was not a great shooting night for either side from the field, with Goodridge going 20-for-52 (38 per cent) and Alvarado just 15-for-53 (28 per cent). The Huskies were 14-for-19 at the free throw line (74 per cent) and the Indians were 11-for-26 (42 per cent). Goodridge topped the turnover figures 18-13.

Goodridge, 9-6, hosts Grygla Tuesday and will entertain Argyle Friday.

Grygla's offense failed to show up Saturday afternoon as the Eagles dropped a 56-35 North Border Conference game at Lake of the Woods.

The Bears took a 15-11 first quarter lead and turned it into a 33-15 halftime spread as the Eagles' record dropped to 5-9.

"We didn't play real well," acknowledged Grygla coach Vern Johnson. "We broke down."

Grygla shot just 30 per cent from the field (16-for-53) and sank just three of 14 free throw opportunities. Lake of the Woods shot 44 per cent from the field (24-for-54) and was 8-for-19 at the line. The Bears had a 31-30 rebound edge and topped the turnover figures as well, 27-16.

Tony McLean and Mike Brateng had 12 and 11 points, respectively for Grygla, with John Wilder scoring 21 for Lake of the Woods.

Grygla will have a rematch with rival Goodridge Tuesday on the Huskies' court. Goodridge won the first meeting this year 47-42.

Aid DNR Program By Nongame Funds

Four new regional nongame wildlife specialists are now located at Bemidji, Brainered, Grand Rapids and New Ulm to help benefit the state's nongame wildlife species. These specialists have been hired by the Department of Natural Resources with nongame wildlife checkoff funds to provide assistance to the public concerning wildlife questions and problems, and to carry out wildlife survey, education, and habitat management projects.

Much of their work will involve providing wildlife management coordination with county, state, and federal agricultural and natural resource agencies, according to Carrol Henderson, nongame wildlife supervisor.

Katie Hirsch, a native of Minneaolis, is at Bemidji. She has a B.S. in wildlife management from the University of Minnesota and an M.S. in wildlife science from the University of Washington. She has been working on a cooperative effort with the Army Corps of Engineers to create a new island of dredge spoils in the Warroad harbor in Lake of the Woods for shorebird nesting habitat. Another project will be the installation of cedar poles and nesting platforms for great blue herons at the Kabekona wildlife management area near Park Rapids. Hirsch has also been involved with projects concerning piping plovers, forest management, threatened and endangered mammals, bald eagles, sandhill cranes, burrowing owls, great gray owls and loons. She can be contacted at the DNR Area Office, 2114, Bemidji Avenue, Bemidji, MN 56601, (218-755-2964).

Jack Mooty is the regional nongame specialist at Grand Rapids. He has an M.S. in wildlife biology from Colorado State, and worked as a DNR wildlife research biologist in Grand Rapids for 14 years. Mooty has been working on plans for development of shorebird nesting habitat on Interstate Island and on the Hearding Island wildlife management area in the Duluth harbor. Other projects have involved bald eagles, presentation of educational programs, public meetings about nongame priorities in northeastern Minnesota, and cooperation with county, state and federal foresters about wildlife management. He can be reached at the DNR Regional Headquarters, 1201 East Highway 2, Grand Rapid, MN 55744, (218-327-1732).

Pam Skoog, a native of Minneapolis, is the new regional nongame specialist at Brainered. She has a B.S. in wildlife management from the University of Minnesota and an M.S. in wildlife ecology from the University of Florida. Formerly she was an endangered species biologist for the Florida Game and Freshwater Fish Commission. Among her current projects

Pirates Defeat Prowlers 45-35

Thief River Falls' best effort of the 1982-83 season still wasn't good enough Thursday as the Prowlers dropped a 45-35 girls high school basketball game to Crookston.

It was the tenth straight loss for the 2-11 Prowlers, but still a considerable improvement over their showing in a 55-35 defeat at Crookston back on Jan. 13.

"I thought that was our best effort of the year," said Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer after the loss to the strong Pirates, who have been beaten just twice this winter.

Unlike their first meeting, Thief River Falls was in this one most of the way. The Prowlers played a good first quarter and had a 15-11 lead to show for it. Midway through the second quarter it was a 21-21 standoff when Thief River Falls' Lynne Culkins came up with a defensive rebound and dribbled the length of the court for a lay-up to tie it with 4:05 left.

However, Crookston scored eight of the nine half-ending points to lead 29-22 at intermission. Thief River Falls had only five first half turnovers, but Crookston turned three of them directly into points, including back-to-back situations to take a 25-21 lead with 2:44 remaining that they never relinquished. Thief River Falls' only points during that offensive dry spell was a single free throw by Michelle Olson with two minutes on the clock.

Thief River Falls came back, though, and three times cut the Pirates' lead to three points in the third quarter, including 35-32 at the end when Culkins hit a long set shot from the side with 25 seconds to play.

Crookston opened the fourth quarter with consecutive set shots by Sherry Staff and Tracey Kelly outside the Thief River Falls zone for a 39-32 lead, then went into the spread offense the rest of the way. The Pirates lost the ball twice on turnovers running the delay game over the last 3½ minutes, but did eat up valuable time while picking up a pair of baskets inside, plus a couple of free throws to fatten the final margin.

"We moved the ball well," acknowledged Crookston coach Harlen Stahlecker. The Pirates' sharp, fast-moving passes around the perimeter set up open shots during much of the game, then used up the clock on the delay game at the end. "We work on that (spread offense) almost every other day," reported Stahlecker. "We can handle the ball pretty well."

Crookston's balanced offense featured forward Ember Rogalla with 12 points, guard Sherry Staff with 11 and center Dawn Senske 10, while forward Tracey Kelly contributed 8. Guards Paula Meyers and Olson had 14 and 11 points, respectively, for the Prowlers. It was an outstanding effort by Meyers, whose outside shooting touch kept Thief River Falls close. And it was the Pirates' outside shooting that won it.

"We let them have the outside shot because last time they beat us inside," explained Schafer. "I'd rather have them beating us from 15 feet than picking up the easy cripples underneath."

Crookston finished 20-for-48 from the field (43 per cent) and 5-for-9 at the free throw line. Thief River Falls was only 15-for-51 from the floor (29 per cent) and 5-for-11 at the line. The Prowlers built an early lead on the boards and wound up with a 31-25 rebound edge. Both sides had 11 turnovers.

Thief River Falls will be on the road this week, visiting Detroit Lakes Tuesday and East Grand Forks Thursday for 7:30 p.m. games.

Crookston Is 45-27 Winner

Crookston took a narrow 14-11 halftime lead and turned it into a 45-27 win over Thief River Falls Thursday in a girls high school junior varsity basketball game.

It was a 4-4 first quarter draw and a 14-11 game at the half before Crookston opened up a 26-19 third quarter spread.

Stacie Kruta and Crystal Larson scored eight points each to lead Thief River Falls, 5-8 for the year.

Bald Eagle Survey Completed By FWS

Having just completed the fifth annual midwinter bald eagle survey, the National Wildlife Federation hopes the count will indicate an increase in eagle populations in the United States.

The bald eagle, the country's national bird, is an endangered species throughout most of the nation. After a drastic decline in the 1960s, bald eagle populations in some areas are beginning to make a comeback, according to the Federation's biologists.

In 1979, the first year of the survey, the Federation counted 9,815 bald eagles. The count has been increasing each year since then, and last year 12,804 eagles were sighted.

The 1983 midwinter bald eagle survey, taken from January 2 - 16, was compiled by volunteers working with coordinators in the 48 continental United States.

Counts were also conducted in two Canadian provinces. The results are expected to be tabulated by this summer.

Considered to be the most complete midwinter bald eagle count available, the National Wildlife Federation survey provides eagle experts with data on where the birds live during the winter and the habitat they need to survive.

"The annual survey is taken during the winter, when the numbers of bald eagles in the lower 48 states are at their peak," said Brian Millsap, raptor biologist at the National Wildlife Federation and coordinator of the survey. "During January, survey conditions are close to ideal because there is less eagle movement than at other times during the fall and winter."

Last year's bald eagle survey counted 13,804 bald eagles in the lower 48 states, a slight increase from the previous year's total of 13,710.

Jay D. Hair, Executive Vice President of the Federation, said reasons for the continuing increase are "speculative, because although there is evidence that bald eagle populations in some areas are increasing, there is evidence that bald eagle populations in some areas are increasing, there is also a continuing increase in the thoroughness of our survey.

"In either case, it is encouraging that we continue to count more eagles each year."

According to the 1982 survey, the largest bald eagle population was in the state of Washington, which registered 1,378 birds. The next largest population was in Utah, with 1,001, followed by Florida with 920, California with 872, and Missouri with 779. Minnesota counted 21 birds in 1982, up from the eight counted in 1981.

Coordinators in North Carolina and Rhode Island counted only one bald eagle in each state, and none was reported in Vermont.

In addition to counts in the United States, 82 bald eagles were counted in Nova Scotia and five were counted in Ontario.

Final 1982 midwinter bald eagle survey results: Alabama 41; Arizona 208; Arkansas 569; California 872; Colorado 628; Connecticut 31; Delaware 6; Florida 920; Georgia 20; Idaho 645; Illinois 355; Indiana 12; Iowa 127; Kansas 453; Kentucky 125; Louisiana 38; Maine 110; Maryland 109; Massachusetts 13; Michigan 39; Minnesota 21; Missouri 779; Montana 470; Nebraska 393; Nevada 74; New Hampshire 2; New Jersey 12; New Mexico 357; New York 40; North Carolina 1; North Dakota 40; Ohio 7; Oklahoma 663; Oregon 480; Pennsylvania 13; Rhode Island 1; South Carolina 55; South Dakota 356; Tennessee 211; Texas 359; Utah 1001; Vermont 0; Virginia 159; Washington 1378; West Virginia 3; Wisconsin 43; Wyoming 362.

Marshall County Central out-scored Tri-County 20-0 in the first quarter Saturday and finished with a 65-34 win at Karlstad.

Despite the big first quarter edge, Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde said, "We started kind of slow." It was just 2-0 for two-three minutes, he said, when, "all of a sudden our press started working and we took it to them."

Sue Olson scored 22 points for the winners, with Nancy Nelson getting 13 and Brenda Dahl 11. The Nordics shot 45 per cent from the field (29-for-64) and went 9-for-19 at the free throw line. Tri-County shot 30 per cent from the field (14-for-46) and was 6-for-14 at the line. Marshall County Central had a big 55-27 rebound edge, including 24 offensive boards, and Tri-County topped the turnover figures 26-20.

Mjelde, whose team is 14-2 for the year, is eagerly looking forward to Thursday's game with rival Middle River in Newfolden. "If both teams play as well as they can, there's no question in my mind we can win," he said. The Nordics didn't play up to their potential, he indicated, in the earlier 46-36 loss at Middle River. There' only other loss was a 38-30 surprise at Hallock.

Prowlers Beat Detroit Lakes 6-3 Friday thoughts of an upset when Tom Johnson rapped a loose puck over Thief River Falls goalie Kerry Wollin's left shoulder on a power play at the three-minute mark of the third period.

But just 47 seconds later it was back to a two-goal margin when Storhaug duplicated Wiskow's goal by reaching in for a loose puck in the goal crease behind Meyhoff.

Spong made it 5-2 on a power play at 6:09 as he stopped the puck in the slot with his skate and kept his shot on the ice that Meyhoff apparently had trouble picking up through a maze of players in front.

Bergland, who narrowly missed a number of earlier scoring opportunities, completed his hat trick effort at 13:50 of the third period with a net shorthanded goal as he stole the puck in the offensive zone and went in alone on Meyhoff. He put the goalie on the ice and slipped in an easy backhand from close range.

Caulfield's second goal of the night in the final minute of play on a power play — giving both sides two for the night — completed the scoring, and adding to the Prowlers' frustration.

Acid Rain Problem Is Subject For Scientist Debate

by Madeleine Jacobs
Smithsonian News Service

Acid rain. Is it the "ecological issue of the 80s" "a uniquely modern, post-industrial blight . . . as widespread as the winds that disperse it," or a "tempest in a teapot . . . much ado about nothing?" Answers aren't in yet, but one fact is certain: Acid rain is a complex phenomenon about which reputable scientists disagree.

Clouding the controversy is a multitude of uncertainties about the nature, causes, extent and effects of acid rain and the potential remedies for its real or perceived threats. Acid rain has been blamed, many say unfairly, for killing aquatic life in lakes and streams, stripping forest soils of nutrients, damaging crops, corroding buildings and materials and even endangering human health.

Stormy debate is gathering hurricane strength as the new congress prepares to take up regulatory action that could cost industry billions of dollars a year.

Just what is this stuff that has scientists from the state university of New York to the Smithsonian institution immersed in study?

In the first place, acid rain is not just rain. It is also hail, snow, fog, gases and dry particles — collectively called "acid deposition." Water in the atmosphere exists initially as a weak acid because carbon dioxide, a natural constituent of air, dissolves to form carbonic acid. If nothing else were present, "pure" rainwater would have a "pH" — a term used to denote acidity — of about 5.6 (pH 7 is neutral).

But other substances reaching the atmosphere tend to shift the pH higher (more alkaline) or lower (more acidic). Many of these substances result from naturally occurring processes. Dust and debris carrying slightly alkaline soil particles are swept from the ground into the air; volcanic eruptions spew sulfur dioxide and hydrogen sulfide, both of which react to form sulfuric acid; lightning creates nitrogen oxides which in turn form nitric acid. Decay of organic matter, sea spray and fires also add rain-altering chemicals.

In the north temperate regions of the world, however, the real assault on the atmosphere comes from man, not Mother Nature. Main culprits appear to be sulfur dioxide and nitrogen oxide gases injected into the air from the burning of fossil fuels by utilities, boilers of all kinds and vehicles.

In the atmosphere, a host of chemical reactions — only some of which are well understood — occurs, transforming these gases into acids. Acids fall to earth as wet and dry deposition, a process that probably has been going on since the industrial revolution.

Recently, however, the situation may have been aggravated by super tall smokestacks constructed to comply with the clean air act of 1970 to reduce local air pollution. These stacks discharge emissions high into the atmosphere where they hitch rides on the prevailing westerly winds, perhaps for hundreds of miles and many days, before they rain down.

Therein lies the political crux of the controversy. Environmentalists and some scientists claim that emissions from the midwest have caused an increase in acid precipitation in the northeastern United States, damaging hundreds of lakes in the Adirondacks and Canada and threatening thousands more.

These claims are so convincing to some that the last session of congress came close to passing a bill that would have required large reductions of sulfur dioxide emissions in 31 states at a cost, mainly to the electric utility industry, of billions of dollars. At least some of this cost would be passed on to consumers in the form of higher electric bills.

"The question is," an EPA spokesman says, "do we know enough about acid rain to pass this kind of regulation? We think the rhetoric is outrunning the science."

Some scientists agree. For starters, solid evidence is lacking that links emissions in one part of the country to the acidity of rain falling in another, a link known as the "source-receptor relationship." Only "rudimentary" steps have been taken in this area of research, says Dr. Volker Mohnen of the state university of New York, Albany.

Since 1978, Mohnen and his colleagues have been using meteorological data to track the origin of parcels of air arriving with rain and snow at Whiteface mountain in the Adirondacks. "So far, the most we can determine is where the air has been in the 48 hours prior to rainfall," Mohnen says. "The research tells us nothing about where the acidity originated and what might have happened to the rain-bearing air parcel in the days in between."

Of the source-receptor relationship, Mohnen says, "With current meteorological data, we cannot identify the 'smoking gun.' But I am firmly convinced we will find it as our meteorological network is extended and refined and we carry out more research."

Mohnen and others are especially concerned about regulations focusing solely on sulfur dioxide. For one thing, nitrogen oxides are playing an increasingly important role in acid deposition, especially in the eastern United States. "Many people think if we reduce sulfur dioxide emissions, the problem will be solved. Well," he emphasizes, "it is not that simple."

Even measuring the acidity of rain is far from simple, Dr. David L. Correll, a Smithsonian biochemist, points out. He has been measuring and tracking the acidity of rainfall and its effects on ground and surface waters and soil for nearly 10 years at the Chesapeake Bay center for environmental studies near Annapolis, Md.

"The pH of rain changes quickly with time," he explains, "because particles in the rain may dissolve and bacteria in the water can convert chemicals, especially nitrates, into other substances that alter the 'true' pH."

In fact, much of the early data used to support the claims of increases in acidity is not based on direct measurements of pH, Correll says, but rather is calculated from measurements of other chemicals in the water — a less accurate way to determine pH. "That's not surprising," he notes, "because prior to the 1960s, virtually no one in the United States was interested in acid rain and few people measured the pH of rain."

Correll is among the few scientists who have made direct, long-term measurements of rainfall pH. His studies show that, in the last eight years, the mean annual acidity of bulk rainfall at a site near the Chesapeake Bay has increased almost fivefold.

In contrast to Correll's finding, a United States geological survey study of bulk precipitation in New York state between 1965 and 1979 found no statewide trend in the pH of rain, although acidity did increase somewhat in the western part of the state.

Longest continuous record of United States rain pH values is from the Hubbard Brook experimental forest in New Hampshire. Data from 1964 onward show no significant trends in pH. Yet one of the study's directors, Dr. Gene E. Likens of Cornell University, is "convinced that the area of acid rain has spread southward and westward from the northeastern United States and that acidity has generally intensified in the Northeast since the early 1950s." He based this conclusion on an analysis of existing pH data, both calculated and measured.

Likens' contention, supported by a number of scientists, is countered by others who agree with Dr. Jack Pickering of the USGS in Reston, Va. Says Pickering, "The idea that there has been a clear increase in the acidity of precipitation in the United States over the years is not well established because no one has been monitoring pH that long or over a widespread area."

Reputable scientists also disagree about the extent to which acid rain has damaged aquatic and terrestrial ecosystems. According to Robert F. Flacke, former Commissioner of the New York department of environmental conservation, "More than 300 lakes and ponds (in the state) have already lost — or are in danger of losing — their fish populations."

He places the blame squarely on acid rain, although a utility industry study points out that a combination of factors may be at work, including increased recreational uses of these waters and reduced levels of fish stocking in lakes, ponds and streams between 1960 and 1980.

More important, perhaps, than these factors is the undisputed fact that many of these lakes and ponds are especially vulnerable to acidification because they are perched atop bedrock and thin soils containing naturally low levels of alkaline minerals that "buffer" acid waters. A large proportion — between 50 and 80 per cent — of the world's freshwater occurs in such terrain, according to a National academy of sciences' report.

Nor is acid rain confined to the eastern United States. In December 1982 scientists at the California institute of technology measured acid fog along the coast near Los Angeles with a pH of 1.7 — the most acidic precipitation yet measured in the United States, more than 300 times more acidic than most rain in the East and about 2,000 times more acidic than rain in parts of the world remote from industrial activity. The major culprits in the Los Angeles fog, Dr. Michael R. Hoffmann of Cal tech says, are nitrogen oxides, primarily from auto emissions.

Acid rain may also seriously strip soil of key nutrients, other scientists say. Near the Chesapeake Bay, the Smithsonian's Correll has found that potassium, calcium and magnesium, critical elements for plant growth, are literally being displaced by acidic elements in forests and to a lesser extent in pastureland and cropland. These soils, like many in the mid-Atlantic Coastal plain, already contain naturally low levels of such elements.

Time is the critical factor, Correll warns. "If this loss of critical elements continues, we're eventually going to be seeing dead forests. It could take a few years, or it could take decades, but it will happen."

And the list of concerns and areas needing further research grows daily. When freed from soil minerals by acid rain, aluminum, an abundant metal, washes into lakes and streams where it can kill aquatic life. Other metals, such as zinc, nickel and lead, are also more soluble in acidic water, and there are concerns that high concentrations of these metals could contaminate drinking water.

Two reports expected early in 1983 — one from EPA, one from NAS — will try to get a fix on some of these unknowns and recommend areas for additional research. Meanwhile, under a 10-year, government-wide research program established by congress, a large-scale monitoring network is being organized to establish trends in acid deposition unequivocally.

So the debate all washes down to these critical questions: At what point do we know enough to pass appropriate regulations, and how much time do we have to take corrective measures? Other countries — notably Sweden, Canada and West Germany — have already taken legislative steps. Moreover, EPA scientists agree with the scientific consensus that acid rain exists, that it is a problem and will probably have to be controlled.

But, says EPA administrator Anne M. Gorsuch, "Our experience of recent years should teach us not to rush in with quick fixes where we know that we have an inadequate understanding of existing conditions." In the end, all agree, congress, not the scientific community, will decide.

SEEKING AN EXPLANATION regarding his land in the Black River dam and reservoir project, Zeno Casavan of rural Red Lake Falls (standing at right) was among about 25 people attending a hearing on the project Thursday afternoon in Thief River Falls. Because a number of people had questions regarding the amount of their land and its valuation in the 100-year flood plain, the board of the Red Lake watershed district recessed the hearing to 1 p.m. on February 28 and appointed a committee to conduct further viewing on the property.

Snowmobile Thefts Cleared With Arrests

Apprehension of an 18-year-old from rural Thief River Falls and two 17-year-olds from rural Thief River Falls and St. Hilaire has cleared up the theft of 10 snowmobiles in the Thief River Falls area since the first of the year.

Robert Holmgren, 18, appeared in district court in Warren Monday and entered pleas of guilty to four counts of felony theft in connection with the stolen snowmobiles. Sentencing was delayed pending a pre-sentence investigation and Holmgren remains in custody under the Huber law. He was officially charged in Pennington county court February 11.

Holmgren and the two juveniles were apprehended by local law enforcement officers following a call from a citizen in Rocksbury township at 10:37 p.m. last Wednesday. The caller reported a number of snowmobiles operating in the area, including one without lights.

Officers responding to the call located the snowmobiles along county road 7 but the snowmobiles fled into Section 10 of the Rocksbury township. Six law enforcement officers ringed the section and summoned assistance from Randy Adamson and Greg Harris of the Sno-Drifters snowmobile club. They responded with snowmobiles and tracks were followed into the field. Two abandoned snowmobiles were found in the woods in the section and three sets of footprints leading from the machines were followed. The young men were arrested when they came out on the road.

Snowmobiles recovered that night were stolen from Charles White and Don Gustafson. Further investigation cleared the theft of snowmobiles from Darrell Bakke (Two machines stolen), Joanie Wilson, Tom Niebauer, Ralph Wilde, Dr. Jerome Bray, Marge Tiani and Harvey Delage.

All of the snowmobiles were recovered and most had been extensively damaged, including Wilde's snowmobile which had been placed on the Soo Line tracks in the Hazel area and was struck by a train. The youths also admitted being in the area of the Johnson boarding home on February 5 when Paul Johnson noticed someone in the yard attempting to start his snowmobile. He was able to stop that attempt but the would-be thieves fled.

Agreement Clears Way To Build Arctic Cats Here

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Signing of a financial agreement with a Minneapolis banking institution on Tuesday has cleared the way for Arctic Cat snowmobiles to once again be manufactured in Thief River Falls. Arctco, Inc., a corporation formed primarily of former Arctic Enterprises personnel, has revealed plans to produce approximately 2,000 snowmobiles here for the 1983-84 marketing year.

Coming on the heels of an agreement negotiated with Suzuki corporation to supply engines for the machines, the financial agreement on production capital signed Tuesday "puts the ball in our court," according to Bill Ness, one of the directors of Arctco and a former vice president of Arctic Enterprises.

Beginning yesterday Arctco is mailing announcements proclaiming that "The Cat Is Back!" to about 1,100 Arctic Cat dealers throughout the United States. Arctco plans to sell direct to dealers on an advance order basis in the lower 48 states, and to distributors on an advance order basis in Canada and Alaska.

The somewhat bare bones effort to bring the Arctic Cat snowmobile back to life is based on the advance order program whereby the company will not build any machines which have not been ordered in advance. The 2,000 production run has been established as a basic quantity for the next marketing season. Orders have been requested by March 1 and must be accompanied by a letter of credit from a financial institution which guarantees payment for the snowmobiles ordered.

Should the quantity of snowmobiles ordered substantially exceed the 2,000 anticipated, the company will have to determine whether to extend production or how to cut back on delivery. According to Arctco organizers, it would be a welcome problem. If demand does not reach the 2,000 units, a reevaluation of the company's intentions to proceed would have to be made.

At present the company has established offices on a temporary basis at one of the condominiums at 1302 Dale st. E. No definite building for setting up of production facilities has yet been determined, but it is expected company offices would be moved to the production facility once it is established.

In anticipation of the reincarnation of Arctic Cat manufacture in Thief River Falls, the group was able to purchase a substantial amount of manufacturing and test equipment at the Arctic Enterprises bankruptcy sale last summer. That equipment is presently in storage and immediately available.

Exclusive rights to use of the Arctic Cat name are owned by Jim Grafft of Certified Parts corporation of Janesville, WI, who purchased the Arctic Enterprises parts business and also acquired the manufacturing rights, special tooling, trademarks, patents and related items. Grafft is a major stockholder in Arctco and has granted the new corporation the use of these essentials.

Arctco will work closely with Certified Parts corporation and will also contract with TDL Marketing of Thief River Falls for Arctic Cat related snowmobile accessories. TDL Marketing, in turn, contracts with Northern Outerwear of Thief River Falls for manufacture of the Arcticwear brand of winter clothing. Duane Lillevold of TDL Marketing has coordinated a part of the 1983-84 clothing line with the 1984 Arctic Cat models to be produced.

Ole Tweet, another member of the Arctco board of directors, said that only two models of snowmobiles will be produced for the first year — the Panther and El Tigre. Both are extensively based on the 1982 model Arctic Cats which were not able to be manufactured due to the financial difficulties of Arctic Enterprises. Both models will use tested and proven designs to assure meeting its commitment to quality, reliability and performance, Tweet said.

The company expects its volume to double in the second year and that number to double again for the year of production. Additional models will be introduced in those years, including the popular Jag in 1984-85.

While the company will need a limited number of workers in maintenance, machine shop, sheetmetal, fiberglass, welding and assembly, no applications for employment are available at the present time, according to Leon Johnson of Arctco. He emphasizes that all applications for employment will be processed through the Thief River Falls office of Job Service.

Jeff Gustafson of Job Service said he plans a two-day application period in the near future at a public location to be announced. At that time formal application forms will be available and a public announcement will be made in the Times and on local radio stations to establish the time and location of the sign-up, he said, and he expects most positions available will be filled by former employees of Arctic Enterprises with experience in the fields required.

Ness, Tweet and Johnson all said they had been greatly encouraged by the demand indicated for re-establishment of the Arctic Cat snowmobile line. "We have had market studies made in the United States and Canada and the results of both were amazing to us," Ness said. "We also held one meeting of Minnesota dealers and received an enthusiastic response."

"Dealers and customers have almost been pleading with us to build Arctic Cats again," Tweet said. "Some dealers have told us that they tried to switch brands but the attempt didn't work. Former Arctic Cat customers come into the showroom, sit on the new machines and just stare into space, then walk out without buying. There is a tremendously loyal Arctic Cat following out there and we want to fulfill their wishes."

At one time more than 100 companies were producing snowmobiles. That number has now been reduced to four — Polaris at Roseau, Bombardier (Ski-Doo), Yamaha and John Deere. Ness said he belives the snowmobile business has hit its low point and will level off at a total demand of about 100,000 to 150,000 snowmobiles per year. In its peak production year, Arctic Enterprises alone produced well over 100,000 units.

Edgar Hetteen, founder of Arctic Enterprises and fondly referred to as the "grand-

Carlson Herd Takes All Trophies At DHIA Meet

A CLEAN SWEEP of trophies presented at the annual meeting of the Pennington county dairy herd improvement association Monday evening at the Eagles hall in Thief River Falls was made by the herd of Mr. and Mrs. Mylo Carlson of Angus. The association offers annual trophies for top herd average, highest producing cow, highest producing two-year-old and greatest increase in herd average over a three-year period. The Carlsons won them all — the first time there has been such a sweep in the history of the county association.

Mylo Carlson's dairy herd at Angus earned all four trophies offered by the Pennington county dairy herd improvement association when the annual meeting was conducted Monday evening at the Eagles hall in Thief River Falls.

Carlson's herd of 60 Holsteins had the top herd average of 19,954 pounds of milk and 760 pounds of butterfat and the greatest increase in herd average over a three-year period of 78 pounds. In addition, the herd had the top individual producer in the association with 25,125 pounds of milk and 957 pounds of butterfat in a 305-day test and the top two-year-old which had a record of 20,442 pounds of milk and 824 pounds of butterfat in her first lactation.

Duane Krohn of Viking was elected to the association's board of directors for a three-year term to succeed Gene Nelson of Viking who had served two consecutive terms and was ineligible for reelection. At a reorganization of the board, John Hess of Argyle was reelected president and Robert Rausch of Thief River Falls was elected vice president to succeed Nelson. Roger Walter of Plummer was reelected secretary-treasurer. Marvin Koop of Thief River Falls is the fifth director on the board.

Jerry Hamre, who had been supervisor for the association for 15 years, was presented with a 15-year service award from the Minnesota DHIA organization. In August the association added a second tester with Mr. and Mrs. Myron Iverson joining in that effort.

In 1982 the association had 36 members, including those on full test and those on owner-sampler testing. Statistics show that the association herd average on butterfat percentage at 3.8 per cent was .1 per cent above the state average, but was below the state average at 14,192 pounds of milk (state average is 14,573) and 540 pounds of butterfat (state average is 546 pounds).

Feed cost averaged $832 per cow compared to the state average of $696 and value of product produced per cow was lower at $1,870 compared to $1,926. Net income over feed cost of $1,038 was nearly $200 below the state average of $1,230. Price received for milk of $13.18 per hundredweight was only four cents below the $13.22 state average. Average herd size in the association was 45 compared with 49 statewide.

Average production of Pennington county dairy herds on test in the past 10 years has gone from 12,783 pounds of milk and 485 pounds of butterfat in 1973 to 14,192 pounds of milk and 540 pounds of butterfat in 1982.

In the Pennington association during 1982 there were 219 cows which produced 625 or more pounds of butterfat in 305-day lactation. In addition to his top producing cow with 957 pounds of butterfat, Mylo Carlson had the fourth place cow with 906 pounds of butterfat, eighth place cow with 865 pounds, 13 others with more than 800 pounds of butterfat, 12 with

Counties Share $127,310,171 In Hwy. Funds

As their share of the $127,310,171 allocated to the 1983 county state-aid highway (CSAH) fund, Pennington county will receive $892,726; Marshall county will receive $1,827,816; Red Lake county will receive $747,037; Polk county will receive $2,900,000; Roseau county will receive $1,540,522; Clearwater county will receive $1,066,384; and Beltrami county will receive $1,730,479, according to Minnesota department of transportation (MnDOT) figures.

Sixty-three Minnesota counties have been allotted more than $1 million each. Allotments range from $747,000 to $7.5 million. More than $1.5 billion have been shared by the counties since the initial apportionment of $23.9 million in 1958.

CSAH fund makes available to the counties $76,355,659 for construction and $50,954,512 for maintenance of the 30,000-mile CSAH system. Included in these amounts are $7,504,919 for construction and $4,936,637 for maintenance costs on county state-aid highways in municipalities of less than 5,000 population.

Yearly apportionment, which represents 29 per cent of the funds available for distribution from the highway user tax distribution fund, is allotted according to prescribed formula to Minnesota's 87 counties. Highway user tax distribution fund is composed of monies from the state motor fuel tax and motor vehicle registration fees.

Remaining funds in the highway user tax fund are distributed as follows: 62 per cent to the trunk highway fund and nine per cent to the municipal state-aid street fund for municipalities having populations of 5,000 or more.

TRF Gun Show Expected To Be Largest Ever

Largest gun show ever held in Thief River Falls is scheduled for the national guard armory both Saturday and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. About 102 tables have already been reserved for display of guns, coins and antiques, with 85 of those tables set aside for guns and gun related items.

Hardy Hodge, show coordinator, says that 75 different exhibitors from across Minnesota and North Dakota have currently reserved space, and he noted that only eight or nine tables remained available. Hodge said that reservations would be accepted on a first come-first served basis up until show time.

Public will be admitted to the show for a $1 entry fee, and Hodge encouraged individuals who were interested in selling or trading guns to bring them to the show.

Twenty-four hour security will be provided at the armory, with a special secure room with electrical outlets provided for coin dealers and exhibitors. Eight foot tables for display will cost $10 each with a one dollar discount for pre-registration.

An exhibit of military items will also be provided by the national guard, including M16 and M60 weapons.

Show has been advertised in three states, and a selection of dealers from a wide area of Minnesota and North Dakota are expected to be represented.

father of snowmobiling," is also an active principal in Arctco, Inc. He has described the new company as being "big enough to do the job but small enough to listen," indicating that the firm intends to be attentive to the requirements and ideas of dealers and customers.

Directors of Arctco, Inc., have been working without pay throughout this formulative period and expect that many more long hours of effort will be required before production gets underway, somewhere around August 1. In fact, there has been no formal structure of corporate officers established as yet and no titles assigned to the various people working in the organizational effort.

"No question," states the letter sent to dealers yesterday, "we will be smaller, leaner and meaner but we will be in a position to do many of the novel things you requested previously. . . . Most important, however, are the people and attitude — our production workers have already produced 600,000 Arctic Cats and we're all committed to quality!"

With dealers ordering by March 1 and issuing letters of credit expiring December 15, Arctco can satisfy its lenders without adversely affecting the cash flow of dealers. Dealers are guaranteed prices and are guaranteed deliveries by December 15 since letters of credit will expire on that date. Suggested retail prices are $2,995 for the Panther and $4,195 for the El Tigre — slightly higher than comparable models when Arctic Enterprises went out of business but considered very competitive in today's market.

It is expected that some type of local financial support will be sought in the near future but that aspect is still under study and no decisions have been made. Arctco has been working with Jobs Incorporated, the local industrial development corporation, along these lines. Application has also been made by the city of Thief River Falls for a federal HUD grant which would be loaned by the city to Arctco to assist in start-up operations. Ness said the funds would be a great help to the company but are not at present considered an essential.

more than 700 pounds and 11 others with more than 625 pounds.

Carlson attributed much of the success of his herd to herdsman Rick Stormo of Clearbrook who has been with the Carlson operation for the past two years. "He likes working with cows so much it's hard to get him out of the barn," Carlson said.

Second highest producing cow in the association in 1982 was owned by Hanson Heritage dairy farm of Thief River Falls and produced 25,604 pounds of milk and 931 pounds of butterfat in 305 days. Duane Krohn of Viking had the third place cow with 25,428 pounds of milk and 930 pounds of butterfat. Wheat Exports To China Are In Jeopardy

Reagan administration "is jeopardizing" more than $600 million in U.S. wheat exports to China as a result of its recent textile negotiations with that country. That was the message carried to Reagan administration officials by the heads of the National Association of Wheat Growers (NAWG) and U.S. Wheat Associates (USWA) during meetings this week.

"U.S. wheat farmers stand to lose three to four million tons of wheat sales to the PRC because of the dispute over limits on U.S. textile imports," stated Harrell Ridley, chairman of USWA and a Las Animas, Colorado wheat grower. He said that China has recently purchased large amounts of Argentine wheat, but there have been no new bookings for U.S. wheat.

U.S. sales to the PRC now total 4.2 million tons, less than one-third of total projected purchases of 14 million tons. China is the largest market for U.S. wheat, and purchases last year amounted to eight million tons.

At issue in U.S.-PRC textile negotiations is the level of Chinese products that can enter the U.S. No agreement was reached during talks in mid-January, and negotiations have not been scheduled to resume.

"The potential consequences of this dispute are disastrous for wheat farmers," according to NAWG president Don Loeslie. He said that lost wheat sales would push the level of excess stocks well above the record 41 million tons (1.5 billion bushels) now projected by USDA. "This gamble also stands to wipe out much of the grain expected to be made by Secretary Block's PIK program," according to Warren, Minnesota wheat farmer. Further, Loeslie said that lost China sales will negate the impact of the agriculture department's blended credit program and other export initiatives.

Loeslie and Ridley pointed to U.S. successes in the China market, which have led to the construction of model million, baking and noodle factories which will expand wheat consumption. This work has been carried out with funding from U.S. wheat farmers, USDA's foreign agricultural service, and the Chinese government.

Answers from the Bible by Pastor Don Peres

Q. Pastor Don, I am a teenager and belong to a family and a church that teaches baptism as the only way to heaven. Now that I am old enough to read the Bible for myself, I am questioning that belief. Does a person have to be baptized to be a Christian?

A. This is a very good question and the Bible has much to say about this subject.

Baptism, as important as it is in the Scriptures, was never designed to make one a Christian.

Baptism is a Christian virtue that people should experience after they become Christians through faith in Jesus Christ and His shed blood. Gal. 4:26.

The Bible says without the shedding of Christ's blood there is no forgiveness of sins. Heb. 9:22. If baptism could make one a Christian then Jesus Christ didn't have to die on a cross. His suffering was in vain. His leaving heaven to become a man served no purpose. God knew baptism could never cleanse away sin or make one a Christian. So He sent His only begotten Son to die on a cross for the sins of the whole world. I Jn. 2:2. I Jn. 4:10

The book of Acts teaches that baptism is an experience that follows salvation. The apostle Paul told the Philippian jailer to believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and he would be saved. After the Philippian jailer and his family became Christians, they were baptized. Acts 16:31-34

In Acts 8:36-37 the Ethiopian Eunuch wanted to know why he couldn't be baptized. Phillip, the evangelist, told him that he must believe in Christ with all his heart. Ethiopian Eunuch answered, I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God. The moment the Ethiopian believed, he became a Christian and then Phillip baptized him.

Acts 8:12 teaches that when the people of Samaria believed Phillip's preaching concerning the Kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, then they were baptized, both men and women.

No, the Bible does not teach that we must be baptized to be a Christian. The Bible does teach that we must become a Christian by receiving Jesus Christ as our personal Saviour (Jn. 1:12), and ask God to forgive us our sins. Then the blood of Jesus Christ, not water baptism, forgives us and cleanses us from all sin. I Jn. 1:9

If you have any questions you would like to have answered from the Bible, please write Pastor Don Peres, Box 129, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

No Insurance Means Loss Of Driver License

People involved in motor vehicle accidents with other drivers or owners not having liability insurance, can now have the non-insured's driving privileges suspended until a satisfactory settlement is obtained.

Under the provisions of a law passed by the 1982 legislature, a victim of a vehicle accident can secure a "judgement" against the other driver or owner to claim relief for damages. Damages include bodily injury, loss of services, death, and damage or destruction of property.

If a person against whom the judgement is filed does not satisfy the judgement within 30 days, and the department of public safety is properly notified, the driving privileges of that person will be suspended. Driving suspension will remain in effect until the amount of the judgement is satisifed.

"Minnesota motorists who have the mandatory 'no-fault' insurance on their vehicles will not be affected by this legislation," said Paul Tschida, commissioner of the Minnesota department of public safety. "It's those who have tried to beat the system and have no insurance who are going to have their driving privileges suspended. This will at least provide the victims of these drivers some power to retrieve the cost of injuries and property damage."

Department of public safety will continue checks to verify that vehicle owners have insurance. Owners are required to include the name of their insurance company and policy number when re-registering vehicles annually.

Each year applications are checked through insurance companies. Last year just over 6,000 owners had their license plates withdrawn because they did not have insurance. In some cases the plates were withheld for 30 days and until insurance recertification. In addition, approximately 11,000 drivers had their driver license suspended for a minimum of 30 days when they were operating an uninsured motor vehicle involved in an accident. Under provisions of the new law, a driver license must be revoked for up to 10 years if the judgement is not satisfied.

Truck Driver Arrests Total 1,154 In 1982

Truck driver arrests for violations of state regulations governing motor carriers totaled 1,154 in 1982, the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) announced.

Although this is a 10 per cent drop from 1,281 arrests in 1981, it is still "too high, considering there was an estimated 20 per cent reduction in tonnage hauled on our highways in 1982," said Gordon Boldt, acting director, Mn-DOT's office of motor carrier safety and compliance.

Arrests, he explained, were for violations of vehicle safety standards and markings, driver qualifications, logbook requirements, interstate and intrastate authority requirements and hazardous materials transportation regulations.

In addition, Mn-DOT enforcement agents issued another 1,427 compliances for similar deficiencies. Number was slightly lower than the 1,443 issued in 1981, he said. Warnings for minor equipment repairs totaled 1,800, down 21 per cent from the 2,273 written the previous year.

Motor transportation representatives made the arrests during unannounced road safety checks at 14 sites around the state, at weigh stations and other locations, Boldt explained. Many were conducted in cooperation with the Minnesota state patrol, Federal highway administration, county sheriff departments and city police departments. During 1982 there were 14 unannounced truck road safety checks, double the number of the prevous year. We expect to increase these surprise road safety checks from 14 to 21 this year, he said.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

Hats off to the cast, crew and director of "Fantastiks" on their excellent performance last weekend at Northland college. We are so fortunate to have such talent in Thief River Falls. It was great family entertainment.

Mr. and Mrs. Jon Larson and family,
Mr. and Mrs. Tom Dimich and family

To the Editor:

As I listened to the discussion at the public meeting called by the board of education of School District 564 for public input on budget cutting, I was intrigued by the proposed cuts and rebuttal remarks. Intrigued because no one even hinted as a resolution which would allow us to maintain programs and student-teacher class ratios. Instead, speakers were attempting to defend their territories and protect their pet priorities.

What is this simple panacea? Since approximately 80 per cent of a school district's budget is made up of salaries it is the only area where meaningful cuts can be made without devastating curricular and extra-curricular offerings. It would seem that a forfeiture of scheduled salary increases for all district employees including board members, coupled with a five per cent across-the-board salary reduction would put us in a respectable financial position for the 1983-84 school year. Bitter medicine you say! Yes, but the same prescription that the majority of people who financially support the district are forced to accept due to the economy, be it farmer, merchant, trucker or whomever.

Yes, it would mean renegotiating contracts, but it would also mean that our students could receive a better education than with the proposed cuts and that some teachers who would be laid off could still be employed. It would also do much in the re-establishment of credibility after the ill-famed teachers' strike.

Educators, you are a well-educated troupe. Don't be enamored of a Don Hil who, down the road, may be viewed as a villain instead of a hero among your ranks. A dazzling salary schedule means little if you are among those who lose your position due to staff cuts. With state and national budgets in distress and a county tax delinquency rate the highest in over 30 years it doesn't take a mental giant to see that our tax funded institutions have some difficult days ahead. With such a plight won't you, the employees of District 564, go the extra mile to assist us and yourselves out of our finaicial woods?

Sincerely,
Mr. and Mrs. Mert Hutchinson

Radniecki & Jensen Construction company of Thief River Falls is making rapid progress on clearing of right-of-way for the Moose River project being undertaken by the Red Lake watershed district.

Contract was awarded January 7 on the basis of cost per hour for use of bulldozers with operators. The successful Radniecki & Jensen bid was at $45 per hour for a D-8H Caterpillar, $40 per hour for a D-7F and $32 for a D-6B. There were 23 bidders offering use of 96 machines for the project.

Clearing involves removal of trees and brush up to 400 feet wide and more than 10 miles in length along the dike line for the water impoundment area.

Next phase of the project will be calling for bids on dragline work and outlet structures, according to Oliver Dahle, office manager for the watershed district.

Farm Bureau Says Budget Is Unacceptable

"Bad news. . . too heavy on tax increases and too light on cutting back."

That's the Minnesota farm bureau federation's assessment of President Reagan's proposed $848 billion federal budget for fiscal 1984.

"Too much reliance on increased taxes while reducing government expenditures too little," says Merlyn Lokensgard, state farm bureau president, "offers bleak prospects for restoring fiscal and monetary equilibrium to the nation's economy. Farmers find a budget calling for almost $850 billion in federal outlays and projected revenues something below $700 billion unacceptable."

According to Lokensgard, a projected federal deficit of nearly $200 billion "isn't any easier for us to accept now that it was when we had the so-called 'big spenders' of years past." Federal spending continues to be runaway while deficits zoom, he said. While "a lot of the 1984 budget items" are obligations incurred by previous congresses and administrations, Lokensgard emphasized the need to "dramatically restrain spending is no less pressing." And, the state farm bureau spokesman added, "the discipline and the cutbacks so sorely needed aren't addressed in this budget."

Entitlements account for close to 75 per cent of the budgeted spending items, Lokensgard noted. Declaring such programs have been "for much too long" excluded from budgetary review, he said: "If we're ever going to have a genuine economic recovery, we've got to get a handle on these."

Farm bureau proposes a three-year freeze on federal entitlements — including farm programs, said Lokensgard. "In that length of time, we'd hope that Congress would correct basic deficiencies in laws to allow a balanced budget," he said.

There will be a $3.00 charge per person for the school. Women who would like to attend, may enroll by contacting county extension office (681-2116) by Friday, February 18.

Exterior Car Maintenance Stunts Aging

Automotive statistics indicate that the average age of cars on the road today is just under seven years — the highest level in decades. Launching a defense against rust, which weakens the frame and detracts from the vehicle's appearance, is now more important than ever, reminds Gary Young of AAA Minnesota.

"Sand and salt are corrosive elements that factor heavily in the aging effect on a car's exterior," Young said. "By washing a car frequently and waxing it at least twice a year, car owners can combat the rusting process."

There's more to exterior car maintenance than merely washing off the white film, though, Young stated. "Make a point of spraying the car's underside, the wheel wells, around the door panels and under the fender and bumper, where the sediment collects and rust usually starts forming."

After washing, keep the doors ajar or park your vehicle in a warm garage to prevent freezing, the AAA spokesman advised.

"Periodically inspect your car's exterior for rust spots or signs of deterioration," he continued. "At the first sign of rust around the body moulding, sand the area and repaint. Even the slightest fender and body scratches can rust rapidly, so repair or repaint such damage promptly."

Rustproofing is another proven method of rust prevention. Young explained the process involves coating those sections of your vehicle where rust causes the most damage. This is done to keep moisture, salt and other corrosive chemicals from contacting the metal.

Exterior car maintenance during the winter is essential for those determined to keep their vehicles for awhile and keep them looking good, the AAA spokesman concluded.

Remind Vets Of Extension On Benefits

Vietnam veterans who are unemployed or underemployed should be aware of a law passed by Congress last fall that extends the 10-year eligibility period for certain education benefits through Dec. 31, 1984, according to Rep. Wally Sparby.

The law pertains to veterans who have been unemployed or underemployed for six months or more, and who may wish to pursue some type of vocational training that will lead to a stable job. The extension for occupational, apprenticeship, and on-the-job training may not exceed the applicant's unused entitlement, and is retroactive to Jan. 1, 1982.

"This should be a great help to the unemployed veterans in Minnesota," Sparby said. "State officials estimate there could be as many as 24,000 such individuals in the state and chances are most of them have the potential to develop skills that could help them find jobs.

"I think Congress should be commended for its efforts to assist people who served their country in a time of crisis," he added. "It is only fair that the government in turn recognize their personal crisis and extend needed aid."

Sparby said interested Vietnam veterans should contact the VA regional office at Fort Snelling as soon as possible for more information. Veterans can call toll free 1-800-692-2121.

Stricter DWI Law Is Now One Year Old

As Minnesota's new, tougher drunk driving laws approach their first anniversary, the question arises of how effective the changes have been in making travel on our roads safer. Answer is that the law had a positive effect, according to preliminary traffic death statistics compiled by the Minnesota department of public safety.

Overall, there was a big reduction in total traffic fatalities, down from 763 in 1981 to under 600 in 1982. There is also a noticeable drop in proportion of drinking drivers among those drivers killed.

Through the first 10 months of 1982, about 54 per cent of the drivers killed were found by coroners to have alcohol in their blood, with 48 per cent being at or above the illegal .10 per cent alcohol concentration limit. That compares to 64 per cent of the fatal drivers tested detected to have some alcohol concentration and 53 per cent at or about the .10 per cent level in 1981.

Changes in the law and the increased demand by the public for tougher measures have contributed to the growing number of driver license revocations since Minnesota's administrative revocation process was enacted into law in 1976. More than 36,000 Minnesotans lost their driving privilege in 1982.

Changes in the law have also reduced the time period before revocations go into effect. Assistant director of driver and vehicle services division, Harold Peterson said the significance of the speed of revocation is more important than the numerical increase of about 4,000 revocations over 1981.

"Enforcement isn't going to dramatically increase without putting a lot more police on the road. Difference, without increased enforcement, is that now drunk drivers are off the road in seven days rather than six, nine, 10 months or even longer," Peterson said.

Special Assistant Attorney General Joel Watne, who is in charge of DWI prosecutions for the department of public safety, says the tougher law has helped his legal staff eliminate the tremendous backlog of license revocation appeals. "Many people used the system in past years to put off for months the moment of surrendering their driver's license," said Watne.

According to Watne, there were 4,800 cases pending on January 1, 1982, and the number is now down to under 1,000. "We've eliminated the paperwork caused by ones who never seriously planned to go to court, and that's saved the state a lot of money in county court filing fees, and has allowed us to concentrate on the remaining cases," added Watne.

Gillett Says Education Can Insure Economy

Citing the need for a revitalized educational system to provide the springboard for Minnesota's economic resurgence, Dr. Lowell R. Gillett recently called for an alliance of business, industry and government to strengthen the state's schools for the challenges of the next decade.

Gillett made the remarks during his inauguration as the sixth Bemidji state university president. His inaugural address, "Between Two Ages," focused on the transition of Minnesota's industrial production-based economy to one founded on high technology and information.

"Someone has proposed that we really have two economies," Gillett said. "A sunrise economy and a sunset economy. The one is in a stage of rapid growth, the other in decline.

"I suggest that our success in developing a sunrise economy for Minnesota will depend, first, on our ability to meet the educational preconditions those industries will require. Most important of the sunrise industries will be education, because all of the others will rely on it for their basic resource — trained intelligence.

"Education will replace raw materials as the new source of capital, and those companies, those states and those nations which invest wisely in education will be those which will be capable of adapting to the transition."

While noting that Minnesota has had a historic commitment to the support of education, Gillett commented that the support has declined over a period of years through competition with other emerging priorities.

"On the other hand, there is strong evidence that the corner has been turned and there is again a developing concensus on the central role that education must play in the economic development of the state," Gillett remarked.

"Business and industry, as well as government, must assume a significant level of responsibility for assuring that education receives the resources it requires. Business and industry will need to invest in education to promote their own enlightened self-interest."

While the pressure to move into high technological professions will be strong, Gillett felt the need for broadly educated people would be greater than ever.

"As the schools, colleges and universities grasp the opportunities which the shift to a technological age will provide, we will also have thrust upon us the immense responsibility of shaping the education which will provide the moral and ethical foundation for tomorrow's leaders," he said.

"These leaders in their professional lives will give direction to an expanding and impersonal technology, a technology that has the potential to enrich the lives of all or to create a two class society of the haves and the have-nots. We must maintain the essential balance between liberal and professional education, and address the issue of quality in all we do."

Gillett, 57, has held the office of president of Bemidji state university since August following his unanimous selection to the post by the state university board May 11, 1982. He succeeded Dr. Rebecca Stafford, who resigned in December, 1981, to assume a position at Colorado state university.

OAKLAND PARK nursing home residents and staff held a special Valentine's Day party on Monday, which was highlighted by the coronation of Willie Seibel and Florence Kinney as King and Queen of Hearts. Couple was elected by the other residents of the home, and will be honored guests at a sweetheart banquet tonight, as well as representing the home at a regional pageant at Halstad this summer. Both are long-time area residents, although they are relative newcomers to the home. Party included exchange of valentines as well as special treats.

Sports Boosters Support Programs

Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club is spearheading an effort to fund the 1983 baseball and golf programs at Lincoln high school through McDonald's coupons sales. If the project is successful the Prowlers will field baseball and golf teams this spring. If not, they won't. It's that simple.

The Sports Boosters have long been involved in the support of the sports programs in Thief River Falls, and with the financial difficulties the district faces, they'll be called on even more to take an active role in the operations. Now, however, instead of simply buying ribbons and trophies, their efforts will be called on to preserve the sport itself.

And when that happens, more people will have to become involved in organizations like the Sports Boosters. It's a relatively small group that meets each Thursday for the 12-noon luncheon meetings at the Rex Cafe. The small crowds must be discouraging for the few hard working individuals who arrange the programs. Coaches cooperate and appreciate the efforts of the club, but not many fans seem interested.

If it's any consolation, Thief River Falls is not alone in that regard. Ken Hickman of the Grand Rapids Herald-Review, for instance, reported that seven coaches, three members of the news media and ten sports fans made up the crowd for a recent Grand Rapids Sports Boosters Club meeting.

But like here, when there are projects to be done, the Grand Rapids Sports Boosters membership gets it done. Trouble is, there will apparently be an awful lot of work to be done in Thief River Falls if the sports programs are to survive. It's time to come out of the closet and become a full-fledged Sports Boosters Club member.

Wiebolt Doing Well At Lowell

Scott Wiebolt, a sophomore defenseman on the University of Lowell (Mass.) hockey team continues to play well for the NCAA Division II power.

We wrote earlier this winter how Wiebolt, who played one year at Northland community college after graduating from Lincoln high school, had earned a spot in the regular rotation at Lowell, the defending NCAA Division II national champion. And he continues to perform well.

"Wiebolt is the big surprise, as the 6-3, 190-pounder from Thief River Falls has impressed everyone," said an article in the program for the fourth annual Teapot Tournament, a top Division II college hockey attraction in New England, played at the Boston Garden. "He has size and ability," explained Lowell coach Bill Riley, "and people at the R.P.I. tournament were comparing him to (NHL standout) Rod Langway. They see how good Wiebolt is, and they keep asking the questions: Why is he at Lowell? How did he slip through the Division I fishnet?"

Wiebolt was an all-tournament selection at the R.P.I. invitational. His continued improvement and strong play has helped fill a big void Lowell faced by graduation losses on the blueline.

Through 15 games Lowell was 14-1 for the year, including a 4-1 record against Division I rivals. Wiebolt had a goal and eight assists in those 15 games.

In 15 years, said officials, Lowell has gone from playing hockey on an outdoor rink behind the school's gymnasium to one of the true Division II powers in the country. Next year the Chiefs step up to Division I.

Miscellaneous

+ Detroit Lakes coach Duane Earnest, after his team lost a 6-3 Section 8 high school hockey game to Thief River Falls Friday, told Ralph Anderson of the Becker County Record that it "might have had a different result had it not been for Tim Bergland. He is perhaps the best hockey player we've seen all season and was a domineering force in the game," he said of the Thief River Falls senior forward who had a hat trick against the Lakers.

+ University of Minnesota-Crookston hockey coach Jim Clauson, after the Trojans' 10-9, 9-5 weekend sweep over Rochester that vaulted them past the Yellowjackets and into first place in the Minnesota Community College Conference standings, told Lori Mateer of the Crookston Times, "Before the series I always said we were one of the best teams in the league. Now I can say we are the best." UMC will have to prove that to Rochester, Rainy River and Northland again this weekend in the 1983 MCC state tournament at Rochester.

THIS DEFLECTION by Thief River Falls wing Jerry Hallamek (17) on a shot taken from the point by defenseman Brian Johnston produced a power play goal by the Prowlers at 14:25 of the first period in Tuesday's Section 8 high school hockey game against Warroad in the sports arena. The Prowlers led 5-0 when the first period ended and built a 9-0 lead that wound up as a 10-2 win over the Warriors. Hallamek was one of three Thief River Falls scorers with two goals in the game, the final home appearance of the 1982-83 season for the Prowlers, who end their regular season schedule Friday at Fergus Falls.

Hockey Team Takes 14-4-1 Record To Fergus Falls . . .

Prowlers Defeat Warriors 10-2

A scoring outburst that at one point produced four goals in an 85-second span of playing time carried Thief River Falls to a one-sided 10-2 Section 8 high school hockey win over Warroad Tuesday.

It was the final home appearance of the 1982-83 season for the 14-4-1 Prowlers, who were 9-1 at home. Their only setback here was a 5-2 defeat at the hands of Fergus Falls in the Thief River Falls home opener back on Dec. 11. The Prowlers close out their regular season schedule Friday at Fergus Falls.

Tim Bottem, Mitch Semanko and Jerry Hallamek each scored twice last night while Tim Bergland and Brian Johnson both collected four assists. Jeff Storhaug, Ryan Bakke, Joe Blankenfeld and Rick Spong also scored goals. Semanko added two assists for a four-point night. It was a big night for Thief River Falls defensemen as the blueliners racked up nine points.

Thief River Falls had a 5-0 first period lead to work with and nearly doubled that to 9-0 less than halfway through the second period before the assault was slowed by penalties and personnel switches.

Bergland earned assists on the first three goals. He fought off Warroad defenseman Ward Ortmann, one-handed the puck over to Bottem in front and he poked it home at 5:21.

Just 19 seconds into their first power play opportunity of the night the Prowlers made it 2-0 as Hallamek had an open net on a rebound that came out the other side on Warroad goalie Kevin Olson, a senior who had a tough night in the nets.

Spong beat Olson from a sharp angle at 10:05 and Thief River Falls hit on another power play opportunity at 14:25, scoring again 19 seconds into the man advantage situation as Hallamek put in a rebound off a deflection on a shot from the point by Johnston.

Seventeen seconds later Semanko had a perfect tip on a shot from the point by Cornell for a 5-0 edge.

Those two goals, combined with two quickies within the first 50 seconds of the second period gave the Prowlers four goals in a 1:20 span. Storhaug's slap shot caromed off Warroad defenseman Barry Marmus and slipped by Olson at the 20-second mark and 30 seconds later Semanko got a piece of a rebound in front that trickled through Olson's pads.

That made it 7-0. Blankenfeld scored on yet another deflection from the point at 4:41 and Bakke caught Olson going the wrong way with his shot during a delayed penalty call against the Warriors at 6:54.

Warroad finally put a temporary stop to the Thief River Falls offense when John Bjorkman scored on a backhand at 9:55, just moments after the Prowlers had successfully killed off a 1:49 two-man Warroad power play. Then, right after another Thief River Falls penalty-killing effort a couple of minutes later, Rick Christian scored on a tip-in to make it 9-2.

Bottem scored on a close-in backhand when both sides were skating a man short at 5:39 of the third period to close out the scoring against a team the Prowlers beat by a narrow 4-3 margin in overtime Jan. 18.

The win enabled Thief River Falls to climb past Bemidji into third place in the final Section 8 standings. Both were assured of automatic berths in the Section 8 tournament quarterfinals next week as top four finishers behind Fergus Falls and Lake of the Woods, but third place will bring a much more favorable tournament draw.

"The kids realized the importance of the game and went out there, particularly in the first period, and won it," said Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand.

Friday's Thief River Falls-Fergus Falls game won't count in the Section 8 standings, which were completed with last night's games, but will draw plenty of attention because it matches two teams with impressive records who may be headed toward a Section 8 tournament championship encounter early next month.

"I think our kids will be ready to play Friday," noted Grand. "They're looking forward to having another shot at them."

Prowler Shooting Beats Panthers 55-50 Tuesday

Thief River Falls took just 37 shots Tuesday, but the Prowlers made 22 of them for a 59 per cent shooting figure that produced a 55-50 North Half Region 8AA high school basketball win at Park Rapids.

"We would like to get more shots," admitted Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt, "but we had good shot selection. Park Rapids zoned us and we used a lot of patience on offense."

The win snaped a three-game losing streak for the Prowlers, now 6-8 for the year. It was just their second win in eight starts against Region 8AA opposition.

"It was a real good win for us," admitted Hunt. "From our standpoint, I felt it was a pretty consistent game for us, both effensively and defensively."

Thief River Falls was ahead 16-10 and 28-26 at the first two quarter stops, but fell behind 41-39 as the third quarter ended. However, the Prowlers opened up a six-point spread midway through the fourth quarter, owning a nine-point edge with 1½ minutes left.

Hunt said the Prowlers controlled the final eight minutes with defensive switches that kept the Panthers off-balance offensively.

Randy Naeseth led a balanced Thief River Falls attack with 17 points, while John Brandt had 15 and Mark Gere 14, along with eight rebounds and seven assists. Bill May matched Naeseth's 17 points for Park Rapids, most from long range.

In addition to shooting well from the field, Thief River Falls also did a good job at the free throw line in an 11-for-14 showing. Park Rapids shot 41 per cent from the field (24-for-58) and was 2-for-5 at the line. Thief River Falls had a 26-24 rebound edge and topped the turnover charts 15-11.

The Prowlers finish the 1982-83 season with a five-game homestand, beginning Friday vs. Bemidji and Saturday vs. Middle River.

A PRESENTATION WAS made to Elmer Poole Tuesday prior to the start of the Thief River Falls Section 8 high school hockey game in the sports arena by John Michael Anderson (left), president of the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club, and John Seaverson (right) president of the Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association. The plaque gave appreciation to Poole for his years of work on the Thief River Falls hockey rinks and his active interest in Thief River Falls sports teams over the years, even after his eight sons — Monroe, Joe, Jack, Pat, Mike, Larry, Tony and Bill — completed their hockey careers with the Prowlers. Although hockey was his main interest, he was a fan of all sports and attended games religiously. He was quoted in a 1977 Section 8 program article as saying, "What burns me up is when a fellow has a son playing, he's at all the games. But as soon as the boy is done playing, the father is all done, too. You have to support the team and the town. I would just as soon see another kid do well as to see my kids do well."

Top four finishers in the final regular season Minnesota Community College Conference standings — University of Minnesota-Crookston, Rochester, Northland and Rainy River — will gather in Rochester this weekend for the 1983 MCCC state hockey tournament.

Saturday semifinals will match No. 2-seeded Rochester vs. No. 3 Northland at 6 p.m. and No. 1-seeded University of Minnesota-Crookston vs. No. 4 Rainy River at 9. Sunday's schedule will include the third place game at 12 noon and the state championship game at 3 p.m.

Northland coach Tony Dorn, Jr., who directed the Northmen to a 10-8 MCCC finish in his first year at the helm, is confident going into post-season play. He likes the draw, he said, and he likes his team's chances.

"We feel confident we can play hockey with any of the teams down there," said Dorn. "The talent is there. It's just a matter of putting six periods of good hockey together in two days."

A recent Northland-Rochester series played in Thief River Falls produced a weekend split as the Northmen won the Friday night opener 6-4 and the Yellowjackets came from behind to win the Saturday afternoon rematch 7-6 in overtime.

Northland also split a four-game series against Rainy River this winter and lost three straight times to UMC before winning the final encounter 6-4 to snap a five-game losing streak and start a season-ending surge that produced five wins in the final six starts for the Northmen, who had opened the year 5-2 before hitting that mid-season slump.

"You know, I still don't know what happened in that five-game stretch," confessed Dorn, "but right now we're playing pretty good hockey. We're looking forward to this weekend."

Northland's line-up, which has remained pretty much intact most of the winter, will again feature an all-freshman first line of Tom Ose (TRF), Tom Raymond (Fargo North) and Ladd Bjugson (North). "When those guys decide to play hockey, there's nobody in this league who can stay with them," said Dorn. The second line has sophomores Todd Gregoire (EGF) and Murray Jorde (TRF) skating with freshman Todd Bergland (TRF). It's a strong forechecking unit, noted Dorn, that has been scoring well lately. A third line includes freshmen Jeff Toussaint (North), Jeff Imgrund (TRF) and Jim Dillon (TRF). "I'm confident I can put those guys out there and they'll do the job for us," pointed out Dorn. "They work hard in the corners; they're our most persistent line."

Defensively, sophomore Keith Huerd (Warroad) is paired with freshman Vic Evavold (Fergus Falls) while freshmen Bob Rockwood and Todd Graalum (both North graduates) skate together. Sophomore Trent Peabody (EGF) is the fifth blueliner. Freshmen Scott Steinbach (Fergus Falls) and Scott Trana (North) are the spare forwards for the Northmen, who are without sophomore Tony Loeffler (TRF) because of a broken arm he suffered in a season-ending series at Mesabi over the weekend.

Freshman Bill Bye (North) will be the starter in goal Saturday, but Dorn said he wouldn't hesitate to call on sophomore Greg Harder (TRF) to play in the nets during the tournament.

Gregoire leads the team in scoring with 17 goals, 24 assists and 41 points. Graalum has 19 goals, 17 assists and 26 points; Raymond 11-14 for 25; Bjugson 17-3 for 20; and Ose 7-11 for 18.

UMC, which repeated its regular season league title this weekend by sweeping Rochester on the final weekend of the season, is the defending MCCC state tournament champion and the 1983 pre-tournament favorite. But the Trojans must get by a dangerous Rainy River squad, featuring the state's best player — Gerald Bolstad, the leading scorer in the nation — in the first round and would then have to contend with revenge-minded Rochester or Northland in the finals. The Yellowjackets will want to make amends for those two season-ending losses that cost them their first league pennant and the Northmen will want to erase memories of those three regular season losses.

The MCCC state tournament winner will host Bottineau, N.D. in a two-game, total-goal Region 13 challenge match next week to determine an entry into the NJCAA tournament at Lake Placid, N.Y.

Eagles Edge Huskies To Sweep Season Series

Grygla completed a rare two-game sweep over rival Goodridge Tuesday with a 41-40 high school basketball victory. Earlier this season the Eagles beat the Huskies 47-42.

Mike Brateng hit a three-point play with under two minutes remaining to provide the visitors with the winning margin. Goodridge had a last shot to win it, but Darin Easthouse missed on a 25-footer with three seconds left.

The results left Grygla 6-9 for the year while Goodridge fell to 9-7.

"It was an exceptionally good win for us," explained Grygla coach Vern Johnson. "It was a well-played game both ways. It was too bad somebody had to lose. The breaks just went our way."

It was a 14-14 first quarter draw when Mike Brateng, who ended with 24 for Grygla, scored 10 points while Easthouse, who had 16 for Goodridge, hit 8. Goodridge nursed a 20-19 lead into halftime, with Grygla on top 27-25 at the end of the third quarter.

After Brateng's three-pointer, Scott Groven scored with about one minutes remaining to pull Goodridge within 41-40. The Huskies rebounded a missed Grygla free throw with eight seconds left leading to Easthouse's final shot that came up short.

Normally a poor-shooting club, Grygla ended up 17-for-34 from the field (50 per cent). Goodridge was 19-for-51 (38 per cent).

"We were a little more deliberate in our shots," explained Johnson. "We didn't run and gun like we have been trying to do. We didn't force the shots if they weren't there."

"They were able to dictate the tempo by keeping it slow," agreed Goodridge coach Rick Nelson. "We have to be running a little bit more to be effective. It took us out of our game."

Grygla overcame a 19-17 field goal deficit with a 7-for-16 effort at the free throw line where Goodridge was 2-for-5. Goodridge had a 23-21 rebound edge and the turnovers were minimum — five apiece.

Grygla will be at Roseau Friday, with Goodridge hosting Argyle that night.

Middle River 60
Badger 54

Middle River kept its hopes alive for a share of the North Border Conference title Tuesday with a 60-54 home court win over Badger.

The Skippers, 10-5 overall, visit Warroad Friday. The Warriors have already assured themselves of at least a title tie, but Middle River could share it with them by winning Friday. Warroad beat Middle River 58-46 earlier this winter.

"I'm confident we can win up there," said Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "We didn't play well at all when they played here and we still stayed close. If we can shoot reasonably well, we can beat them."

Middle River trailed 26-22 at halftime Tuesday, but went ahead 41-38 at the end of the third quarter and controlled the tempo the rest of the way.

Kevin Roppe had 14 points for the winners, with Dale Olson enjoying a strong 13-point effort and Brad Berg getting 12, plus holding high-scoring Mark Frosaker to 12 points with a strong defensive game. Wayne Lee, who scored just two points in the Rockets' 65-45 loss to the Skippers earlier, surprised them with 20 last night.

Middle River was 25-for-53 from the field (47 per cent) and 10-for-16 at the free throw line. Badger was 24-for-61 from the floor (39 per cent) and 6-for-10 at the line.

The Skippers, who visited Thief River Falls Saturday, were without starter Kevin McKeever, sidelined by a back problem.

Plummer 37

Plummer managed to stay with Red Lake Falls for one quarter Tuesday, but the Cardinals lost ground the rest of the way in a 65-37 Polar Conference loss to the Eagles.

Red Lake Falls took a 14-11 first quarter edge and turned it into a 38-22 halftime cushion. It was 52-25 after three quarters.

"Once they pulled away we couldn't come back on them," said Plummer coach Jim Baron, whose club fell to 1-14 for the year and faces Region 8A contender Warren Friday at home.

Dan Kees had a 20-point night for the Eagles. Best Plummer could offer was a 9-point effort by Eric Eskeli.

Red Lake Falls nearly doubled Plummer's field goal production, 31-16. The Eagles were 3-for-7 at the free throw line where the Cardinals were 5-for-15. Red Lake Falls had a 39-30 rebound edge and Plummer topped the turover charts 17-11.

Lakers Defeat Prowlers 61-41

Detroit Lakes handed the Lincoln high school girls basketball team its tenth straight loss Tuesday, 61-41.

The host Lakers jumped out to a 16-6 first quarter lead and were never headed. They had a 29-17 halftime edge and a 41-31 third quarter spread before doubling the Prowlers 20-10 over the final eight minutes.

"They just out-played us," reported Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer. "We just weren't ready to play a ball game. They obviously wanted to win it more than we did. We were out-hustled."

Joan Kunz scored 20 points for the winners, with Pia Tymberg leading the Prowlers with a strong 15-point, 15-rebound effort.

Thief River Falls shot 31 per cent from the field (17-for-55) and was just 7-for-19 at the free throw line, including eight misses in the fourth quarter — six of them on the front ends of bonus situations. Detroit Lakes shot 46 per cent from the field (27-for-59) and was 7-for-14 at the line. The Prowlers ended up with a 40-29 rebound advantage and topped the turnover charts 16-14.

Now 2-12 for the year, the Prowlers visit East Grand Forks Thursday and close out their schedule at home Tuesday vs. Fergus Falls.

Grygla Girls Beat Bears 43-28 Mon.

Grygla's man-to-man full-court pressing defense shut down the Lake of the Woods offense Monday as the Eagles beat the Bears 43-28 in girls high school basketball action.

"It was a real good game for us," acknowledged Grygla coach Bill Raduenz. "We played them pretty tough defensively."

The win improved the Eagles' record to 10-6 and put them into position to finish third in the North Border Conference with a win at Badger Thursday. Grygla ends its regular season schedule Tuesday at Goodridge.

Grygla shot 31 per cent from the field (17-for-55) and 64 per cent at the free throw line (9-for-14). Lake of the Woods shot 26 per cent from the field (11-for-42) and 55 per cent at the line (6-for-11). The Bears had a 33-28 rebound edge but also topped the turnover charts 32-12.

Middle River inched within one game of a perfect regular season Monday with an easy 54-30 win at Goodridge that improved the Skippers' record to 17-0 heading into Thursday's regular season finale at home against Marshall County Central.

Middle River, a 46-36 winner over Marshall County Central in their first meeting this winter back on Jan. 13, would finish as North Border Conference champion with a win over the Nordics Thursday. Marshall County Central would climb into a first place tie with the Skippers should the Nordics win.

Northland Hosts Rival UMC Thursday . . .

Northmen Lose 83-82 In Overtime At Fergus Falls

First place tie in the Minnesota Community College Conference Northwest Division standings was broken Monday in a head-to-head confrontation between co-leaders Fergus Falls and Northland when the Spartans emerged with an 83-82 home court win over the Northmen, in overtime.

A week earlier Fergus Falls beat Northland 101-95 in Thief River Falls. The Spartans are 8-1 in the Northwest Division, with the Northmen at 8-2 and the University of Minnesota-Crookston still in the picture at 6-3. Brainerd is 5-5.

Season-ending games this week will decide things, with the top two finishers earning berths in the 1983 MCCC state basketball tournament Feb. 24-26 at Normandale community college in Bloomington. Games this week will find UMC at Northland Wednesday and at Fergus Falls Saturday, with Brainerd going to Fergus Falls Thursday. Northland can lock up a state tournament berth with a win over the rival Trojans in Thursday's 8 p.m. encounter here. UMC will have to win both road games this week to displace Northland from the state tournament field.

Northland, after leading 36-35 at halftime Monday on Scott McKeever's shot at the buzzer, built a 75-64 advantage with 5:50 remaining in the game. But that disappeared into a 77-77 tie at the end of regulation time. Nobody scored after the Spartans' Mark Helmrichs put one in with 1:18 left.

Fergus Falls gained an early edge in the five-minute overtime and then sat on the ball. McKeever pulled Northland within 81-80 with 3:59 to go, but the Spartans clinched it when Kevin Boe sank two free throws with 10 seconds left, making it 83-80. Kyle Ramsey scored the final basket for the Northmen to make it a one-point game.

"It was a little bit disheartening," admitted Northland coach Chet Engelman, who said his team didn't play particularly well.

Dave Johnson and Helmrichs had 26 and 21 points, respectively, for the winners. McKeever had 24 for Northland, with Ramsey getting 17, plus 19 rebounds and Shorty Johnson scored 14 while grabbing 12 rebounds. High-scoring Matt Fontes ran into early foul trouble for Northland and netted just six points, some 24 below his state-leading average.

Northland shot 52 per cent from the field (36-for-69) and 63 per cent at the free throw line (10-for-16); Fergus Falls shot 40 per cent from the field (32-for-81) and 76 per cent at the line (19-for-25). Northland had a big 56-37 rebound advantage, but also topped the turnover figures 34-14.

The Northmen are 15-3 overall.

Region 8A Mat Tournaments Set Saturday

Defending champion Fertile-Beltrami will be the favorite, but Oklee-Plummer is expected to give the Falcons a strong challenge Saturday at the 1983 Northwest Sub-Region 8A high school wrestling tournament at Warren.

Those two schools finished 1-2 in both the Pine-to-Prairie and Northwest Invitational tournaments in recent weeks and many observers expect them to be meeting again in the Region 8A tournament finals Feb. 24.

Other schools in the Northwest Sub-Region 8A format are Greenbush, Roseau, Warren and East Grand Forks Sacred Heart. Schools in the Southeast Sub-Region 8A tournament at Blackduck that same day will be Waubun, Mahnomen, Fosston, Bagley, Walker, Blackduck and pre-tournament favorite Cass Lake.

Top two teams, plus the top four individuals at each weight class at the two sub-region events will advance to the Region 8A tournament at Bagley. The Region 8A team matches will be held Thurs., Feb. 24, and the individual matches are set for Sat., Feb. 26.

Wildlife Week Is Slated March 20-26

One-third of the nation's land is owned by, and maintained for, American citizens.

This common estate, often referred to as "public lands," contains uncommon variety. Compare size — the neighborhood park with the Arctic Wildlife Range; shape — windswept barrier beaches and the majestic Grand Tetons; purpose — the solitude of the wilderness, chainsaws felling timber, cattle grazing or hikers plodding along the Appalachian Trail.

In 1983, the National Wildlife Federation (NWF) will conduct a year-long campaign to remind the public of its responsibilities to ensure that the public lands are maintained for citizens to use and to enjoy.

Highlighting the campaign will be the Federation's annual national wildlife week, during which more than 15 million citizens will become actively involved in understanding public lands and the citizen's role in helping determine the best use for the public estate. Already, nearly half a million educational kits promoting wildlife week are being distributed to schools and other conservation education centers throughout the country.

"This Is Your Land: Public Lands Belong to All of Us" is the theme for wildlife week, to be observed from March 20 to 26, 1983.

National wildlife week was first proclaimed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1938 to rally public support for the restoration of a healthy and abundant wildlife population.

The 1983 theme is the fourth time the National Wildlife Federation has stressed how important public lands are to all inhabitants of the United States: the 1949 theme, "This Is Your Land — Conserve It;" the 1958 theme, "Protect Our Public Lands;" and the 1967 theme, "This Is Your Land," also served as timely reminders that public lands are one of the nation's greatest treasures.

"Our nation's growing population and increased demands for natural resources have greatly intensified the need to manage our national public lands effectively," said Jay D. Hair, Executive Vice-President of the National Wildlife Federation.

"The responsibility of balancing the needs of humans and wildlife on public lands belongs to all Americans. The more we learn about these lands, the more fully we can enjoy their benefits and actively contribute to their wise management."

All American citizens are part-owners of the 740 million acres of public lands — about one-third of the United States, an area approximately the size of India.

In 1872, the United States Congress established Yellowstone in Wyoming — the country's first national park, which was to be, Congress said, "a public park or pleasure-ground for the benefit and enjoyment of the people."

While he was president, Teddy Roosevelt reserved nearly 230 million acres for the public domain. His conservation efforts can be summarized in his own words: "We are not building this country for a day. It is to last through the ages."

Many Americans aren't aware that they are part-owners of public lands such as the White House in Washington, D.C., the sand dunes of Cape Cod National Seashore in Massachusetts, and the remains of ancient dinosaurs buried in the Dinosaur National Monument in Colorado and Utah.

America's public lands are scattered all across the continent — from the smallest city park in the East to the majestic mountain ranges

DNR NEWS

Lake of the Woods

Lake of the Woods provided 661,244 man-hours of fishing for Minnesota based sportsmen during 1982, the Department of Natural Resources reports.

DNR said this is a 53 per cent increase in fishing pressure over 1981 but was similar to the fishing pressure experienced during the 1968 season.

Department's fisheries section has been monitoring the sport fishing catch on the lake during the past two seasons as part of an intensive three year study, due to be completed in 1985.

The study consists of interviewing anglers at selected landing sites as they complete their fishing trip and is carried out from the opening of the walleye season to October 18.

Total take of gamefish on Lake of the Woods last year was 309,815 pounds, with Minnesota waters providing 250,035 pounds of the total.

Walleyes made up 84 per cent of the catch, amounting to 255,524 walleyes weighing a total of 259,953 pounds. Sauger were next with 29,076 fish weighing 18,720 pounds.

Average catch rate for walleyes last year was the same as 1981: about 2½ hours per fish.

Fishing Seasons

Fishing seasons on inland waters of Minnesota for walleyes, northern pike, muskellunge and bass closed Tuesday, Feb. 15, the Department of Natural Resources reminded today.

Trout season in lakes outside the BWCAW will close March 15. Those trout waters within the BWCAW will close March 31.

Anglers who fish water forming the boundaries between Minnesota and neighboring states and Canada were advised to consult a copy of the Minnesota fishing regulations for special rules on these rivers and lakes.

Copies of the regulations are available at DNR offices, county auditors and license agents throughout the state.

There is a continuous open season on sunfish, crappies and certain other panfish species. Anglers should review the regulations for details on limits for the waters where they fish.

Trapping Bust

Recent seizure of more than $20,000 of illegally taken furs by the Department of Natural Resources in a search of a Hibbing residence has prompted reward offers from two organizations.

Minnesota Trappers Association (MTA) and the Minnesota Furbuyers Association have offered the rewards and called the illegal fur taking operation "an outrage against legal trappers, fur dealers and the furbearer resource."

A special $200 reward fund has been established by MTA for further information leading to the arrest and conviction of those involved in the Hibbing case or any other illegal fur taking operation. Furbuyers Association is matching the MTA $200 reward for information leading to arrests in the Hibbing case.

Names of persons providing information will be kept confidential. Calls to the DNR may be placed through the TIP (Turn In Poachers) toll free number: 1-800-652-9093, or to any DNR Conservation Officer.

Enforcement officials also reminded that the TIP program provides an additional reward for information leading to an arrest for violation of any fish and wildlife laws.

Bald Eagle Program

A financial commitment by the DuPont Company will enable the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to more than double the number of bald eagles produced in capativity at the Pautuxent Wildlife Research Center in Laurel, Maryland.

Birds are later released in states where bald eagle numbers are low.

Fish and Wildlife Service Director Robert Jantzen said that DuPont's support will make a lasting contribution toward the restoration of the bald eagle. It will make it possible for more of these majestic birds to exist and to breed once again in places where their numbers have dwindled almost to the brink of extinction."

Classify Rivers

Minnesota has 91,000 miles of rivers and streams, according to a study recently completed by the Department of Natural Resources.

The state's management of these river resources through the shoreland management program has been limited, with major emphasis towards lakes. Now, recent data reveals that rivers are being developed at a rapid rate and the shoreland program does not adequately address river development concerns.

New information was gathered through the shoreland update project, funded by the Legislative Commission on Minnesota Resources.

The project has brought together data available from various sources in an attempt to develop a physical classification of rivers or segments of rivers.

Characteristics of the river and its watershed (gradient, flow, valley width, valley slope, etc.) and land use characteristics (soil, forest cover, landforms, etc.) are evaluated to place rivers, or reaches of rivers, with similar characteristics into the classes.

It is not certain at this time how many classes may evolve or how the classes will be structured, says the DNR. This classification effort is just beginning and it is anticipated that a report will be completed by early summer.

Questions regarding the project can be addressed to Bill Zachmann at 296-9224 or Tim Kelly at 296-4780.

New Bass Record

State's new official angling record for largemouth bass is 9-pounds, 4-ounces, the Department of Natural Resources reports.

Officials at the DNR's Fisheries Section said considerable research went into determining a new record for bass after the previously accepted record of 10-pounds, 2-ounces could not be verified.

New record holder is Fritz Schneider of Madison Lake who caught the fish on a jointed Rapala in Lake Washington, LeSueur County in 1978.

The fish was on display at the recent Minnesota Sport Fishing Congress held in St. Paul.

Roy Johannes of the DNR's Fisheries staff said the record should stimulate new bass angling interest in Minnesota.

Boat License Sales

As of December, 1982, a record 610,177 watercraft were registered in Minnesota, according to the Department of Natural Resources.

The figure is up 16,777 from the 1981 total, said Kim Elverum, DNR boat and water safety coordinator.

Watercraft total is broken down as follows: 463,314 motorboats; 121,004 canoes; 23,894 sailboats; and 1,965 rowboats.

Greatest increases in registration occurred in outboard and inboard-outdrive motorboats 16 to 26 feet in length and canoes.

Nationally, Minnesota is expected to hold it's place as one of the top states for boat registrations, along with Michigan and California. Final figures for other states will be announced this spring by the U.S. Coast Guard.

"Minnesota's per capital boat registration, however, should once again top the nation with one boat for every 6.67 persons," said Elverum.

Department of Interior manages nearly 70 per cent of America's public lands.

Conservation Directory Is Now Available

From clean air to clean water; from wild turkeys to wild horses, from saving the dunes to saving the tallgrass prairie — the people who know natural resources are listed in the National Wildlife Federation's 1983 Conservation Directory.

The directory includes 12,000 individuals and 1,800 organizations, from the African Wildlife Leadership Foundation to Zero Population Growth. The 300 pages of the directory's 28th edition, published recently, list key contacts and addresses for organizations involved with natural resource management in the United States and 113 countries.

Included are federal, state and Congressional officials, committees and agencies concerned with the environment, as well as thousands of citizens groups — with interests as varied as the North American wild sheep, the desert tortoise, the whooping crane and even the holly bush.

Listings of organizations — U.S. government, citizens, state and international — include the address, telephone number, names of directors, statement of purpose and the size of each group.

The directory also contains a list of U.S. and Canadian state and provincial fish and game administrators; a guide to major colleges and universities offering professional training for careers in conservation and environmental protection; lists of national forests, parks, seashores and wildlife refuges; a list of conservation offices for foreign governments; and a list of periodicals and directories of interest to conservationists.

The 1983 Conservation directory can be obtained for $9 plus $1.55 for shipping charges per order (regardless of number of books ordered) by writing to the National Wildlife Federation, 1412 16th Street, NW, Washington, D.C. 20036.

Lisa Malosky Leads St. Olaf

Lisa Malosky, who is leading the St. Olaf college women's basketball team in scoring this season, is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Bendickson of Thief River Falls.

She scored 25 points, including 11 of 12 free throws, in a win over Concordia of St. Paul last Wednesday. St. Olaf has a 14-2 record while Concordia is 14-5 on the season.

Lisa is the daughter of the former Lilah Bendickson, a Lincoln high school graduate who was a Lincoln homecoming queen and later Miss Thief River Falls. Her father, Jim Malosky, is a former Crosby-Ironton and University of Minnesota athlete who Lilah met following a high school athletic contest against Crosby-Ironton in Thief River Falls.

Malosky played football and basketball at the University of Minnesota and is now football coach of the University of Minnesota-Duluth. The Malosky's younger daughter Linda is a 5-8 freshmen guard at St. Olaf.

that stretch across the West, and the towering forests of the Pacific Northwest.

The contain long, unbroken stretches of desert dotted by flowering cactuses; light-footed herds of antelope racing across grasslands at speeds of up to 60 miles per hour; and Crystal clear lakes, rivers and streams teeming with fish.

Waterfowl by the millions nest or winter across these lands, and dozens of threatened or endangered species, such as the Florida panther and our national symbol — the bald eagle — are dependent on these lands for survival.

Public lands also contain an abundance of natural resources — crude oil, rich top soil, thick forests of trees, valuable minerals and open ranges where cattle and sheep graze.

According to Dr. Hair of the National Wildlife Federation, "President Teddy Roosevelt recognized the value of public lands, not only for their untold wealth of natural resources, but also for their unique beauty and their importance as habitat for wildlife."

Facts about public lands:

+ There are national wildlife refuges in 49 states.

+ United States bought Alaska for about two cents an acre.

+ Public lands once included 1.8 million acres.

+ There are national parks in 24 states.

+ "Wilderness" is land where a man visits but does not remain.

Judge Nygaard Does Research For Liberia

A former Thief River Falls resident has been asked by the national constitution commission of Liberia to give them details of various court systems used in the United States.

Richard Nygaard, a county judge in Erie county of California, is the son of former Thief River Falls residents Leo B. and Amanda Nygaard and a brother of Don B. Nygaard of this city. He attended elementary school in Thief River Falls.

With approval of the state department, Judge Nygaard will work nights and weekends gathering information on how U.S. federal judges are appointed by the president and confirmed by the senate, how some states elect judges and how judges in some states either run for election or are appointed by the governor when there is a vacancy.

Nygaard was asked to assist by Amos Sawyer, chairman of Liberia's national constitution commission, after Sawyer heard him speak at a conference on free elections last November in Washington, DC. He had told the conference it was an absolute necessity to have a free and independent judiciary to guarantee free elections.

Liberia was founed in 1822 by liberated slaves and has been under military rule since a coup toppled the government of William Tolbert in 1980. President Samuel K. Doe hopes to return the country to democratic rule in April of 1985 and Judge Nygaard's research will be used to develop the nation's judicial system.

Air Force Has Need For 2,000 People By Fall

Air force needs more than 2,000 people with prior-military service before September 30, according to SSgt Doug Hagen, air force recruiter, hwy. 2 west, Bemidji.

"Critically needed by the Air Force are former servicemen trained in aircraft maintenance, systems, avionics, weapons and munitions specialties — along with intelligence, computer programming and site development specialists," SSgt Doug Hagen said. Recruiters may offer these critically needed specialists their former rank back if they have not been out of the service more than four years."

"Prior-service people interested in joining the Air Force should call SSgt Doug Hagen at 218-751-6130 to determine if their specialty is still on the critical skills list."

U of M Regents OK Research Corporation

Formation of a for-profit corporation that will allow the University of Minnesota to have the benefits of expensive research equipment without the liabilities of ownership was approved by the university board of regents recently.

Research Equipment Inc. (REI), will be established as a subsidiary of the University of Minnesota foundation and will purchase expensive research equipment to be used by the university and outside clients.

If the university were to own or lease such equipment and use it, in part, to provide services to private or government clients, any income from such arrangements could be considered taxable, requiring the filing of a federal income tax return.

Two other institutions, the University of Wisconsin and Colorado State university, have recently formed similar non-tax-exempt corporations through their research foundations.

REI — 90 per cent of which will be owned by the University of Minnesota foundation, the university's fundraising arm — will operate as a seperate legal entity, but will exist for the benefit of the university. University will own 10 per cent of the shares in the corporation and will not be involved in the day-to-day working of the corporation.

In a letter to the regents, university President C. Peter Magrath outlined the advantages of such corporations, saying they:

— Provide equipment to university research faculty and graduate students on a fee basis, rather than by large capital outlays.

— Permit the sharing of costs between research projects in several organizations.

— Encourage more joint university-industry research projects.

Ownership of the Cray-1 computer, acquired last year by the university on a sale-leaseback agreement, will be assigned to REI.

Tax Refunds & Credits Reduce Tax Liability

This spring, regardless of your income, take a look at all state and federal tax credits and refunds that may be available to you. The fact that you are not eligible for one does not mean you don't qualify for another.

For example, many homeowners and renters are entitled to a property tax refund even if they have not earned enough to file an income tax return. This refund was designed to ease the property tax burden, especially for persons who pay a higher portion of their income in property taxes, either directly as homeowners or indirectly through rent. Check the 1982 gold-colored homeowners and renters property tax refund forms to see if you are eligible.

If you qualify and if you rented for all or part of 1982 in a building on which real estate tax is paid, you must file by attaching a signed rent certificate or CRP form to your property tax refund form. Your landlord should have given you a CRP form by January 31, showing how much rent you paid in 1982 and how much of it went for utilities and other costs. If your landlord didn't give you one, or if information on it is incorrect, you can file your own CRP form which you can get at the state department of revenue or a branch office.

If you live in a building on which no real estate tax is paid, you cannot file for the refund, and under a change in the law, this is now also true for persons living in a nursing home who are disabled or 65 or older.

Under another change this year, renters, senior citizens and disabled persons may no longer claim the property tax refund as a credit on their tax return. Persons eligible for the refund will now receive it only as a separate payment.

If you are married, one person — either you or your spouse — may file for a refund on the rent you paid as a couple. Roommates who shared rent in 1982 may claim equal shares of rent paid and may each file for separate refunds. Their CRP's should show their shares. Persons who moved, had overlapping rents, married or divorced in 1982 should check the instructions booklet for special directions.

If you are entitled to a refund, file your return by August 31 to avoid a late filing penalty. All renters, including senior citizens and disabled persons, will receive their refund checks on or about August 15 or within 60 days of filing their return, which ever is later. Homeowners, including senior citizens and disabled persons, will receive their refund checks during the first two weeks of October; or if the returns are filed after August 31, within 60 days.

If your adjusted gross income is $20,000 or less and if you are not someone else's dependent, look into the Minnesota low income alternative tax to see if this may reduce your state tax. If your earned income in 1982 was less than $10,000 and you lived with a dependent child, check to see if you are eligible for the federal earned income credit. If you are, this credit — which can be as high as $500 — can be applied to reduce the federal tax you owe or it can be paid as a direct refund or payment to you even if no tax was withheld from your pay.

Other allowable credits include those for child and disabled dependent care, for homemakers, for elderly persons and persons with certain disabilities. If you have questions, there are tax information numbers to call and there may be a tax assistance center near your home which serves elderly, handicapped and low-income persons free.

For state tax information call 1-800-652-9094 (toll-free) if you live outside the metro area. For federal tax information call 1-800-424-1040 toll-free for persons outside the metro area. If you are disabled, a low-income person or a senior citizen, call for information on free tax help at 1-800-652-9094 outside the metro area. Asking questions about your taxes may save you money!

QUICK QUIZ

Recent studies show that for every one percent increase in safety belt use, 172 lives could be saved. Taking this quiz could help put you in the driver's seat when it comes to safer driving.

1. More people under age 44 die from ______ than any other cause. (a) fires (b) gun shots (c) motor vehicle crashes.

3. You need only wear safety belts when you go on long trips, or if you are driving at high speeds. (a) true (b) false.

2. Over ______ percent of the motor vehicle injuries and deaths could have been eliminated if safety belts had been worn. (a) 10 (b) 30 (c) 50.

4. Being involved in a motor vehicle accident at 30 miles per hour without a safety belt is the same as jumping head first off a ______ (a) chair (b) three-story building (c) 8' stepladder.

ANSWERS: 1. (c) Motor vehicle accidents are the leading cause of death among people 44 and younger. Each year, about 50,000 people die in such accidents, the equivalent of a fully loaded 727 airliner crashing each day! 2. (c) Not wearing a safety belt more than doubles your chances of serious injury or death in a motor vehicle crash. In addition, wearing a safety belt often helps a driver to maintain control of the vehicle and avoid serious accidents. 3. (b) Eighty percent of deaths and serious injuries occur in cars traveling under 40 miles per hour and 75 percent of deaths or injuries occur less than 25 miles from home. 4. (b) According to experts at the National Highway Safety Administration, at just 30 miles per hour you'd be thrown into the dash with the same force as if you'd jumped head first off a three-story building. No one's arms are strong enough to "catch" him or herself and break a three-story fall. Safety belts are. That's why people need them on every trip. Safety belts save lives!

Veterans Are Eligible For GI Extensions

Unemployed or "under-employed" veterans may be eligible to an extension of their GI Bill benefits, the veterans administration announced today.

Frank E. Gathman, director of the Fargo VA medical and regional office center, said legislation provides for an extension of the 10-year education eligibility period for certain Vietnam-era veterans who may wish to pursue further vocational training.

He said public law 97-306 passed by congress last year calls for an increase of certain education benefit time limits to December 31, 1984.

Basic eligibility requirement is that a veteran be unemployed or under-employed for six months or more and that "some type of vocational training is required to obtain a reasonably stable employment situation consistent with his or her aptitudes and abilities," he said.

Gathman said the extension for occupational, apprenticeship and on-the-job training may not normally exceed the applicants' unused entitlement. Extension period for benefits if retroactive to January 1, 1982, and ends on December 31, 1984.

VA official urged all interested Vietnam-era veterans to contact the VA regional office in Fargo as soon as possible for more information concerning the new liberalized education extension regulations. In Fargo, veterans can call 293-3656. All other North Dakota residents can call, toll-free (800) 342-4790. Veterans in the 15 northwest Minnesota counties served by the Fargo VA regional office can call, toll-free, (800) 437-4668.

Most Sources Of Income Are Taxable

Regular paycheck is routine to many people, but not everyone lives on wages alone. If you drive a cab or wait on tables, tips are an important part of your income. Non-salary income may also come from collecting rent on an apartment you own, taking photographs at weddings, or selling the puppies produced by your terrier. Even gambling winnings are a source of income to a lucky few.

Most income is taxable, but there are tax savings you should take advantage of, advises the Minnesota society of CPAs.

Sometimes a personal hobby can be a source of income. While you cannot deduct money spent for your own pleasure, you can claim deductions if your purpose with the hobby is to make a profit. For example, if you sell a coin collection, any gain is subject to a capital gains tax, but losses are not deductible. However, if you hold on to your collection with intent to make a profit, a loss on a sale may give you a capital loss deduction. Deductions for hobby expenses cannot exceed hobby income.

Some people breed dogs or cats as a hobby. Income derived is taxable. But if you transform this hobby into a business, some of your costs are deductible.

IRS insists you show an intent to make a profit with your business. Income should exceed deductible expenses at least two out of every five consecutive tax years. In imposing this rule the IRS prevents people from claiming losses from hobbies which will never show a profit.

As a consultant, photographer or writer, you may deduct certain expenses you incur on the job. If you receive royalties for your work, or on copyrights or patents you own, you must pay tax on the royalty payments in the year you receive them.

If you receive any rental income you must report it as income when it is received. For example, if in early December you receive rent for both December and January, that rent is judged to be income for December.

Certain rental expenses are deductible, including maintenance, repairs, broker's fees and depreciation, as well as real estate taxes and interest on a mortgage.

A waiter's tips are, of course, taxable. Tip income should be reported on your tax form on the same line with salary and wages. If tips exceed $20 a month with any one employer, you are subject to both income and social security taxes.

Although it won't affect your 1982 tax return, beginning this year a new employer reporting rule on tips is in effect. The rule is designed to reduce the amount of tip income that may have gone unreported. Restaurant management is now required to report an amount equal to eight per cent of the gross receipts of the restaurant, and allocate tip income among employees waiting on tables.

When you file your annual return, special tax forms are required to report most non-salary income and expenses. Tax Schedule E, "Supplemental Income Schedule," has space to list income and losses from rents and royalties, partnerships, estates or trusts, and small business corporations. Any income and deductions for paid consulting, photography or writing work can be listed on tax Schedule C, "profit or (loss) from business or profession."

Tax reporting rules apply to other income as well. If you receive payment for jury duty, you must report it as income, unless you were required to turn it over to your employer.

Gambling winnings are reported on your form 1040 return, line 21 for "other income." Gambling losses are deductible up to the amount of your winnings. Losses are deducted on tax Schedule A, under "miscellaneous deductions."

When do you receive the first benefits of a Banco IRA?

April 15.

Or to be more exact, it would be the actual date when you file your federal income tax return for 1982.

That's when you realize that a Banco IRA is much more than something you will enjoy years into the future.

It's a substantial tax shelter for today.

And you can open an IRA to qualify as a 1982 tax deduction any time this year, up until the day when you must file your tax return. It could be April 15. Or later in some cases.

At any rate, that's the time when you deduct from your gross income the money you've invested in your IRA. The result can be a pleasant surprise.

For example, if you are in the 30%-50% tax bracket and invest $1,000 in a Banco IRA, you'll save $300-$500 in federal income taxes. And the more you earn, the more you save on your final tax bill.

In fact, you pay no taxes on the money you invest or on the earnings of your IRA until you start withdrawing your funds upon retirement. And by then you're likely to be in a lower bracket so your final tax bill is bound to be less.

If you've been thinking about opening a Banco IRA you'll be in good company.

Your Banco Bank is an important part of Northwest Bancorporation which has $17 billion in assets. That's a good thing to know.

See your Banco Bank. It's the right place to come to for an IRA.

Substantial penalty for early withdrawal prior to age 59½. Maximum investment in an IRA is $2,000 per year

All IRA plans are not alike.
Compare Banco's 18-month floating rate IRA.
- 10% Minimum Rate Guaranteed—through July 1, 1983.
- No minimum deposit. ($25 minimum for automatic transfers.)
- No fees.
- Flexible—You add to your investment any time and all deposits mature on the same date as the first deposit.
- Security—Your deposits are insured by the FDIC. And in the care of Northwest Bancorporation, with $17 billion in assets.

PINES IN WINTER

Among the many kinds of trees in existence, very few retain their foliage during the cold winter months. Only a few withstand the driving winds and storms and still maintain beautiful green branches.

The graceful scene below shows a remarkable characteristic in the pine tree. Some miraculous element within the pine enables it to display its lush greenery amid the whiteness of fallen snow.

Such are the amazing qualities of nature — the millions of wonders in God's creation.

In order to understand more fully the God-given powers within ourselves, we must study the Holy Word and attend regularly the services of our church or synagogue. By doing this we will come to realize our potentialities and talents and will learn to live a fuller more useful life.

Colors Elicit Expectations

COLOR FEBRUARY RED FOR ACTION

Color perception depends upon many complex scientific factors. Conditioning and training, however, influence color perception of many objects, including foods. For instance, apples are expected to be red, green or yellow and never blue.

Colors of food also affect taste perception. Studies reveal that certain colors elicit certain expectations. For example, reds excite and call the viewer to action. Red is frequently associated with sweet, succulent flavors.

Valentines and George Washington's cherry tree create expectations of the color red. Home economists in the Betty Crocker Kitchens have developed two timely recipes that permit us to fulfill color and taste expectations of the ingredients. Maraschino cherries flavor, as well as color, Angel Soufflé. Red tart cherries add color and excitement to Date-Cherry Crumble Dessert.

Angel Soufflé

1 package Betty Crocker white angel food cake mix
1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese, softened
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups chilled whipping cream
1 jar (10 ounces) maraschino cherries, drained
1 cup miniature marshmallows

Bake and cool cake as directed on package. Tear cake into about 1-inch pieces. Beat cream cheese, sugar and vanilla in small bowl on medium speed, scraping bowl occasionally, until smooth and creamy. Beat whipping cream in chilled bowl until stiff. Gently fold whipped cream, cherries and marshmallows into cream cheese mixture.

Toss cake pieces and cream cheese mixture. Make 4-inch band of aluminum foil 2 inches longer than circumference of 6-cup soufflé dish. Extend dish by securing band around outside of dish. Turn angel food mixture into dish. Refrigerate unil set, about 8 hours. Refrigerate any remaining soufflé. 12 to 16 servings.

High Altitude Directions (3500 to 6500 feet): Prepare cake mix as directed in high altitude directions on package. Continue as directed in recipe.

Date-Cherry Crumble Dessert

1 package Betty Crocker date bar mix
1 can (16 ounces) pitted dark sweet or red tart cherries, drained and coarsely chopped
Whipped cream or ice cream

Heat oven to 375°. Prepare Date Mix and crumb mix as directed on package. Stir cherries into date mixture. Press half of the crumb mixture lightly in ungreased square pan, 8x8x2 inches.

Top with cherry mixture. Sprinkle remaining crumb mixture over cherry mixture. Bake until crumb mixture is golden brown, 30 to 35 minutes. Serve warm with whipped cream. About 8 servings.

Needless Legislation

There is no doubt that the United States of America is facing some very difficult problems that need legislative effort and assistance to solve. It is therefore disappointing that at least some of our U.S. senators and representatives are devoting their time to unnecessary legislation.

Sen. Dave Durenberger has introduced legislation which he claims would make it easier for elderly and disabled Americans to vote in federal elections. His bill would require that registration and polling places be located in a building which can be made accessible by wheelchair, voting facilities be on the ground floor unless accessible by elevator, large-print voting instructions be prepared for the visually impaired, paper ballots printed for voters who can't operate a voting machine and (get this!) absentee ballots for persons confined to a home due to age, illness or disability.

It seems like we have been picking on Senator Durenberger quite a bit lately, but only because we think he has been coming up short in the smarts department. He has been campaigning when he should be concentrating on the major issues which threaten our nation.

Provision is presently made for people who can't be physically present at a polling place to vote by absentee ballot. What else is necessary? The vote cast by absentee ballot counts every bit as much as the one cast in person at the polls. No eligible voter need be disenfranchised under present law.

"Who knows how many elderly and disabled persons are sitting at home on election day because they can't climb a flight of stairs, because the building isn't accessible by wheelchair or because they can't see who is on the ballot?" the senator asks in his news release.

"All people have the right to decide who shall represent them. That right doesn't belong just to those with good health on election day or to those who are not in a wheelchair. That right belongs to everyone, and we have to make sure everyone can vote."

Wake up and look around you, Dave. That kind of talk is indicative of some very shallow thinking. Everyone who is eligible CAN vote under the present system. No new laws are needed, no revamping of election places or equipment, no political rhetoric to play on the emotions of senior citizens or handicapped, no spending of congressional time on needless legislation.

Surely there are things to be done in Washington that can occupy a senator's time in a more productive manner.

The World's Manipulator

Following editorial by Richard Sprouse appeared in a recent edition of the "Northern Student", the student newspaper at Bemidji state university:

In October 1981, 150,000 Londoners took to the streets to participate in the largest "peace" demonstration in history. They came armed with placards and chants exclaiming a fervent hate of NATO and America. A jingoist replica of Ronald Reagan accompanied a 19-foot-long balloon in the shape of a cruise missile into London's Hyde Park. The next day 350,000 nuclear arms protestors blocked main thoroughfares in Brussels, Oslo, Paris and Rome declaring NATO a "warmonger."

A chance occurrence? No. This is an example of the most cooly calculated propaganda offensive since the 1930's call for a Popular Front of European communist and socialist parties. Who are the manipulators of these burgeoning peace groups? Why, the peace-groups staunchest financial supporter and allie, the Soviet Union. British defense minister, Geoffrey Pattie said, "The skill of the communists and the far left lies in their ability to foster and support a movement that draws in large numbers of non-political people by playing on their legitimate anxietes."

Western intelligence sources believe that the Communist fronted World Peace Council in Helsinki and the Kremlin donated more than $100 million per year to many of these alleged non-political groups. Their goal: to subtly persuade and intimidate Western Europeans to unilateral disarmament, isolation, and finally vulnerability.

In November 1981, the Danish government deported Soviet diplomat Vladimir Merkoulov for channeling funds to anti-nuclear groups. Several months earlier, the Dutch ousted Vadim Leonov (a KGB agent posing as a Tass Correspondent) for serving as a liaison between the Soviet Government and peace activist groups. While being interrogated by Dutch intelligence Leonov confided, "If Moscow decides that 50,000 demonstrators must take to the streets in Holland, they will take to the streets."

It's well known that the Soviets have a keen interest in political and social developments in West Germany. In November 1981, veteran communist Josef Weber gathered several hundred assorted environmentalists, conscientious objectors, and other non-communists to begin a nationwide nuclear-arms protest campaign called the Krefeld Appeal. Weber succeeded in having 1.5 million unsuspecting West Germans sign the petition unaware that his group, the German Peace Union, was fronted by the Soviets.

The peace movement in Great Britian is led by the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament (CND), which advocates unilateral disarming. In November 1981, President Reagan proposed joint nuclear reductions, canceling U.S. plans to deploy cruise and Pershing II missiles in Western Europe if the Soviets would dismantle their missiles. CND immediately denounced the Reagan proposal as "a propaganda ploy."

One of the most naive assertions made by unilateralists is their view that countries without weapons are less likely to be nuclear targets. An example of such as asinine assertion is what happened in Sweden, a country that's not member of NATO and has no nuclear weapons. In October 1981, Sweden discovered a nuclear-armed Soviet submarine (well inside its territorial waters) stranded in a restricted military zone ten miles from the country's most secret naval base.

Coincidence? Hardly, Soviet leaders have proclaimed their desire for worldwide communist domination since grabbing power in 1917. A good example of these unchanging goals is the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan. Nuclear disarmers are always quick to point out American involvement in Vietnam, Central America, etc. as examples of America's aggressiveness. To juxtapose Soviet and American involvement in world affairs is insipid, factious, and insulting. Since 1917, some 25 million people have died under Soviet repression inside Russia and its satellites — tens of thousands in Afganistan alone. Admittedly, the U.S. doesn't have a 1,000 batting average, it never has, it never will. However, we must remember that being a world leader is a precarious, yet desirable position, one we must never let be subverted by such splinter groups as the peace movement.

Europe has been at peace for nearly 37 years because of the existence of a balance of nuclear power, a fact unilaterialists fail to accept. Despite the peace movement's idealistic yearning for a utopian world in which all can live in peace, the sad fact is that, throughout history, communities unwilling to defend themselves have not survived.

Excluding the obvious Soviet threat, how could any disarmed country stand up to a Muammar Quaddafi or any other nuclear armed bully? Unilaterialists fail to spell out an alternative defense policy.

To unilaterally disarm would be a great mistake for the U.S. and Western Europe. To do so is to play into the Soviet's hand. As British church man William Inge said, "There is not much use in sheep passing resolutions in favor of vegetarianism while there are still wolves who like mutton."

Borrowed Nonsense:

In days of barter, the community's cheapest man stopped at the general store and offered to trade an egg for a darning needle. The trade made, he asked the storekeeper for a treat.

"You want me to treat on a little trade like that?" the storekeeper asked.

"A trade's a trade," the cheap man replied. "How about a glass of wine?"

The wine was poured, he took a sip, then smacked his lips and said, "Say, why don't you just put an egg in this here wine? It would taste a bit better."

The storekeeper cracked the egg which the man had traded, and when it fell into the wine it proved to have two yolks."

"Hey, look here!" the cheapster yelled. "This egg's got a double yolk. Don't you think you owe me another needle?"

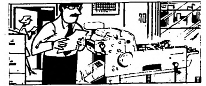
Nervous office boy: "Please sir, I think you're wanted on the phone."

Boss: "You think? Don't you know?"

Boy: "Well, sir, the voice said 'Hello, is that you, you old idiot?' "

Technology In Our Lives

A SOLUTION TO GHOSTS



More and more printers haunted by ghosts and other problems that crop up in the everyday production of printed material now have a solution. They, and businesses with offsetting and duplicating requirements, are not only getting electrostatic solutions and desensitizing solutions, but improved technology as well. The result is quality reproduction.

For example, one offset printer, the Multilith 1250, gives sharp, clear images, and its advanced engineering allows it to produce almost every kind of printing asked of it; from small cards to sheets over 11x17 inches; from common bonds and lightweight carbonless sets to heavy card stock. All this at speeds up to 10,000 impressions an hour. Experts say that makes it the most productive press in its class.

Moreover, businessmen and printers who use this advanced press also get free technical advice. They simply call (312) 398-1900 and ask for the Multi Supply Specialist. A solutions brochure is also available at no cost by writing to: Multigraphics, Dept. S, 1800 West Central Road, Mount Prospect, IL 60056.

CAPITOL COMMENTARY

by LeRoy Stumpf

State Senator — District 1

New truck weight regulations that have taken effect during the past two years are creating problems for many farmers, grain elevator operators and truck companies in our district.

The regulations require all truck drivers to carry a "bill of lading" giving information about what they're carrying and how much their load weighs. The grain elevators and others who receive the loads also must keep records of the weight of each shipment. The state department of transportation uses those records, sometimes months later, to determine whether drivers have exceeded the weight limits on their routes.

In addition to those changes, a new schedule for fines on overweight trucks took effect in 1981. Last April, the responsibility for enforcing truck weight limits was transferred from the offices of county and city attorneys to the Minnesota attorney general's office.

There was a great deal of confusion about exactly what the new regulations were, and when they would take effect. As a result, many farmers, grain elevators and truck companies were charged steep fines, sometimes amounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The problem is particularly severe in northern Minnesota. The weight limits on many roads are not high enough to handle trucks carrying grain and other products.

In some places, truckers driving down a certain-ton route find themselves at a bottleneck; i.e., a lower limit bridge or a stretch of road that they must cross in order to return to the higher-ton roadway. Our temporary route designation has helped this problem, but has also added to some of the confusion surrounding the fines.

The misunderstanding and confusion surrounding the new regulations raises the question of whether some of the fines can be duly processed. In some cases, the fines are so high that companies face the prospect of being forced out of business.

I met recently with Attorney General Skip Humphrey and about 50 people in the farming, trucking and construction industries to discuss the problem. As a result of that meeting, I am co-sponsoring a bill that would address truck weight limits. The bill would allow trucks carrying only raw and unfinished forest products or unprocessed or raw farm products to exceed the weight limit by up to 10 per cent without being charged a fine.

The attorney general has agreed to review the high fines that have been levied in recent months, and consider whether some of them should be reduced. We also are looking at specific bottlenecks in our road system, such as bridges that have low load limits, to see if we can get rid of some of those obstacles. I am hopeful that all of these efforts will help solve the problem.

I encourage all of you to contact me about this issue or others of concern. My office address is 306 Capitol Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155, and my telephone is (612) 296-8660.

REPORT

From The

Minnesota House of Representatives

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

Chairman of the House Tax committee has initiated some discussion on the subject of giving a state tax break similar to the federal one on IRA's (Individual Retirement Accounts).

The federal government currently permits Minnesotans who invest in IRA's to take a tax reduction even though they have pension plans where they are employed. The state does not have such a provision.

Representative John Tomlinson, chairman of the tax committee, said last week he may include the proposal in a tax simplification bill currently being debated in committee. It would allow a reduction on taxable income up to $2,000 for an individual, and $4,000 for a couple.

We're faced with the large task in the 1983 legislative session of hammering out a 1983-85 budget, but we will also be making a special effort to scrutinize important agriculture issues facing the state.

During the first few weeks of the session the agriculture committee has been hearing from farm and transportation organizations and individual farmers on their suggestions for improving our farm economy and their other concerns. It is the ongoing intention of the legislature to open up the committee process to every segment of the Minnesota population to help pinpoint the problems so that we can better address solutions to those problems.

On the agricultural scene, the legislature will most certainly look at ways to improve markets for Minnesota agricultural products and to expand the processing of our own crops here at home.

At a recent committee meeting, Agriculture Commissioner Jim Nichols said that despite overflowing grain bins we have imported 50 million gallons of Brazilian ethanol, made from corn. "It's ludicrous to do that," he said. "We've got to get into the business of processing our crops into more valuable products, such as ethanol, if we want to revive the Minnesota farm economy."

Programs like these would provide a market for surplus grain and create jobs. Governor Perpich will shortly make a recommendation on how to increase the processing of agriculture products in Minnesota, and he has already proposed that $6.7 million be spent on market development to promote international trade.

A minimum price bill — sometimes referred to as the interstate grain cartel bill — is still being discussed by some legislators and farm organizations. Spokespersons from six farm organizations have explained their positions on this issue to the agriculture committee.

Other issues which came up in the organizations' presentations were the pros and cons on a moratorium on farm foreclosures, nuisance suits against farm odors and noises, and the President's payment in kind (PIK) proposal.

New legislation governing grain handling is necessary to reduce the risks to farmers as they contract to transport, store and sell grain, because the current law expires this year.

Truckers, appearing before the agriculture committee, said they have tried to be a service to rural Minnesota but that their services have been gravely affected by the poor condition of our farm economy. Where there used to be 12,000 independent truckers in Minnesota, now there are only 6,000. They likened their situation to the farmers' because many truckers mortgage their homes to pay for their trucks. If they can't meet their mortgage payments, they lose their homes and their livelihoods, just as farmers do if they lose their farms.

Highway funds continue to dwindle, so this compounds shipping problems. The legislature may be taking a look at House File 60, a highway improvement bill. Considering the recent federal gas tax hike and the independent truckers' strike, this legislation (which calls for a gas tax increase to raise funds for highway and bridge repair) will be hotly debated — even though it is estimated it could create about 20,000 jobs in the next four years.

Some of the people who have spoken before the agriculture committee feel the general public is not really as aware of farm problems as they should be. They said the federal and state government must deal with the urgency and severity of farm questions.

I agree with that and also with their suggestions that government must face up to the trends in agriculture and formulate policies for the future in line with those trends. As one person said, "If we have a healthy agricultural economy, we will have a healthy state economy."

Big Tastin' Sloppy Joe Pie Is New Twist On Old Favorite

Satisfy hearty appetites with this quick-to-fix main dish pie made with the popular ingredients of sloppy joes. The thick and chewy crust, easy to make with refrigerated flaky biscuits, is filled with a savory sloppy joe mixture topped with cheese.

BIG TASTIN' SLOPPY JOE PIE

- 1 lb. ground beef
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 8-oz. can tomato sauce
- 8-oz. can whole kernel corn, drained
- 1/4 cup water
- 1 envelope (1.31 oz.) sloppy joe or chili seasoning mix
- 10-oz. can Hungry Jack refrigerated flaky biscuits
- 2 tablespoons milk
- 1/3 cup cornmeal
- 4 oz. (1 cup) shredded cheddar cheese

Heat oven to 375°F. Brown ground beef and onion; drain. Stir in tomato sauce, corn, water and seasoning mix. Heat meat mixture until hot and bubbly; reduce heat and simmer while preparing crust. Separate biscuit dough into 10 biscuits; flatten slightly. Dip each in milk, then in cornmeal. Arrange 7 biscuits around sides and 3 on bottom of ungreased 9 or 10-inch pie plate; press biscuits to form crust. (Biscuits will form petal-like shape around rim of pan.) Sprinkle crust with 1/2 cup cheese. Spoon hot meat mixture over cheese; sprinkle with remaining cheese. Bake 20 to 25 minutes until crust is deep golden brown. Cool 5 minutes before serving. 4 to 6 servings.

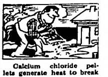
Ice, Not Snow, Is Winter's #1 Foe



Ice, not snow, is the winter traveler's worst enemy say street-wise "snow pros."

According to a consensus of Snowbelt state highway maintenance engineers, ice is the one winter weather condition worth fearing.

"Snow is dangerous primarily with its first appearance because people have forgotten how to safely acclimate themselves to this driving condition," according to John Shafer, director of traffic and safety at the New York State Transportation Department.

However, once motorists adjust to snowy roads, it is a less dangerous condition than ice, say the snow pros, because snow is visible; ice usually is not.

"Ice on pavement is not easily recognized and can set the winter stage for tragedy," says Don Witten, public affairs officer at the National Weather Service. The numbers prove it as "over 85 percent of ice storm deaths are traffic related."

The dangers of ice, however, are not only confined to streets and highways. Ice forming around the home causes many slip-ups as well.

The best way to reduce ice-related accidents around the home is to use the method highway snow pros have relied upon for more than 50 years—calcium chloride.

Calcium chloride pellets generate heat to break through ice, even at temperatures down to minus 25°F. And they don't leave a white residue to track onto floors and carpets like rock salt does.

Rock salt (or sodium chloride) has been the most commonly used chemical deicer by consumers. Although it melts ice and produces traction, rock salt becomes virtually ineffective at temperatures below 20° to 25°F.

"The big advantage of calcium chloride pellets over rock salt is that they do the hardest work for shovelers," says Henry Kirchner, technical specialist for The Dow Chemical Company. "Because calcium chloride releases heat, it breaks up ice quickly and continuously. The remaining slush is then easily shoveled aside.

"Consumers should look past brand names on deicers to see if they are made of calcium chloride pellets or rock salt. This way, they'll be sure to buy the most effective deicer."

SPORTS SHORTS

Some Wise Words For Sports Enthusiasts

If you're a sports enthusiast—whether it be basketball, baseball, jogging, tennis or roller skating—it's important to be physically prepared for activity. Your body is especially vulnerable after a period of inactivity, whatever the reason. Therefore, it's important to begin slowly with a routine of warm-up exercise.

Don't forget your skin when it comes to sports. It will need extra protection when exposed to sunlight so use a sunscreen. For the inevitable scrapes and cuts, keep an ample supply of bandages and first-aid products on hand. Many families prefer the new Curad Flexible bandage, a good high-action bandage for active people.

Sports enthusiasts especially like the way the new flexible fabric bandages move with you and adhere over bendable areas. They're available in a variety of sizes including pads large enough to cover elbows and knees. Since many cuts and bruises occur over joints, you might try using the pads as protection on vulnerable areas to help prevent injury. Whatever favorite pastime lures you out of doors, take the time to learn the risks involved. Take adequate protection before starting and carry a supply of bandages in your backpack or pocket.

TRF Foundation Assists 33 Students With Loans

Thief River Falls foundation completed its fiscal year ending Nov. 30, 1982 with $52,884 in loans outstanding to 33 people who are either still enrolled in post high school education or have completed their educational programs.

Report on the year's activity was made by secretary-treasurer Ronald L. Hanson at the foundation's annual meeting Thursday afternoon in the board room of First Federal savings and loan association in Thief River Falls.

Hanson noted that four loans were paid in full during the year and that 27 of the loans are presently being repaid. Other loans involve students currently in school who are not scheduled to begin repayment until they complete their schooling. The foundation offers student loans at a low interest rate to assist as many as possible with financing their educations.

The students repaying loans paid $6,386 in principal and interest during the year, and those payments were or will be reinvested in new loans to students. Loans totaling $8,500 were advanced during the past fiscal year.

Randall Noper was reelected president of the foundation's board of directors at the annual meeting. Vice president Marvin Lundin and secretary-treasurer Hanson were also reelected. Named to the board of directors to succeed L.B. Hartz — the last remaining charter member of the foundation — was Everett Kompelien.

Total assets of the corporation at the end of the 1982 fiscal year were $54,572, indicating that nearly all of the assets are in the form of loans to students. Contributions made at the annual meeting included $100 annual scholarships for one student at Northland community college and one at the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute.

Interest income for the year was $1,968 and expense including secretary-treasurer's salary, office expense including audit and internal revenue service tax payment totaled $1,108.

Total cash receipts for the year were $12,780 and disbursements were $12,608, leaving a cash balance at the end of the year of $687.17. Receipts during the year included $6,386 in principal payments, $1,968 in interest payments, $3,300 in transfer from savings, $25 in memorials and $1,100 in donations.

Disbursements included $8,500 in loan advances, $2,800 transfer to savings, $1,087 in operating expenses, $21 in the IRS payment and $200 in the NCC and AVTI scholarships.

The non-profit foundation directors again noted that work of the organization would be aided greatly by receipt of additional funds in the form of grants, bequests or memorials. Anyone who would be interested in contributing toward the availability of loan funds to local students is invited to contact Ronald L. Hanson at First Federal savings and loan association.

SATURDAY'S CROWD at the third annual gun show in Thief River Falls totaled more than 700 people in addition to dealers and their families. Guns, coins and antiques as well as other outdoor-related items were on display in the national guard armory Saturday and Sunday. Snow on Saturday night and slippery roads throughout the area reduced the crowd somewhat on Sunday although show officials were satisfied with the attendance. Hardy Hodge, who coordinated the show, said that paid attendance was estimated at about 1,200 for the two days although a final count had not been made. He said that 110 tables were rented to exhibitors for the show and that he had to turn down requests for 30 to 40 more tables because of the capacity of the armory had been reached. "Impact on the community should have been very positive," Hodge said. "My informal survey showed that 80 people stayed overnight in Thief River Falls as a result of the show and that this year's exhibitors seemed well satisfied and intended to participate again next year."

LAW ENFORCEMENT Legislative Day was held at the state capitol, sponsored by the Minnesota police and peace officers association and the joint association of chiefs of police and sheriffs. Officers attended workshops on legislation as it affects law enforcement, legislative committee hearings on proposed legislation, and an informal open meeting with senators and representatives. Visiting above are (left to right) Pennington county sheriff Charles Richards, immediate past president of the Minnesota sheriff's association; District 1B State Representative Wally Sparby; Marshall county sheriff Dennis Brekke, Warren; and Ken Froschheiser, Thief River Falls chief of police and current president of the Minnesota chiefs of police association.

Education Board Airs Food Service

Thief River Falls board of education received and discussed a report on food service economies at the regular meeting conducted recently at the school district service center.

A report by the Joe Pupillo food consultant firm was presented which showed how economies could be made through portion control and menu preparation, amount of waste and inefficiency in preparation, and in marketing the program. A number of the recommendations have already been put into effect and a recommendation will be presented to the board later to decrease the charge for meals while still being able to make some other cuts and maintain a positive balance.

The board accepted a low bid of $111,824 from the Blue Bird company for two 87-passenger transit buses but rejected the only bid of $745 received for sale of the 1973 bus offered for sale. The new diesel buses are expected to provide transportation economies by reduced fuel consumption and larger routes within close proximity of the city.

Two firms made presentations concerning possibility of their employment as bond consultants for the sale of aid and-or tax anticipation certificates. The Evensen-Dodge, Inc., firm was selected if it supplies the board with additional cash flow data and the board determines to proceed with the sale of certificates.

Revenue budget for 1982-83 was revised downward from $7,277,388 to $7,181,969 and the administration was requested to provide the board with a list of potential expenditure reductions that might be made in the current fiscal year to

Screening For Preschoolers Set Feb. 23-25

On February 23-25 the Thief River Falls public schools will be conducting its annual preschool screening clinic, designed to check the current status of children ages 3½ to 4½ years in the areas of vision, hearing, speech, language and development.

The screening is conducted by trained professionals from both the public school system and the county public health service and is provided at no cost to the parent.

Parents who have a child who falls within that age group, who will not become five prior to Sept. 1, 1983 and have not been contacted by the school system, are asked to call Ida Frodahl at 681-2700, ext. 240 between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Preschool screening is a voluntary program for parents designed to assist them in making their child ready for entry into school. For answers to any further questions, please contact the office of the director of special education, Thief River Falls public schools.

Competition Is Keen For City's Funding Request

Thief River Falls' application for a Minnesota small cities development grant is in for keen competition, according to information received last week by Jack Quinlivan, city planner for Thief River Falls who developed the grant application.

Quinlivan was informed by the Minnesota department of energy, planning and development that some 150 applications had been filed for the $20 million in funds available, and that the applications had totaled in excess of $80 million.

Thief River Falls' request is for $548,226 in federal funding to be distributed through the state energy, planning and development department's office of local government. The grant application shows that local effort of $3,533,480 will be applied to the projects for which grants are requested, providing a high ratio of local effort to grant funds, Quinlivan said.

Projects for which funds have been requested through the state include: $55,000 for the occupational development center to rehabilitate the building and purchase more efficient equipment, thereby retaining 41 existing jobs and creating 15 new jobs;

$79,226 for United Satellite systems to expand the current plant by 4,000 square feet and purchase additional equipment, thereby creating 25 new jobs;

$300,000 to Arctco, Inc., for building rehabilitation and equipment for manufacture of snowmobiles, thereby creating 64 new jobs in 1983, 22 additional jobs in 1984 and 30 additional jobs in 1985, a total of 116 new jobs over a three-year period;

$97,000 to Hydra-Mac to finance the purchase of additional equipment and rehabilitation of existing building to accommodate the new equipment and for moving of D&E Machining from Wahpeton, ND, to Thief River Falls.

The city planner's application request notes that Thief River Falls is experiencing high unemployment, a population decline, a decline in construction and property sales and an increase in welfare and other government subsidies.

Proposal being made would provide four industries with loans to purchase equipment and modernize their operations, resulting in job creation and retention, and create a revolving loan fund to provide for future job creation and-or retention.

Quinlivan's application shows that the proposal would retain 71 jobs in the manufacturing sector, create 115 new jobs in the manufacturing sector and raise the prevailing wage rate. The 115 new jobs would raise the employment in that area from 368 to 483 by the spring of 1984, the application states.

Cost-effectiveness is pointed out as well as the maximum benefits to low and moderate income people in the community. Public cost per job created or retained in the first year would be $2,856. The public grant of $548,226 would stimulate $3,533,480 in private funds for private to public ratio of $6.65 to $1.

An employment comparison for Thief River Falls for 1980 and 1982 shows a substantial change. In March of 1980, the community's top 10 employers and numbers of employees at each included Arctic Enterprises, 691; School District 564, 521; Northwestern hospital, 375; Hydra-Mac, Inc., 155; Soo Line, 150; L. B. Hartz wholesale, 145; Land O'Lakes, 144; Bridgeman's, 65; Forsberg's, 64; and Toreq, 35.

In December of 1982 the top 10 employers were Northwestern hospital, 480; School District 564, 350; Soo Line, 150; Pennington county, 185; Land O'Lakes, 137; city of Thief River Falls, 130; L. B. Hartz wholesale, 129; Best Western, 100; Kmart, 89; and Bridgeman's, 75.

While six manufacturing companies were among the top 10 employers in 1980, only two were included in 1982 while three public governmental agencies were among the top employers in 1982 compared to only one in 1980.

Job placements through the local office of Minnesota Job Service for non-agricultural employment have declined from 2,145 in 1979 to 1,240 in 1980, 1,049 in 1981 and 816 in

Arctco Counting On HUD Grant And Local Funds

A statement attributed to Bill Ness of Arctco, Inc., of Thief River Falls in Wednesday's edition of the Times resulted from a misunderstanding by the writer of a statement made by Ness in discussing the company's plans to produce Arctic Cat snowmobiles in Thief River Falls for the 1983-84 marketing year.

The Times article stated: "Application has also been made by the city of Thief River Falls for a federal HUD grant which would be loaned by the city to Arctco to assist in start-up operations. Ness said the funds would be a great help to the company but are not at present considered as essential."

Ness said that the HUD grant would indeed be vital to the company's efforts, both for start-up and future operations. His statement during the interview for Wednesday's story concerned only the company's agreement with its lender, which did not make the HUD grant an essential part of its financing agreement.

"The contract with the bank requires us to actively pursue that grant," Ness said, "but does not make financing contingent on receipt of the funds. So while the grant may not be essential to our bankers, as a condition for the loan, we still consider it to be essential to us as it would impact on the operations of the company."

Ness also said that local funding assistance through Jobs Incorporated in the amount of about $200,000 is a requirement of the bank loan agreement. Cooperative efforts toward acquiring that assistance are currently underway.

At a meeting of the board of directors of Jobs Incorporated of Thief River Falls Thursday evening, a resolution was adopted to assist Arctco, Inc., in securing up to $200,000 locally to provide Arctco with additional local equity. Methods are being studied to accomplish that goal to satisfy the requirements of the lender and comply with regulations of the various governmental securities divisions.

Stan Upham, president of the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce — which Jobs Incorporated is a division — said that local support is being sought for both the local financing and the HUD small cities grant. He suggested that interested community residents write to Rep. Wallace Sparby and Sen. LeRoy Stumpf at the state capitol in St. Paul and indicate their interest in grant approval.

Ness also said that interest was already being expressed by dealers late last week in the 1983-84 production of two Arctic Cat models, the Panther and El Tigre. The company is seeking confirmed orders for 2,000 units by March 1 and is currently making telephone follow-up to letters sent to about 1,100 dealers last Tuesday.

NEARLY EVERYONE wanted to get in the picture during a program conducted as part of the "Art Adventure in the schools" program at Northrop elementary school on Thursday. Students were eager to come forward and pose behind a frame in an attempt to duplicate one of several famous paintings donated to the schools of Thief River Falls by Northern state bank, with assistance in selection by the Zehlians, a federated women's club, and program volunteers.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Gail Peterson And Tim Pugmire Wed In TRF

Gail Peterson and Tim Pugmire were united in marriage at Redeemer Lutheran church in this city on December 4 at a 4:00 p.m., at a double ring ceremony. Rev. Donald Knudson officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Evelyn Peterson of this city and the late Elvin Peterson. Mr. and Mrs. Tim Pugmire of New Ulm are the parents of the groom.

Mrs. Joyce Halbasch played Lohengrin's "Wedding March," as the bride was escorted to the altar by her brother Douglas Peterson. Julie Barach of Minneapolis sang "Let it Be Me," as the couple lit the Unity candle, and "The Lord's Prayer," as the conclusion of the ceremony.

Red poinsettias, together with tall white tapers in candelabra trimmed with greenery and white silk ribbon bows, formed the chancel setting.

The bride was attired in a gown of ivory bridal sheer over taffeta. It was fashioned with a scooped neckline and sheer pleated sleeves gathered at the wrists into lace cuffs. Lace, embroidered with pearls and iridescents graced the fitted bodice. The full skirt with a lace panel front was enhanced by an inverted V insert, edged with a pleated lace flounce which encircled the skirt and chapel-length train. A lace and pearl trimmed headpiece held her veil of bridal illusion, edged with scalloped lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of white gladioli, mums, peppermint carnations, holly and pine greenery. Her jewelry was a gold chain.

Attending the bride were Bobbi Jordet as matron of honor and Becky Forsberg and Mary Westerland as bridesmaids. Their red floor-length gowns, encircled at the waistlines by dark sashes, were designed with full skirts, V-necklines and long, full sleeves. They carried bouquets of peppermint carnations, white carnations tipped in red, and pine greenery, arranged in cascade design.

Jim Shapiro attended the groom as best man. Groomsmen were John Becker and Jim Herzog of Minneapolis. All wore black tuxedos with white pleated shirts, black ties and peppermint carnation boutonnieres.

Lighting the candles and ushering the guests were Gregg Peterson, nephew of the bride, and Milo Westerland, a friend of the bride. Kerry Zimmer, Minneapolis, was at the guest book, Michael Peterson, a nephew of the bride, distributed the wedding programs, and Michele Rux and Heather Overbye, cousins of the bride, carried the gifts.

The bride's personal attendants were Karen and Sharon Keogh of Hibbing, friends of the bride.

The mother of the bride was attired in a red chiffon street-length dress with pleated bodice, featuring ruffles on the long, full sleeves, and at the neckline. The groom's mother wore a red street-length dress topped by a matching jacket. Their corsages were of white featured mums, holly, pine greenery and silver ribbon.

A reception for about 120 guests followed in the church fellowship hall. Host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Peterson. For the occasion, the tables were decorated with white candles, pine greenery and red and white silk poinsettias and holly.

Centering the serving table was a three-tiered wedding cake, iced in white and decorated with white roses and green tracery. The cake was topped by two wedding bells, and surrounded at the base by ferns and holly. It was cut and served by Lillian Holmstrom, aunt of the bride, and Fern Kranz, a cousin. At the coffee service were Julie Ring, Sac City, Iowa, sister of the groom, and Jean Brandon, Middle River, godmother of the bride. Waitresses were Virginia Hanson, Pamela Schenkey, Wendy Carriere, Kathy Rux and Jill Overbye, cousins of the bride. Toni Peterson, a niece of the bride, and Julie Brandon, a cousin, served the punch. All wore peppermint carnation corsages.

The bride attended Moorhead State university and Northland Community college, graduating from Northland with an Associate of Arts degree. She is employed by Northwestern Bell in Minneapolis. The groom attended Community college at Morris, St. Cloud university and Minneapolis college of Art and Design. He is currently attending Brown institute and will graduate this month from their school of radio broadcasting.

HECB Report Criticized By College Heads

Heads of the state's public colleges and universities sharply criticized the higher education coordinating board (HECB) for its response to their recommendations for dealing with declining enrollments.

Approved by HECB as a "review and comment paper," the report analyzes the reports to the legislature of the state's higher education systems' plans for coping with declining enrollments. Further, however, it criticizes the higher education systems' responses as being "fragmented" and protective of the status quo.

C. Peter Magrath, president of the University of Minnesota, told HECB members that the report suffers from "severe errors in fact" and challenged what he called "a short-cut process in which members of this board and certainly the administrators and boards of the systems had but two or three days to analyze the staff report and respond." Report was to be forwarded to the legislature Thursday.

Magrath said he doubted that HECB members themselves had had enough time to digest the sweeping suggestions for reorganization of systems and campus closings suggested in the report.

Report criticizes the systems for making across-the-board and incremental cuts, and says they are not capable of dealing with "broad overlapping policy issues in a coordinated manner." Further, it states that "only the legislature and executive branch can effectively address such issues."

Closing campuses as one method of saving money was mentioned prominently in the report, which contained a list of 13 campuses that would have to receive special support — or core funding — to maintain an acceptable level of instruction and questioned the wisdom of that funding.

Phillip Helland, chancellor of the community college system, said he objected "most strenuously to publishing the hit list for closing before there has been discussion."

Motion to remove the names of the 13 campuses from the report before it is sent to the legislature passed without opposition.

Jon Wefald, chancellor of the state university system, called the report negative, pointing out that nowhere did it contain "mention of the excellence of higher education in this state. There is no mention that public higher education has done a superb job for this state. There is no mention of what these systems have done for Minnesota's quality of life."

Wefald said the report's contention that the systems are pushing the status quo and conducting business as usual is untrue. "Anybody who understands anything at all about what has been going on in Minnesota in the past two years with reductions could not make such a statement," he said.

HECB member Robert Bonine said that Minnesotans need to be convinced of the value of their higher education systems before decisions based on declining resources must be made. "I think Minnesotans have a very large appetite but they don't want to pay for it this time, or they can't pay for it," he said.

"We probably deserve about half of the shots taken, but we have a problem to solve and we don't have very much time," Bonine said.

Six ways of reorganizing the way higher education is governed were laid out, including establishing:

—A single system for all public post-secondary education;

—A single system made up of the University of Minnesota and the state universities;

—A single system made up of the community colleges, the area vocational-technical institutes and the two-year technical colleges;

—A single system for state universities and community colleges, with regional emphasis;

—Regional planning and service centers using the current system of governance; and —A method of pairing schools.

Both Magrath and Helland chided the HECB for going beyond the legislative request. "That bill called upon the public higher education systems to submit their plans to this board," Magrath said. "The legislature neither sought prescriptions, nor did it solicit recommendations for sweeping changes in educational governance."

LEGION AUXILIARY Unit 117 President Connie Driscoll presented a $100 scholarship check recently to Northland community college student Tammy Nomeland. Tammy is a second year business administration major at NCC.

Newspapers Important To Teach Reading

"Newspapers are the only textbooks that change every day to keep up with current events," says Alton Greenfield, reading unit supervisor at the Minnesota department of education. "Newspapers provide great relevance to current affairs at a low cost."

An often neglected educational resource, newspapers are beginning to receive recognition for their contributions to learning. Newspapers in education (NIE) week, February 21 to 25, is being promoted this year in conjunction with the February "I Love to Read" month in Minnesota schools.

For one week, many teachers will use newspapers as a teaching resource for all subjects.

Children in their early school years can cut the letters of the alphabet out of the newspaper, look for words that they know, and cut out comic strips and put them back in order.

Students in the middle grades can study current events, master the different uses of words, or learn abbreviations from the want ads.

High school students can use newspapers to improve critical reading and writing skills, learn to formulate their own opinions, and recognize propaganda in advertisements or editorials. And, of course, newspapers are the only "textbooks" that students can cut up, draw in, or color.

"Newspaper is a repository of excellent teaching activities," says Greenfield. "We encourage the use of newspapers in classrooms and offer teaching aids and materials for grades K-12."

Senator Wants Better Market Effort On Milk

"Present problem with dairy in the United States is not overproduction, but underconsumption. And one of the primary reasons for the decline in consumption has been the government milk program."

So concludes a background-er entitled "Which Way for Milk?" written by Senator Rudy Boschwitz.

"If it hadn't been for the advent of yogurt and an increase in cheese consumption, milk would really be on the skids," Boschwitz said.

"The government guarantees a market for everything that's produced," he added. "So if you and I were on a dairy co-op's board of directors and were to suggest an aggressive (and expensive) sales program . . . we'd be told quietly to 'cool it.' Why spend the money when the grand-daddy of all buyers — the federal government — buys all our surplus. Not only that, the federal government indexed the price, so the co-op received more as inflation rose."

Thus, according to Boschwitz, annual production stagnated at the same level at the end of the '70s as it was in 1949 when the dairy price support system was born, about 120 billion pounds (fluid weight). Consumption, on the other hand, dropped from 700 fluid pounds to about 520 to 530.

Then came an embargo that stripped away grain markets, bumper crops that increased surpluses, and a worldwide recession that left buyers without enough money or credit. Milk production increased markedly.

The government milk program, locked to 80 per cent of parity with semi-annual adjustments exacerbated the problem.

"Compared to the rest of agriculture, this made dairy consistently profitable, certainly more so that other parts of agriculture here in the middle west," Boschwitz said.

"No wonder dairy production went up 11 per cent to 135 billion pounds," he added. "The real mystery is why production didn't go up more."

"New products, market development and some 'real' sharp national TV advertising for all dairy products," he said, which would be underwritten through a 10 cent per hundredweight checkoff from the farmer — about two-tenths of one cent per quart.

"If we wait for all the other elements of the processing and distribution chain to do it, it will never get done," he added. "Or certainly it won't get done soon enough to save the dairy program here in Washington.

An Important Notice About Unclaimed Electric Refunds

Otter Tail Power Company, in accordance with the requirements of the Minnesota Public Utilities Commission, is hereby publishing a list of electric customers who have unclaimed electric refunds for the period September 15, 1981 – August 31, 1982. The unclaimed amounts fall into two categories of former customers: those with less than $1.00 due for whom no checks were drawn and those with $1.00 and more due with the check returned unclaimed.

On September 21, 1981, Otter Tail put into effect new electric rates filed under bond and subject to refund. The new rates applied to energy used on and after September 15, 1981. These rates were billed through August 31, 1982, when revised rates, approved by the Minnesota Public Utilities Commission, were made effective. By order of the Commission, refunds for the period September 15, 1981 through August 31, 1982, were made during September and October 1982, by a credit to the current customer's bill. Refunds to former customers were made by check, providing the total refund was $1.00 or more.

ALL AMOUNTS REMAINING UNCLAIMED AS OF MAY 22, AS WELL AS ALL OUTSTANDING REFUND CHECKS WHICH HAVE NOT BEEN CASHED BY THAT DATE, WILL BE FORWARDED TO THE STATE OF MINNESOTA FOR DISPOSITION AS REQUIRED BY LAW.

If your name appears on the list below, please contact Otter Tail's nearest Service Representative or the nearest office serving our Minnesota customers at Fergus Falls, Perham, Morris, Canby, Bemidji, Crookston, and Hallock in Minnesota; Wahpeton, North Dakota or Milbank, South Dakota.

MN. Townships Boost Spending By 3.1 Per Cent

Minnesota townships increased their spending in fiscal year 1982 by 3.1 per cent over 1981, according to the state auditor's annual report of their revenues, expenditures and debt.

State auditor Arne Carlson said township residents paid $33 per capita in net property taxes during the fiscal year ending in March, 1982. Residents of Minnesota cities, by comparison, paid approximately $88 per capita in net property taxes.

Township expenditures totaled $65 million, compared to $63.1 million for the previous year. Road and bridge equipment purchased, road maintenance and construction costs accounted for 58.2 per cent of total expenditures. General government expenditures were 15.4 per cent, and fire protection amounted to 9.3 per cent. Of the total, $11.1 million was for capital outlay, with 57.5 per cent going for road construction and road equipment.

"In 1982 there was a definite shift in trend for townships as local taxes replaced state and federal aids as the largest single source of town revenues," Carlson said. The three major sources of township revenues were taxes, 44.8 per cent; state aids and grants, 30.6 per cent; and federal payments, 8.7 per cent, according to the report.

The townships levied $40.3 million in taxes collectible for the period, up 22.3 per cent from taxes levied for fiscal 1981. Total revenues were $68.9 million during the period, $5.3 million more than the 1981 total.

Only 95 townships, or five per cent, had outstanding bonded indebtedness. Bonded indebtedness increased by 1.6 per cent over the previous year from $18.8 to $19.1 million.

The annual report covers revenues, expenditures, indebtedness, taxable valuations and tax levies of Minnesota townships for the fiscal year ended March 1, 1982. Residents of townships make up nearly one-fourth of the population of the state.

Solid Waste Facility Aid Now Available

First funding period for an $8.8 million program of grants and loans from the Minnesota waste management board (WMB) to help local governments establish innovative solid waste processing facilities is now underway, board chairman Robert Dunn has announced.

"One of the primary goals of the law which created the WMB is to reduce Minnesota's dependence on the land disposal of solid waste," Dunn said. "These grants and loans will help local governments establish alternatives to landfills that can serve as demonstration projects for the entire state.

Cities, counties and multi-county solid waste management district — which can be formed upon local petition with the approval of the WMB — are eligible for the grants and loans.

Assistance is available for such projects as solid waste incinerators; composting and anaerobic digestion facilities; projects to recycle agricultural wastes, waste tires or wood wastes; "materials recovery" facilities to seperate recyclable materials such as aluminum, metals or glass; transfer facilities; and other projects.

Each proposal may be eligible for assistance of up to 100 per cent of capital costs. Only 50 per cent of the costs of a project will be eligible for grants; assistance is available in the form of loans only, or grants and loans combined.

Deadline for proposals for the first "funding round" is March 31, with grants and loans to be awarded June 30. Three more funding rounds will follow through the end of 1984.

County Board Meets Tuesday

Pennington county board of commissioners will meet Tuesday at 10 a.m. at the commissioners' room of the Pennington county courthouse in Thief River Falls with discussion of cleaning systems and opening of bids on fuel and oil listed on the agenda, according to Kenneth Olson, county auditor.

Objects To Rise In Assistance

Pennington county welfare board has recently passed a resolution objecting to the seven per cent increase in Minnesota welfare standards of assistance and informed local legislators of that action.

Introduced by Donald Grabanski and seconded by Albert Koop, the resolution called for the board to inform legislators and the media that it opposed the increase while the state is faced with growing deficits.

The seven per cent increases were implemented by the Pennington county welfare department in accordance with state regulation on February 1, but the action was taken over the welfare board's objection.

In its letter to legislators, the board noted that its intention was to inform them of the opposition in the hope that "you will not support further planned welfare expenditure increases until such time as the state's financial condition becomes more solvent."

Correction

In the Diane Holen and Efrain Arreola engagement announcement published in the Wednesday edition of the Times, we errored in stating that the wedding was set for March 36 in place of March 26. The Times regrets the error.

Soil Moisture In State Said Near Saturation

According to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service which studied the state's spring soil moisture situation, soil moisture measurements were obtained from 41 sites across the state in late autumn. The sampling was done on medium to fine textured soils to a five-foot depth and the amount of plant-available water within the soil column was determined.

These measurements were regressed against the 1982 summer and fall precipiation at 24 of the soil moisture sites. This permits estimates of soil moisture to be made where only precipitation is measured. Since there were 833 such stations in the state available for estimation, a very detailed analysis of soil moisture is possible.

Results indicate that Minnesota soils entered this winter with the wettest conditions since the expanded soil moisture survey began five years ago. Other wet autumns over large parts of the state were 1968 and 1979.

Areas with 10 inches of soil moisture are considered to be at their maximum plant available water-holding capacity, while soils with eight to 10 inches are near the maximum. Some soils which are not tilled have exceeded this and are at or near saturation.

Thus, soils in the state are at or near their maximum water-holding capacity, except for the western tier of counties which includes most or all of the following counties: Pipestone, Murray, Lincoln, Lyon, Yellow Medicine, Lac Qui Parle, Chippewa, Big Stone, Swift, Traverse, Stevens, Grant, Douglas, Wilkin, Ottertail, Clay, Becker, Norman, Mahnomen and Roseau. Even here the soil moisture levels are generally much above the average late fall condition.

These high autumn soil moisture levels have serious implications for this spring, since the Minnesota agricultural statistics service data shows that one-half to two-thirds of the plowing has been left for this coming spring. A very important field operation therefore will have to be squeezed into the spring period which all too often is very limited due to weather and seeding constraints.

Normal to above normal spring precipitation could make fields in many areas nearly impassable. This would be particularly serious in areas of poorly drained soils.

The mild winter experienced to date is a welcome respite following the severe winter of 1981-1982. Some interesting climatological statistics are to be found in those springs following the combination of mild Decembers and Januarys.

For example, it was found that in 13 of the 16 years, or 81 per cent in which both December and January were above normal, the succeeding spring arrived at the usual time or even a few days early.

The "arrival of spring" statistic was measured in terms of when lakes were free of ice, which coincides very closely with the time when soils have thawed completely. Based upon this 81 per cent statistic, it can be stated that in spite of the soil's currently high moisture content there will in all probability be time for the surafce to dry sufficiently for necessary row crop tillage and planting operations, except perhaps where fall plowing was not possible. At this time small grain planting delays are more possible.

What To Grow Meeting For Area Farmer

The annual "What to grow" meeting provided by the county extension service will be held in Thief River Falls on Thursday, February 24 from 1 to 3:30 p.m. in the basement meeting room of the city auditorium.

Main theme for the program will be on what crops to grow in view of the 1983 ARP and PIK programs. Speakers will review the earnings or profit impact of the farm program from the whole farm approach with varying degrees of participation in PIK.

Participation in the 1983 farm program will have a different economic impact on each farm, according to Terry Courneya, Pennington county extension agent. Examples will be used that examine the influence of various levels of participation available. The method demonstrated will provide farmers with a way to accurately evaluate what their best level of participation would be, Courneya said.

Those appearing on the program include Phil Bergland, Pennington county ASCS executive director, Alan Gustafson, Pennington-Red Lake soil conservation service district conservationist, county extension agent Terry Courneya and area farm management agent, Bill Penning. Emphasis will be placed on the least cost-best return kinds of practices that can be utilized on the PIK acres.

Puppets Become Lifelike Figures To Most Viewers

by Mary Combs
Smithsonian News Service

They are motionless behind the plate glass: a familiar frog with dreamy eyes, a freckle-faced kid in a cowboy suit, a dapper figure in top hat, white tie and tails and leering, hook-nosed character who poses with his famous wife and victims. Yet in the visitor's imagination — and memory — they move, talk and live with that peculiar magic that is theirs alone.

Kermit the Frog, Howdy Doody, Charlie McCarthy and Punch and Judy are puppets, of course, and each year they are seen by millions of visitors to the Smithsonian's National Museum of American History in Washington, D.C.

Since 1977, museum specialist Ellen Roney Hughes has been gathering these unique creations and their kin in order to build a national collection documenting the work and creative genius of American puppeteers. "Puppets themselves are such fascinating artifacts," Hughes says. "They reflect the entertainment of their times, the state of the arts, the fashion in dress — and in comedy."

American puppets have played in taverns, mining camps, nightclubs, nickelodeons and at Radio City music hall; they have participated in psychotherapy, touted the Bicentennial, entertained troops, sold war bonds, protested in peace marches and advertised everything from chocolate to nail polish. Edgar Bergen's Charlie McCarthy even achieved the astonishing feat of becoming a radio star — before his debut in films. Two superstars of recent movie seasons, Yoda and E.T., come from the ranks of puppets.

Unfortunately, puppets as individuals lead very hard lives, and few have survived to tell us of their long history, which in the West may be traced back to ancient Greece. Such chroniclers of puppet history as Paul McPharlin, author of "The Puppet Theatre in America," have had to rely on these survivors, as well as on rare descriptions of performances, advertisements and scripts that have been preserved, often by mere chance.

They may be fragile individuals, but as a "race" puppets have proved to be hardy and resilient. They have endured where live theater has been suppressed and have survived political, religious and economic upheavals — from the fall of Rome to ruthless persecution by the Nazis. Their compelling magic has entranced infants and sages, artists, composers, beggars and kings and is so powerful that, even when the operator is completely visible, the puppet character may be treated like a real person by perfectly reasonable adults.

Effect on less reasonable adults has been dangerous to puppeteers. Spanish Inquisition labeled some puppeteers as wizards and condemned them for consorting with demons, while a Chinese emperor nearly executed a troupe of puppets — and their hapless operator — for attempting to seduce the ladies of his harem.

And yet, a puppet, as defined by master puppeteer Bil Baird in his book "The Art of the Puppet," is simply "an inanimate figure that is made to move by human effort before an audience." Beyond that, a puppet's shape and form is limited only by the imagination and skill of its creator. Puppet may fit the hand like a glove or be moved by strings, rods, wires or a combination of techniques. One puppeteer may operate a group of figures at once, or several people may manipulate a single character.

Although the word puppet — from the Latin "pupa" — actually means "little, little creature," a puppet may be several times the height of a man or as tiny as a caterpillar. It may be dressed in elaborate garments, with exquisitely detailed features, or stripped to the barest essential, the human hand itself. Puppets have played the roles of cubist abstractions, letters of the alphabet, the devil and the Virgin Mary.

In the 16th century, puppets in Europe either traveled the highways in the packs of itinerant players or performed in churches and shrines on holy days. But soon enterprising showmen began to expand their material, and by the mid-17th century, sophisticated marionette theater was charming royalty and offering serious competition to live actors by performing exactly the same repertoire of drama, farce and opera — and often doing it better.

Seventeenth- and 18th-century audiences delighted in complicated stage effects requiring actors and scenery to fly in and out and up and down; puppets managed this sort of thing very well, not being concerned about breaking their necks. They also excelled at melodramatic gore, and life-sized puppets may have served as the first stuntmen for grisly or magical doings — the better to mutilate, materialize or otherwise transform a character.

Puppets had come to the Americas with the earliest European expeditions — the Spanish explorer Hernan Cortes retained a puppeteer among his servants in 1524 — so it was only natural that puppeteers would join the flow of colonists to the Americas. By the Revolution, string and hand puppets were regaling audiences with Bible stories, popular drama, heroic tragedy, folktales, timely satire and rough-and-tumble slapstick.

Punch and Judy reigned supreme in the slapstick field. After taking England by storm in the 1660s, they found a hearty welcome in the colonies and endured through the 19th century, although their story changed a bit. In early versions, after a career of murder and mayhem, Punch escaped his just reward by killing the devil. Victorian morality found the devil indelicate and Punch's triumph unedifying. Justice had to be served, so Punch met his well-deserved fate at the hands — or rather the jaws — of a crocodile.

Puppeteers had always to contend with the Puritan streak in the American conscience, which saw such amusements as, at best, childish and, at worst, immoral. In many places, punitive licensing fees made life difficult for the traveling showmen who worked the sidewalks and parks. Some jurisdictions, such as New York state from 1819-1932, forbade puppetry altogether. Needless to say, much of the time these laws were ignored, since puppets played everywhere — in beer gardens, on beaches and showboats, at church picnics and among the curiosities in that American invention, the dime museum.

Puppeteers were no exception to the Victorian enthusiasm for mechanical devices, but they guarded their secrets so jealously that many of their methods remain unknown today. Dancing skeletons with a talent for coming to pieces and "transformations" — such as the large clown that turned into half-a-dozen smaller clowns — were sure hits, the ancestors of Bil Baird's lady of the burlesque who at last "takes it all off" by removing her head.

Large touring companies came to America from Europe; like small circuses, some required dozens of wagons for their equipment. And immigrants brought their own brand of puppetry to their new homes, but sadly, many of these traditions have since disappeared.

Until the beginning of the 20th century, puppetry in both Europe and America had been mainly a means to earn a livelihood; now puppet theater was taken up by creative amateurs — artists, composers, educators, dramatists — eager to explore the medium's potential. In a generation, they transformed the nature of puppetry.

Uniqueness of a puppeteer's work now lay in individuality of style, depth of characterization and message rather than in secret tricks. New spirit of enthusiasm and cooperation among puppeteers gave birth to such organizations as L'Union Internationale de la Marionnette, founded in Prague in 1929, and Puppeteers of America, founded in 1937.

Professional puppetry in the United States survived the challenge of the movies and withstood the Depression, only to be very nearly extinguished during World War II, which mobilized puppeteers and immobilized their transportation. But in the postwar years, with the focus on education and entertainment of the baby-boom generation, puppets got a new lease on life. Television gave millions a front-row seat for the artistry and the antics of Howdy; Lambchop; Kukla, Fran and Ollie, and many others, including the best-known puppets in America today: Jim Henson's Muppets.

In the dozen years since Kermit the Frog and the rest marched down Sesame street and into immortality, Henson's innovative productions have captured a solid adult following. Unfortunately, the Smithsonian's Hughes points out, in this the Muppets are unique. "In America today," she says, "puppets are used almost exclusively to entertain children. There are tremendously talented puppeteers who have an enormous ability to entertain adults, and they are not getting the chance anymore."

Through their long history, puppeteers have labored, often forgotten behind the scenes, ignored into oblivion or stuck in the thankless role of straight man. Yet they are the magicians who make it all happen, and they are caught up in the magic themselves. "They are fascinating people, really a breed apart," Hughes says. "Many of them feel that the puppet is part of themselves or a member of the family. They often say things through the puppet that they would not or could not say themselves. After all, it was Charlie McCarthy who was outrageous — no one ever accused Edgar Bergen of being a smart aleck!"

29 SBA Loans Approved For MN Companies

Celso Moreno, district director of the Minnesota district office of the small business administration, (SBA) announced this week that $4,567,500 in SBA guaranteed loans had been approved for 29 Minnesota companies and three direct loans in the amount of $444,000 in the month of January 1983. Projected additional employment created as a result of these loans is 565 jobs.

Direct management assistance was provided to 126 Minnesota firms through the SBA's in-house counselors or through support groups like the Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE) and the 12 colleges participating in the small business institute program.

One loan, amounting to $200,000, was made to a minority owned firm, making the minority component of the January portfolio three per cent of the total loans, and three per cent of the total loan dollars.

Thirty-three loans were paid-in-full during the month of January.

Legislative Size

If there is any type of prospective legislation which is a waste of the legislators' time this session, is the several proposals for reduction in size of the legislature itself. Regardless of the publicity and the discussions and perhaps even the sincerity of the legislators who introduced the bills, it just simply ain't never gonna happen nohow.

And the people of Minnesota don't need to feel too bad about that fact of Minnesota life. Having two legislative bodies may seem counter-productive and having 201 legislators may seem excessive and cumbersome, but the system has a number of good points.

Those of us in the rural areas should be the last to promote a reduction in numbers of legislators. Rural areas would stand to lose most as legislative districts would increase in size or, at least, legislators would be compelled to represent a greater number of constituents. This would mean representatives less informed and out of touch with people they would be elected to serve.

We also tend to agree with freshman Representative Wally Sparby from District 1B that those who would hope to cut legislative cost by trimming legislative size are engaging in wishful thinking. Fewer people to enact the laws would mean hiring of more people to do the research and handle office chores, and hiring help takes money. It is conceivable, even likely, that costs of operating the legislature would increase rather than decline if fewer elected officials were in the capitol.

Greater numbers also diminish the influence of power blocs with special interests, and that translates into better government. The legislature should cut out the time spent window dressing by talking about size reduction and use if for work on meaningful legislation. Maybe than it can get its work done right and on time, eliminating the costly special sessions of the past year.

Legislative time should be spent on major issues first, lesser issues second, regional and local issues third and dead issues not at all. Size reduction of the legislature is terminal legislation.

And while we're commenting on the legislature, we would like to compliment Rep. Sparby and Sen. LeRoy Stumpf for their extra efforts in holding report meetings and soliciting input from throughout the district. That's the kind of personal representation the voters deserve and we are sure will result in responsive action by these elected legislators.

Lotteries Growing

While Minnesota legislators wrestle with parimutuel betting on horse racing — authorized by the electorate in the last general election — other states are seeking to supplement governmental income through lotteries.

It is interesting that with all of these governmental lotteries being operated across the country, the U.S. postal service still clings to the regulation that prohibits distribution of information on lotteries through the mail. Most people aren't aware that such a prohibition exists, but it does.

Many times it has been disappointing to us — and to some of our friends and customers as well — that we have been unable to promote or report their lottery activities because of this regulation. It is difficult to explain and a time-consuming bother which has even alienated some people who have felt we as a newspaper were depriving them of something.

Basically, a lottery has to have three elements — a prize, an element of chance and a consideration or purchase. Therefore drawings with free registration are not lotteries; give-aways where everyone is a recipient without a drawing are not lotteries. But if you have to buy a ticket, make a purchase or otherwise pay to play, take a chance on the luck of the draw and thereby win a prize, that's a lottery. Bingo games and raffles with ticket sales are prime examples.

We wonder how the postal service is policing and-or enforcing its regulation in such states as Arizona, Colorado, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Vermont and Maine where state lotteries are currently being operated. Washington and the District of Columbia are recent additions to that list, and Florida and Louisiana are considering the idea.

People can debate the value or harm of lotteries all they want. Personally, we don't see them to be much of a problem. But if it is legal to conduct them, it should be legal to promote, advertise and report them without violating a persistent but obviously unnecessary and ineffective federal regulation. With lotteries operated by states in 1982 grossing an estimated $4 billion and expectations that the amount will rise considerably in 1983, it is time to wipe that foolish regulation off the books.

Health Costs Still Inflated

Following editorial is from the St. Cloud Times:

It's been a while now since we've seen double-digit inflation, and even the price of gasoline has fallen somewhat. But in the health care industry, double-digit inflation continues unchecked.

The Reagan administration has proposed a health budget that, according to Congressional Quarterly, would hopefully "make America more prudent shoppers for medical care." Changes in the health budget would make a fundamental difference in the manner Medicare, Medicaid and private employer-based group health insurance plans are administered. But even if Congress adopts the president's proposals, health care is still estimated to cost 10 per cent more in 1984.

More than 90 per cent of government health costs originate with Medicare and Medicaid. "Nearly one in every five Americans is covered by one or both of the programs," according to Congressional Quarterly.

Briefly stated, the administration's health package has six basic elements:

— Employer-financed group health insurance would be subject to income taxes in some instances, making "lavish" health plans more cost-sharing with patients. Employees would not pay the tax if employers bought less expensive insurance packages.

— Medicare recipients would pay more for short-term illnesses. They would, however, still be protected from "catastrophic" illnesses costing in excess of $2,100 per year.

— Doctors would face a one-year freeze on Medicare fees. If they wanted additional money, they would have to bill patients directly, as they can do now.

— Hospitals would be paid standard prices for Medicare when treating specific medical conditions. And hospitals could not collect extra money from the government or the patient.

— Medicare beneficiaries would not be held just to the federal health program, but could get vouchers to buy private health care coverage.

— Medicaid recipients would have to pay nominal fees, like $1 or $2 for each hospital or doctor visit.

Critics of the president's plan say it amounts to a tax on benefits, similar to a tax on wages, and would not alter the manner in which the average person goes about selecting a health care plan.

In some ways the plan could be a tax on benefits, but only if people don't purchase their health care insurance wisely. Group plans would have to be more spartan in nature for the less expensive, minor illnesses. If they are, the tax will not apply.

The charge that people will not alter the way in which they go about buying health care doesn't hold up at all. Critics said the same thing about conserving energy and putting more money in savings. But people change their habits to fit the times and their personal situations. Energy conservation changed the way many Americans buy an automobile and personal savings are up. Health care is subject to economic pressures just like anything else. During hard times people "buy" less health care just as they buy less of any other commodity.

Health care costs are out of line, and President Reagan has given Congress and the nation a plan to debate. Before any plan is adopted, there needs to be a great deal of debate and, no doubt, some compromise. But America needs to put some controls on the rising costs of health care, and the President's plan offers an excellent starting point.

Borrowed Nonsense:

The pretty young thing slipped onto the bar stool and ordered a "Rum Dandy." "What's that drink you're mixing?" another patron asked. "A Rum Dandy has sugar, milk and rum," the bartender replied. "The sugar gives you pep and the milk gives you energy." "What about the rum," the patron persisted. "That," winked the miss with the order, "gives you dandy ideas about what to do with all the pep and energy."

Money still talks, but now about all it can say is "Good-bye."

Higher Prices For Land Title Services?

Home buyers will face less competition and higher prices for land title services unless limitations are placed on controlled business arrangements. Under controlled business, real estate professionals direct purchasers to title insurance agencies in which they have a financial interest.

McDonald

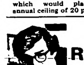
In a study entitled, "The Pricing and Marketing of Insurance," the U.S. Department of Justice documented these "major evils" of controlled business:

- Payment of unreasonably high premiums
- Acceptance of unusually poor service
- Acceptance of faulty title examinations and policies

Late in 1982, the National Association of Insurance Commissioners approved a model title insurance law for use in drafting legislation in individual states—which would place an annual ceiling of 20 per cent of gross revenue on business received by title insurers and their agents from real estate professionals with financial interests in such organizations.

Legislation with a similar 20 per cent controlled business limitation was introduced in Congress last year although the measure has not yet been enacted, according to Thomas S. McDonald, president of the American Land Title Association.

"If controlled business is left unchecked, the inevitable result will be less competition in the marketplace and higher prices to consumers for title services," McDonald said. "Home buyers should consider contacting their members of Congress, and their state legislators and insurance regulators, about placing reasonable restrictions on controlled business—so title insurance business will continue to be earned on the basis of price, service and product quality."



U.S. Senator Rudy Boschwitz reports to Minnesota

New Proposals For Education:

The President recently outlined four major goals in education. Two of them, tuition tax credits and prayer in schools, will not likely be enacted by this session of Congress. Two others, savings incentives for parents of college-aged children and upgrading math and science instruction through block grants, will receive close attention.

The establishment of Education Savings Accounts to allow middle- and lower-income families an incentive to save for their children's education is a positive and forward-looking initiative. But it is not without potential drawbacks.

No specific legislation has been forwarded to Congress yet, but my understanding is that the Administration wants to allow parents to save $1,000 per child per year and not be taxed on interest or dividends. Unlike IRAs, however, the principle would still be taxed.

Some people fear that these savings accounts would displace existing federal student aid programs such as Guaranteed Student Loans (GSL) Pell Grants, or campus-based programs. I have seen nothing to suggest that, although the Administration has proposed reforms of those programs in the 1984 budget. I assure you that Congress will closely monitor any suggested changes in existing programs, and that there will be no borad changes in favor of this new program.

Another concern about these savings accounts is the revenue loss they cause. I haven't seen any cost estimates yet but any time the government offers a "tax break" through credits or deductions, it takes in less money than it otherwise would have.

Finally, it can be argued that tax deductions offer the most incentive to those in the higher tax brackets, which can be viewed as an "upside down subsidy."

As I said earlier, Education Savings Accounts have a lot of merit, but I will have to wait for specifics before I make up my mind.

The challenges of our emerging high technology environment lately have been the topic of a myriad of legislative responses. The Administration soon will add its own by suggesting that block grants be issued to state education agencies to increase the number of qualified math and science teachers.

The increasing pressures in precollege math and science are similar to those spawned by Russia's launching of Sputnik during the '50s. The concern over potential manpower needs then led to Congress enacting the National Defense Education Act (NDEA) in 1958. Many of the current proposals contain components of NDEA. When originally enacted, NDEA funded: loans to students entering fields where help was needed, grants to purchase equipment, supervisory and consultancy services for teachers, fellowships for persons preparing to become college teachers, guidance and counseling services for secondary schools, science information services, and improvement of state statistical services.

One innovation is that businesses are expressing an interest in joint employment programs or donations of or joint utilization of equipment. Businesses are also interested in receiving favorable tax treatment for taking part in these programs.

Again, no single program has been introduced by the Administration so I will reserve judgement until I see one. But if we, as a nation, are able to meet the current challenges in math and science as well as we did in the '50s and '60s, I will be more than satisfied.

Ask Issuing Of Stamp On Soil Conservation

Senator Rudy Boschwitz and 20 of his Senate colleagues have requested issuance of a special commemorative stamp to mark "50 years of Soil Conservation." The 50th anniversary of the American soil conservation movement will be celebrated in 1984.

The senators requested the stamp in a letter to Belmont Faries, chairman of the citizens stamp advisory committee of the U.S. postal service.

"The stamp or series would recognize that today's soil and water conservation programs have their roots in the ruinous droughts and dust storms that occurred during 1933 to 1937," the letter said.

"These stamps would emphasize our nation's continued commitment to resolve serious erosion problems. Further, it is important that this national commitment be reaffirmed at a time when our farmers and ranchers are considering changes in farming practices because of the depressed agricultural economy."

The Senators said that an appropriate time and location for issuing the stamp or series would be at the annual convention of the soil conservation society of America, July 29 to August 1, 1984 in Oklahoma City.

Lilly Named To U'M' Post On State Economy

David Lilly has been named to a newly created University of Minnesota position intended to help Minnesota out of its economic troubles.

Lilly, the former president and chairman of the board of the Toro Co. and a former member of the federal reserve board, will take a six-month leave of absence from his position as dean of the university's school of management to become presidential consultant on the university and Minnesota's economy.

University of Minnesota President C. Peter Magrath, who made the announcement February 14, said the purpose of the new post is to "give me and the university advice on how we can improve the contributions of the university to the Minnesota economy."

Lilly will chair the task force on Minnesota higher education and economy, a new university committee developed as part of the internal planning process. Membership on that task force has not yet been announced.

In addition, Lilly will work with and advise Magrath on various gubernatorial and state commissions on the economy, such as Minnesota wellspring, the Minnesota business partnership and the medical technology commission and the whole range of activities related to promoting economic recovery on the Iron Range and in northeastern Minnesota.

He will also be the university's representative to Research Equipment Inc., a new for-profit subsidiary of the university foundation approved by the board of regents last week to purchase expensive research equipment for use by the university.

"The university has a long history of supporting the state's economy, but we have been looking for some time at ways in which we can relate even further to this new phase of state economic problems," Magrath said.

Lilly has been dean of the school of management since June 1978. He served on the federal reserve board from June of 1976 to February of 1978 and was with Toro as vice president and director, president or chairman of the board from 1945 until 1976.

For the next six months Edward M. Foster, associate dean of the school, will serve as acting dean.

NWMHC Faced Funding Cuts In New Budget

For the fourth year in a row, Northwestern Mental Health Center is decreasing in funding from the county governments that receive services from the facility. Director Roy Waters said the center is aware of "the economic difficulties faced by the federal, state and particularly the local levels of government in dealing with the needs of the people."

Waters said a professional and businesslike approach to the operation of the center has resulted in some "dramatic changes in the way our budget looks." Ability of the Center to avoid seeking increased funding from the counties is related to diversification of revenue sources and an improved handling of the business portion of the operation such as fees, collections, asset management and the like. Alternative sources of revenue and improved business operations have allowed the center to keep pace with inflation and increased staff costs, program improvements and other increasing expense items while absorbing substantial decreases in funding from the counties.

Some added stress has also been placed on the 1983 budget because of withdrawal of Pennington county from the consortium of seven counties that were purchasing services from the Northwestern Mental Health Center. "There is a certain amount of fixed administrative overhead involved in running a center that now must be spread over six counties instead of seven," Waters explained. Removal of a county also represents a loss of revenue to the Center.

Projected increase in revenue generated by the center from fees, insurance and other actual payments for services went from 12 per cent of the budget in 1980 to 25 per cent in 1983. Waters attributes most of that increase to an improvement in the center's ability to "tap in to third party sources of funding such as insurance coverage" made possible by efforts to be licensed under a variety of state regulations that make them an approved provider of services for mental health and chemical dependency problems covered under many insurance policies.

Approximately 78 per cent of the center's total 1983 budget will be from "fees for services" purchased with prior approval for each patient by the six participating county welfare directors. In 1980, the counties' share of the budget was 80 per cent. Counties have made small grants to the mental health center that cover services to those eligible for medical assistance, and a second program for chronically mentally ill in their homes and communities. Remaining 15 per cent comes from deficit spending and from a variety of contracts with businesses and schools, workshops, interest and other sources of funding.

Waters applauded the staff of the Northwestern Mental Health Center for being instrumental in realizing a more efficiently run center, but expressed concern for the future. "I'm pleased we've been able to do this, but we aren't going to be able to do this forever," he said.

Urges Change In IRS Code To Aid PIK Plan

A bill amending the internal revenue code to allow special tax treatments for commodities received under the payment-in-kind (PIK) program has been co-sponsored by Senator Rudy Boschwitz.

The legislation is aimed at ending a problem that threatened the very existence of the PIK program. Present law requires that farmers pay taxes on PIK commodities upon receipt, regardless of when the farmer sells them.

"If that practice had been allowed to continue, Boschwitz said, farmers would not have been able to afford the PIK program.

"It was a problem for the IRS," Boschwitz said. "They had no intention of undermining the PIK program, but they were bound to legal precedent. The only answer was to change the law.

He added that both the IRS and the Reagan administration have backed the bill.

The PIK program is designed to eradicate the present large surpluses by paying farmers who cut back on their production with stocks of grain from the CCC or from farmer-owned reserves.

"Boschwitz said he first became aware of the potential problem with the IRS while talking to farmers during informal hearings he held across Minnesota in mid-January.

"I am confident that Congress will act quickly so that the PIK program can proceed as planned," Boschwitz said.

Saturday night was the first time since the 1936-37 Thief River Falls season opener that Middle River appeared on the Prowlers' regular season high school basketball schedule.

Middle River coach Eldon Sparby welcomed the opportunity to play Thief River Falls, something the Skippers have apparently been trying to do for a number of years. He hopes the series will be continued, even if it means Middle River coming to Thief River Falls every year instead of the normal home-and-away arrangements.

Earlier this winter Thief River Falls booked Marshall County Central for the first time since the 1970-71 season. Prior to that the Prowlers hadn't scheduled the Nordics since 1921-22. And Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland, like Sparby at Middle River, has been trying unsuccessfully for some time to schedule the Prowlers.

Here's hoping Thief River Falls will continue to play the Skippers and Nordics. It makes little sense to schedule Roseau every year when Marshall County Central and Middle River are available. They're a lot closer, and most of the time they're a lot better. Why make trips to Kennedy, Climax and Grafton when the Nordics and Skippers are willing to come here?

Because of Thief River Falls' location, a number of smaller Class A schools must be booked each year to complement the Prowlers' schedule against Class AA opponents. Those Class A schools should be Marshall County Central and Middle River.

Thief River Falls officials perhaps balk at the idea, figuring its a no-win situation. The Prowlers, if they win, win because they're supposed to. If they lose, it apparently an embarrassment.

Thief River Falls scheduled Marshall County Central for the first time in 49 years to open the 1970-71 season and lost to the Nordics 63-45. Marshall County Central didn't get back on the schedule until this winter. Now the Prowlers picked up Middle River for the first time in 47 years and lost 59-55. We'll have to wait and see if the Skippers appear on the 1983-84 Thief River Falls schedule.

Section 8 Picks Reviewed

Reviewing preseason picks made by Section 8 high school hockey coaches, Roseau and East Grand Forks failed to live up to expectations and Lake of the Woods was the biggest surprise in the final regular season standings.

In a preseason poll conducted by Frank Fee of KROX radio in Crookston, Section 8 coaches picked Roseau to be the top team, followed by Bemidji, Fergus Falls, East Grand Forks, Thief River Falls, Crookston, Detroit Lakes, Warroad, Moorhead, Lake of the Woods, Alexandria and Brainerd, with Bagley, Crosby-Ironton, Hallock, Indus, Little Falls and Red Lake Falls failing to receive votes.

Actual order of finish was Fergus Falls, Lake of the Woods, Thief River Falls, Bemidji, Roseau, Alexandria, Brainerd, East Grand Forks, Indus, Red Lake Falls, Detroit Lakes, Warroad, Crookston, Little Falls, Hallock, Moorhead, Crosby-Ironton and Bagley.

Bemidji received six first place votes in that preseason poll, with Roseau picked by five coaches to finish first and East Grand Forks getting four top votes. Thief River Falls had 1½ first place votes in that poll, sharing a vote with Fergus Falls.

Coaches did expect a close race as Roseau finished with 109 votes, Bemidji 106, Fergus Falls 100½, East Grand Forks 95 and Thief River Falls 82½.

Basketball Seeding Meeting

North Half Region 8AA girls high school basketball coaches will meet Wednesday at Mahnomen to vote on tournament seeding positions.

Bemidji appears to be headed toward the No. 1 spot, with Crookston probably seeded No. 2 and Moorhead No. 3. Thief River Falls, on the other hand, is assured of being seeded last, No. 9.

There's a real battle, however, for the No. 4 spot and the final home court spot. Detroit Lakes, Fergus Falls, Wadena, East Grand Forks and Park Rapids are closely grouped, and it's anybody's guess how the voting will turn out.

Post-season play starts Mon., Feb. 28, when the No. 9-seeded team will be playing at the site of the No. 8 team to round out the quarterfinal field.

Quarterfinals will be played at the sites of the No. 1-4 seeded teams Tues., March 1. Semifinals will be played at the sites of the higher-seeded first round survivors Thurs., March 3. Championship game will be played at a neutral site Sat., March 5.

MIDDLE RIVER PLAYERS jumped for joy after the final second ticked off the Lincoln high school scoreboard Saturday to clinch the Skippers' surprising 59-55 victory over Thief River Falls. Celebrating the win were Kevin Roppe (32), Scott Peterson (20), Tom Neumann and Brad Berg. Prowlers walking off the court in a less joyfull mood were John Brandt, Randy Naeseth and Mark Gere. The Skippers opened the game by scoring 10 answered points and were never headed.

Strong Start Sparks Skippers To 59-55 Win Over Prowlers

Middle River opened with a 10-0 lead Saturday, maintained that spread most of the game, then held off a late-game Thief River Falls rally for a 59-55 victory over the host Prowlers that surprised most area high school basketball observers.

Thief River Falls, after a brief second quarter rally failed to overtake the fast-starting Skippers, was never closer than seven points in the second half until the final three minutes when the Prowlers, still trailing by that 10-point spread, 45-35, at the start of the fourth quarter, three times got within four points. But Middle River held on and went home with an 11-6 record. The Prowlers fell to 7-9.

The outcome was a little surprising in light of the little school vs. big school match-up, plus the fact the Prowlers lined up with a big edge inside. But it was the role of the underdog that helped win it, according to Middle River coach Eldon Sparby, along with 56 per cent shooting that helped negate Thief River Falls' board strength.

"We just wanted to give them a good game," explained Sparby. "The kids were loose. They weren't expected to win, and when these guys go into a game loose, they're tough."

Middle River missed its first field goal attempt of the night, but then hit seven-in-a-row as part of that 10-0 headstart.

Thief River Falls didn't score until Mark Gere drove the base line with 5:15 remaining.

A 16-8 Middle River lead at the end of the first quarter evaporated to 18-16 and then 20-18 in the second quarter, but the Skippers never relinquished the lead. Gere scored from underneath to make it 20-18 with 2:08 remaining, but Middle River scored the final seven points of the half, including a long base line jumper by Kevin Roppe that hit nothing but net with eight seconds left for a 27-18 cushion at intermission.

Middle River matched its biggest lead of the game when Roppe scored on a fast break lay-up for a 43-31 gap with 2:06 left in the third quarter.

It was still a 12-point spread, 53-41, when Thief River Falls finally made a move in the fourth quarter. The Prowlers cut the deficit in half when Gere hit a long jumper from the side, followed by two free throws apiece by Steve Kruta and Tim Kruse to make it 53-47 with 3:06 on the clock.

Twice Thief River Falls pulled within four points in the final 2½ minutes, including 57-53 when Randy Naeseth scored on a lay-up with 46 seconds showing. But the Skippers, who missed six of their first eight fourth quarter free throws, managed to get the front end of bonus opportunities from Scottie Peterson and Roppe with 40 and 30 seconds remaining, respectively, to ice it.

John Brandt banked in a short jumper on a fast break once again make it a four-point game, 59-55, but that's the way it ended.

"I thought Middle River put it to us pretty good," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt. "They played well. That's a fine team. I'm not ashamed of my kids because they lost a game, whether it be to Middle River or anybody else. They played hard. They didn't give up. They showed some character out there. The difference was, they put the ball in the hoop. We had some opportunities to make a run at them, but we just couldn't make our shots."

While Middle River was hitting 24 of 43 field goal attempts, Thief River Falls only 21-for-58, exactly 30 percentage points below the Skippers' figures.

Forward Dale Olson had 16 points to lead the Skippers, with Roppe, a guard, getting 15. Freshman Tom Neumann played a key role in things as the 6-1 center-forward scored nine points. Naeseth (18) and Gere (12) gave the bigger Prowlers 30 points inside, but Gere's shift from a guard to a forward left the Prowlers with a scoring void in the backcourt.

Thief River Falls was 13-for-19 at the free throw line and Middle River was 11-for-26. The Prowlers had a 33-26 rebound edge and topped the turnover figures 14-13. Middle River did manage to keep pace on the boards most of the night, a key factor in the outcome, noted Sparby. "We had good position on defense. I was really proud of the way we rebounded with them."

Middle River closes out its 1982-83 regular season schedule Saturday at Greenbush. Thief River Falls hosts East Grand Forks Friday.

TRF Completes Sweep Against Bemidji 52-44

Thief River Falls completed a rare two-game regular season sweep over rival Bemidji Friday when the Prowlers rattled off a string of 12 unanswered points to finish the first half, leading to a 52-44 high school basketball victory over the visiting Lumberjacks.

Coupled with a 44-37 Thief River Falls win at Bemidji Jan. 7, it gave the Prowlers their first home-and-home sweep over the Lumberjacks since the 1951-52 season.

It might have been a costly loss for the Lumberjacks, who had visions of a third place seed behind East Grand Forks and Moorhead in the upcoming 1983 North Half Region 8AA playoffs. But now at 6-4 within the region, the Lumberjacks' voting stock dropped. It was just the third win in nine tries against Class AA opposition for the Prowlers, but their second in four days following a 55-50 victory at Park Rapids Tuesday.

"That was a good victory; a big win for us," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt, who indicated it might have been one of the Prowlers' better overall performances of the year.

It didn't start that impressively, though. Thief River Falls struggled at the beginning, trailing 12-9 at the end of the first quarter when Bemidji's Govind Nadesan made an unlikely long, spin-around jumper without looking at the basket at the buzzer.

Thief River Falls remained behind until center Randy Naeseth began that half-ending string of points with a base line shot that tied it 18-18 with 3:53 remaining.

Steve Kruta then pulled up on a drive for a short jumper to give the Prowlers their first lead, 20-18 with 2:42 left, since the first basket of the game. Mark Gere followed with a rebound shot off a missed free throw; Naeseth twice put in rebounds; and Gere scored on a fast break lay-up with 12 seconds on the clock for a 28-18 halftime cushion. The Prowlers were in complete command during that outburst, thanks in part to four Bemidji turnovers that were converted directly into Thief River Falls points.

"We weren't reacting at the start to the things Bemidji's defense was giving us," explained Hunt. "Things were available, but the kids were tight. Everything finally starting falling together for us in the second quarter. The offensive boards really helped."

Thief River Falls made it 14 straight points when Gere opened the second half with a 15-foot jumper. Bemidji cut the deficit to 32-26 when Nadesan connected from the side with 2:55 left in the third quarter, but Thief River Falls closed the period on three baskets by Kruta and Gere, who hit one from the side at the buzzer for a 12-point spread, 38-26.

Things looked well in hand when Thief River Falls owned a pair of 14-point leads in the first minute of the fourth quarter. Bemidji battled back, however, and had chopped 10 points off that margin when a Jeff Leyendecker rebound basket pulled the Lumberjacks within 48-44 with 1:02 remaining.

The Prowlers, who had turned the ball over on three consecutive possessions during that Bemidji comeback, got their act together in the final minute, scoring the last four points on free throws by Kruta and Gere and a bucket by Naeseth. Kruta made the front end of a bonus opportunity with exactly one minute remaining, making it 49-44. Thief River Falls pulled down a defensive rebound and quickly fired the ball downcourt to a wide-open Naeseth for a back-breaking lay-up with 38 seconds left for a 51-44 cushion and Gere dropped in the first shot on a 1-and-1 try with 28 seconds to go.

"We didn't function very well against Bemidji's zone in the fourth quarter," explained Hunt. "We didn't have enough patience. We didn't look like a team with a 12-point lead."

Gere had 19 points and Naeseth 14 to lead the Prowlers' offense, but they had to share post-game praise with Kruta, who played a strong floor game, and Olson, who played well defensively, said Hunt. Nadesan, a 6-1 senior, scored 14 to lead the Lumberjacks, who used three sophomores extensively — 6-1 Joe Edlund, 6-2 Keith Bjella and 6-5 Scott Kerick.

Thief River Falls shot 48 per cent from the field (23-for-48) while Bemidji shot just 31 per cent (21-for-67). The Prowlers were 6-for-12 at the free throw line where the Lumberjacks were 2-for-5. The Prowlers finished with a 35-31 rebound edge and topped the turnover charts 16-9 — 11 of them coming in the second half.

Fergus Falls Is Easy 6-1 Winner

A regular season-ending match-up of two highly regarded Section 8 high school hockey teams turned out to be a surprising mismatch Friday as host Fergus Falls stunned Thief River Falls 6-1.

Figured by some as a preview of the Section 8 tournament finals in two weeks, Fergus Falls proved that its 17-2-1 record and regular season first place finish in the Section 8 standings were no flukes as the Otters out-played a strong Thief River Falls team that placed third and finished 14-5-1.

A four-goal second period flurry won it for the Otters, who stopped the Prowlers 5-2 in Thief River Falls back on Dec. 11.

Fergus Falls scored just 61 seconds into the game and had a 2-0 edge before Thief River Falls sophomore Joe Blankenfeld cut that margin in half in the final minute of the opening period.

Rest of the scoring was bunched into a 4:20 span of the second period when Blaine Rude scored twice and single goals were added by Craig Hedstrom and Jason Wentler, his second goal of the game. Three of those goals came within 55 seconds of each other.

"That scoring in the second period certainly helped them," acknowledged Thief River Falls assistant coach Dave Peterson. "We didn't play all that poorly, but they were faster than we were, they forechecked aggressively and the breaks seemed to go their way."

"They're a good team. We were impressed," he added.

Northmen Shade Trojans 77-75 For State Berth

It was simply a case of tradition, said Northland community college basketball coach Chet Engelman Thursday when the Northmen, after watching a 14-point second half lead all but disappear, hung on for an exciting 77-75 Northwest Division win over rival University of Minnesota-Crookston in front of a loud, overflow Thief River Falls crowd.

Tradition has it that Northland alternate both good and not-so-good basketball throughout the course of a game. And tradition has it that the Northmen beat the Trojans — something they've accomplished with astonishing regularity, taking 18 of the last 19 games between the two.

"It's a little disappointing to lose a lead like that," admitted Engelman. "Traditionally we play in spurts; we go well for a while, then the other guy does. But we got two more points than they did, and that was enough."

It was enough to get Northland into the 1983 Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) state tournament beginning Thursday at Normandale in Bloomington. Fergus Falls locked up first place in the Northwest Division that same night with a 123-98 win over Brainerd, but Northland will go as the No. 2 team. UMC needed wins over both Northland and Fergus Falls on Saturday to take second place away from the Northmen, who finished their regular season schedule, 16-3, including a 9-2 Northwest Division mark.

"We're happy to win," acknowledged Engelman. "We did some things right, and then had some trouble with some other things."

Northland's usual run-and-gun game was out of character most of the time when the Northmen went to the slow down, spread offense. After six ties and three lead changes in the first 8:16, Northland took a lead they never relinquished when Kyle Ramsey hit a 12-foot jump shot for an 18-16 edge with 11:44 remaining in the first half. Scott McKeever followed with a fast break lay-up, forcing a Crookston time-out and setting up Northland's decision to hold the ball.

For the most part it worked. While the large UMC fan delegation chanted "boring, boring" the Northmen worked the ball around until they more often than not picked up an easy basket or drew a foul. Sophomore standout Matt Fontes had 17 points in the first half off that strategy, including a pair of free throws with 41 seconds left that gave the Northmen their biggest lead, 37-27.

Seventeen offensive rebounds enabled the Trojans to stay close in the first half, including a rebound basket by 6-8 sophomore center Jay Bock with 25 seconds remaining for a 37-29 margin at intermission.

Northland was in control at the start of the second half, owning a 15-point 48-33 cushion with 14:39 left. That was their biggest spread. It was still 59-45 when Fontes followed a three-point play with a pair of free throws with 9:02 to play.

But UMC, showing some fine outstanding shooting by guards Mark Bagaason, Bill Ferris and Paul Ostby, battled back, scoring 12 of the next 14 points over the next three minutes to pull within 61-57.

Four times the Trojans got within a single point, including 69-68 on a long jumper by Bagaason with 2:48 remaining, but were never able to wrestle the lead away from the Northmen.

An 18-footer by Ferris kept UMC within 74-72 with 44 seconds remaining. Scott McKeever hit both ends of a bonus free throw situation with 17 seconds to go for a 76-72 Northland lead, but UMC reserve forward Richard Newman came up with a big three-point play on a drive through the lane as the margin again shrank to a single point, 76-75.

Crookston applied pressure on the Northland in-bounds play, but instead of coming up with the ball the Trojans sent McKeever to the free throw line with three seconds showing. He made the first shot on the bonus situation and missed the second shot. UMC got the rebound, but didn't have time to get the ball into position for a potential game-tying shot.

Fontes, being watched by University of North Dakota coach Dave Gunther, scored a game-high 32 points, including a 14-for-18 showing at the free throw line. McKeever had 14, plus five assists, while Ramsey scored 13 and Steve Halloway played well in scoring 12 for the Northmen, who were without point guard Duncan Gregory for disciplinary reasons for the second straight game. Newfolden freshman Rick Van Camp took over his starting role. UMC had an equally balanced attack, led by Bagaason, a sophomore from Clearbrook, with 16 and Ferris, a sophomore from Barnesville, with 14.

Northland shot 47 per cent from the field (27-for-58) and 70 per cent from the free throw line on a productive 23-for-33 night. Northland scored eight of its final ten points at the line, with Ramsey's jumper from the free throw line that gave Northland a 74-70 edge with 56 seconds left, the only field goal by the Northmen over the final four minutes. UMC shot 39 per cent from the field (34-for-87) and 54 per cent at the line (7-for-13).

TRAFFIC IN the lane got a little heavy as University of Minnesota-Crookston defenders Kurt Keena (left) and Mike Brekke tried to stop Northland community college forward Matt Fontes in the first half of Thursday's basketball game played in Thief River Falls. Brekke was called for a foul on the play. Fontes scored 32 points to lead the Northmen past the rival Trojans 77-75.

University of Minnesota-Crookston repeated as Minnesota Community College Conference state hockey tournament champion Sunday with a 7-1 title game victory over host Rochester.

The regular season league champion Trojans beat Rainy River 9-5 in Saturday night's opening round semifinals. Rochester advanced with a 5-2 first round win over Northland.

Rainy River defeated Northland 4-2 in Sunday's third place game.

Marshall County Central Wins 38-28 . . .

Unbeaten Status Ends For Middle River Girls

Season-long 17-game Middle River winning streak came to an end Thursday when the Skippers dropped a low-scoring 38-28 decision to rival Marshall County Central in North Border Conference girls high school basketball action.

It was the second ten-point spread between the two teams, but the first time around Middle River was the winner, 46-36, back in mid-January.

The results left the Skippers and Nordics tied atop the final North Border standings, but Marshall County Central will get the No. 1 seed in post-season play by virtue of a coin flip held immediately after Thursday's game.

"Not a whole lot of offense," confirmed Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde. "It was a defensive battle the whole way. It could have gone either way."

It was deadlocked 8-8 and 15-15 at the first two quarter stops before Marshall County Central went ahead 27-22 in the third quarter.

"We got beat on our press the first time we played them, so we didn't press much this time," noted Mjelde. "And we didn't get hurt inside on the boards this time, either."

Sue Olson of the Nordics led all scorers with 19 points. Kari Skoglund had 10 for the Skippers. Both sides were without a key player. Debbie Peterson, the Marshall County Central point guard who was the team's second leading scorer and top defensive player, hasn't played since suffering a knee injury Jan. 20 and double figure scorer Diane Black of Middle River, along with top reserve Tammy Sorter, were out of the line-up because of MSHSL rules violations.

Middle River hurt its own cause with a poor free throw shooting night. The Skippers were just 6-for-21 at the line (29 per cent), including a 3-for-15 first half. Those hurt, confirmed Middle River coach Tom Neibauer. Marshall County Central was 6-for-14 at the line (43 per cent). The Nordics were 16-for-42 from the field (38 per cent) and the Skippers were 11-for-38 (29 per cent). Marshall County Central had a slight 29-25 rebound edge and Middle River topped the turnover figures 13-12.

It was the final regular season start for the Skippers. The 15-2 Nordics finish at home tonight (Monday) vs. Greenbush.

Host Badger had a 17-16 lead at intermission, but Grygla out-scored the Rockets 35-16 in the second half, owning a 30-25 third quarter lead.

"We played a terrible first half," admitted Grygla coach Bill Raduenz. "In the second half we started playing basketball. We played like we're capable of playing."

Foss led the way by scoring 17 of her game-high 21 points in the second half. Tammy Anderson finished with 11 for the winners and Carol Verbout had 10. Mary Larson scored 14 for the Rockets.

The win lifted Grygla to 11-6 for the year. The Eagles finish their regular season schedule Tuesday at Goodridge.

Grygla shot 30 per cent from the field (17-for-57) and 65 per cent at the free throw line (17-for-26). Badger shot 28 per cent from the floor (13-for-47) and 41 per cent at the line (7-for-17). Grygla owned a 44-28 rebound advantage and Badger topped the turnovers 24-20.

Paula Thoreson of Climax led all scorers with 37 points. Plummer answered with 30 points from Bonnie Fisher, 20 from Jody Pahlen and 19 more from Sheila Jaeger, a freshman who put on an impressive shooting display from the outside. Pahlen and Fisher both got their points despite sitting out a quarter each.

Climax led 14-13 at the end of the first quarter, but Plummer led at the other stops 33-27 and 51-43.

Plummer shot 43 per cent from the field (31-for-72) and 76 per cent at the free throw line (13-for-17). Climax shot 28 per cent from the floor (22-for-79) and 50 per cent at the line (11-for-22). Climax had a slim 45-42 rebound edge and Plummer finished atop the turnover figures 17-15. Eighth grader Robin Brantl had 11 rebounds for the winners, with Pahlen grabbing 12.

It was the second goal of the game for Imgrund. Joe Blankenfeld also scored twice for the winners, with Bob Breiland, Bill Desrocher and Bob Huot adding single goals.

It was a 3-3 hockey game after one period and remained deadlocked 4-4 through two. Fergus Falls forced overtime when Kyle Johnson scored with 1:37 left in regulation time, tying it 6-6.

Thief River Falls was outshot 37-26, but goalies Steve Solheim and Lee Genereux teammed up for a strong game in the nets.

LHS Girls Lose To EGF 45-42

Winless in its last 12 starts, the Lincoln high school girls basketball team will close out its 1982-83 regular season schedule Tuesday when the Prowlers host Fergus Falls in a 7:30 p.m. start at the Lincoln gym.

Thief River Falls' record dropped to 2-13 Thursday following a 45-42 loss at East Grand Forks.

"We played well. We played a very, very good ball game," reported Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer, who let it be known in no uncertain terms that he was upset with the officiating. "There's no doubt in my mind we should have won that ball game. It was just ridiculous," he said.

Thief River Falls had a 14-8 first quarter edge. It was a 22-22 tie at intermission, with East Grand Forks going ahead 36-31 in the third quarter.

Only double figure scorers in the game were Thief River Falls guards Michelle Olson and Paula Meyers with 17 and 12 points, respectively. Olson had 10 in the first quarter alone.

East Grand Forks had a shooting edge, going 21-for-50 from the field (42 per cent) while Thief River Falls was 18-for-57 (32 per cent). Neither side fared very well at the free throw line where the Green Wave went 3-for-9 (33 per cent) and the Prowlers were 6-for-16 (38 per cent). Thief River Falls had a 43-31 rebound advantage and East Grand Forks topped the turnover figures 13-10.

It was a clean East Grand Forks sweep as the hosts took the junior varsity game 48-23 and won the freshman contest 39-34. Thief River Falls' junior varsity team is 6-9 for the year.

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

Last year more than 30 economists and 10 expensive econometric services provided forecasts to magazines, newspapers, TV and radio. Even Henry Kaufman (an economist with Salomon, a big brokerage firm), whose projections move interest rates up and down and shake the security markets (in spite of his continuing forecast errors) had his say. All projected an upturn, some recovery and improvement in our economy. As the year progressed, they all changed "their tune" many times, with forecasts that disagreed with what they predicted earlier.

Now these experts are predicting a three-and-a-half to four per cent increase in the production of goods and services, a five to six per cent inflation rate, and unemployment averaging something over 10 per cent. Even though they have a lousy batting average on forecasts, none are too optimistic about 1983.

A year ago, visiting business groups as a speaker, I suggested that 1982 was going to be a rough year, with employment and business significantly down for most industries, and no real recovery in sight. I said then (and have not changed my view) that 1983 would not be a good year, either. Particularly where agribusiness is big, I didn't believe that a recovery would get underway until late 1984 or the spring of 1985. Most businessmen were not happy with that forecast because many were "hanging on" hoping for a miracle in the spring of 1982, and the "truth" hurt.

I understood that these businessmen wanted happy news and disliked my "gloom and doom". I didn't have to change my forecasts as the year progressed. I didn't buy any of the stock or bonds suggested by many stockbrokers who called me, because I have to understand what I am doing and why before I invest. That irritates some stockbrokers, who expect what they say to be treated like a gospel.

The problem, as I see it, is that our basic economy is so messed up that getting it going again is not going to be either easy or painless. I don't see either industry or government taking those actions which are necessary for a real sound recovery, today. I also believe that down deep the consumers, you and I, have very little confidence in the future, and our worries are keeping us from making big commitments, so that we are not helping to achieve a recovery, either.

Without a recovery, how can businesses that are either losing money or breaking even (some who are breaking even may even be using some accounting "tricks") be good investments? Furthermore, since we are confronted with government spending much more than it takes in, which translates into bigger deficits than ever, I'm worried about a good base existing for double and triple digit inflation once a recovery actually did get started. I think that a good many people are worried about inflation, and that discourages long term investment and the sale of bonds.

Illustrating my point about the "false" boom and recovery, I observed a stock that I own selling at about $7 per share a few months ago. Then, without any improvement in profit or prospects, just a boom in the stock market based, I believe, on hope, it zoomed up 57 per cent to $11 per share. There was no good reason to assume earnings would increase. The dividend being paid is just over four per cent. You can earn more in an insured savings account.

When people act irrationally and buy securities boosting prices of stock and bonds up, it isn't permanent. When they find that they have made a mistake, and the boom doesn't materialize, they go back to realism, and what went up fast goes down just as fast. That is why I hesitate to jump into stocks and bonds when my stockbroker calls. I just do not see the basis for taking the actions he recommends now, even though I recognize his need for commissions to survive.

Over the next few weeks, in this column, responding to lots of letters and calls from around the country, I will take a look, realistically, at the economy and certain basic industries and tell you what I believe needs to be done to get our country and its economy moving forward soundly.

I do not believe that we can wait for those big name economists to give us answers because they do not have answers. Many have big heads, massive multi-syllable vocabularies, and produce a gobbledygook that is neither meaningful or consistent. A group of bankers in a meeting listened to one of these guys, and fortified with some drinks from a happy hour that preceded the speech, asked the speaker what he had said, to the applause of the rest of the audience.

One of these bigheads, interviewed on TV, was shocked when the interviewer noted his contradictions in prior statements. I am fortunate, at my university, to have the benefit of an economist who says things that make sense and does not speak like an oracle with a split tongue so that he could claim he is right, regardless of what happens.

I think you will find my observations and suggestions make sense to you.

School Board Proceedings

February 21, 1983
Regular Board Meeting
Ind. School Dist. No. 564
January 24, 1983

A Regular Board Meeting of Independent School District No. 564 was held at 8:00 p.m. on January 24, 1983 in the Board Room of the School District Service Center.

The following Board members were present: Arnt Aune, Archie Cameron, Myrle Carlson, Hank Hallstrom, Larry McDowell, Greg Pribula, and Harry Sjulson. Also present was Robert Block, Superintendent.

Chairman Harry Sjulson called the meeting to order at 8:05 p.m. and Clerk Arnt Aune established that a quorum was present.

A motion was made by L. McDowell and seconded by M. Carlson to approve the Minutes of the January 10, 1983 Meet and Confer Session. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by H. Hallstrom and seconded by A. Cameron to approve the Minutes of the January 10, 1983 Regular Board Meeting. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by L. McDowell and seconded by A. Cameron to approve the bills as submitted. Motion carried unanimously.

Pam Carlson, Student Program Coordinator, distributed materials and gave a report on the EXCEL (Extra-Curricular Experiences in Learning) Program. The Program is funded through the Minnesota Improved Learning Law along with funds raised by students in the program. After-school courses offered these academically able students at the present time include Computers, Spanish, French, German, Science, Typing, Art, Music, Junior Great Books, and work experience in the Spartan Spirit Shop. Some of these same courses plus additional ones are planned to be offered during the second semester.

A motion was made by A. Aune and seconded by H. Hallstrom to approve January 24, 1983 as Parent-Teacher Conference Day and change in the 1982-83 K-12 calendar. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by G. Pribula and seconded by M. Carlson to approve February 18, 1983 as a floating inservice day on the 1982-83 K-12 calendar. Motion carried unanimously.

Following discussion, a motion was made by G. Pribula and seconded by M. Carlson to approve the Position Statement on Extra-Curricular Activities in School District No. 564 as submitted by the Extra-Curricular Advisory Committee. Motion carried unanimously.

Discussion was held concerning the Extra-Curricular Advisory Committee's recommendations proposing the following activities as Core activities or those to be funded by the Board: 6-12 Boys and Girls Band, Track, Basketball, Orchestra; Boys Football and Hockey; Girls Tennis and Volleyball; and High School Boys and Girls Musical, Fall Play, Pep Band, Cheerleading, and Spring play. Their proposal would also designate Boys and Girls Swimming, High School Yearbook, Boys Tennis, and Girls Softball as Co-Funded activities or those to be funded by the Board in proportion to dedicated funds that may be left over after operation of all core activities and if funds could be raised by the community to make up the difference. Boys and Girls Cross-Country, Golf, Speech, Debate, and Boys Baseball would be designated as Community-Funded activities or those not funded by the Board but operated only if community interest can raise the funds necessary for their operation. No formal action was taken but it was felt that decisions should be made concerning these programs sometime in March.

Following discussion and request from the St. Hilaire City Council to delay advertising for bids on the St. Hilaire property for 60 days, a motion was made by A. Aune and seconded by A. Cameron to advertise for and receive bids on the St. Hilaire property including buildings and land with advertisements to run in the Thief River Falls TIMES and other papers and bids to be opened on March 14, 1983. Motion carried unanimously.

Discussion was held concerning the budget cutting process the administration is presently using. It is hoped that a budget summary book will be distributed to Board members by the end of this week and made public after they have had a chance to review the material. It was suggested that an early morning meeting be scheduled next week to discuss the document. Meetings for public input were also suggested for the following week.

Business Manager, Harry Nelson, discussed with the Board the possibility of borrowing money to complete the fiscal year. Further study will be done and a presentation made to the Board for formal action at a later date.

Material was distributed from the Employee Benefit Administration Company of Minneapolis concerning their visit and survey of selected portions of the school district on November 17. Major concerns at Lincoln were in the Chemistry Lab area where there appears to be improper ventilation; no available water for a potential chemical splash or exposure; and if an accidental spill or fire would originate within the Chemistry Lab Storage Room, the main exit from the classroom would become blocked. Concern was also expressed that the secondary exit out of the Band Room No. 116 leads to an enclosed courtyard. It was suggested that Pat Barry, State Fire Marshall, be contacted regarding these concerns.

The Superintendent informed the Board of an MSBA Negotiations Seminar to be held on February 17 at the Best Western. The Superintendent and Board members Hank Hallstrom and Archie Cameron will attend as representatives of the district with Greg Pribula designated as an alternate.

A motion was made by A. Aune and seconded by G. Pribula to approve completion of the Lynn Dyer project by the AVTI Carpentry class in this school year and the Bert Vigen project if time permits. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by L. McDowell and seconded by M. Carlson authorizing the Administration to advertise for projects for the AVTI Carpentry class to complete during the 1983-84 school year. Motion carried unanimously.

Cameron to approve the employment of Jessie Comstock as Grade 4 Long-Term Substitute at Northrop to replace Linda Olson who is on adoption leave; effective January 3, 1983, with salary and benefits per negotiated contract. Hallstrom to approve the employment of Margaret Fay Bolin as Grade 5 Long-Term Substitute at Knox to replace Dick Tyler who is on sick leave; effective January 18, 1983, with salary and benefits per negotiated contract. There being no certified applications from the first posting of the AVTI Special Needs Advisor position, a motion was made by L. McDowell and seconded by A. Cameron authorizing the Administration to repost for the AVTI Special Needs Advisor position. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by L. McDowell and seconded by M. Carlson to approve the extra-curricular assignment of Pam Carlson as Yearbook Advisor at Franklin for the 1982-83 school year at the rate of $622.00. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by A. Cameron and seconded by M. Carlson to approve the extra-curricular assignment of Judith Schmit as Yearbook Advisor at Lincoln for the 1982-83 school year at the rate of $951.00. Motion carried unanimously.

After numerous meetings, the Administration presented the Board with a lengthy document of proposed budget reductions totaling approximately $944,000. This document was delivered to Board members prior to this meeting. The purpose of this meeting was to go through the proposal item by item and to discuss and answer questions of the Board.

Superintendent Block will meet with as many building staff as possible before a public meeting is scheduled and details of the document will be discussed at that time. The Board suggested that a limited number of copies be made available in the Superintendent's Office for anyone to review; however, because of the length of the document, they cannot be distributed to everyone or let out of the office. The material will also be made available to the media to let the public know of the district's proposed plans.

A Board meeting is scheduled for Monday, February 7 at 7:00 a.m. in the Board Room to give Board members a chance to discuss the proposal in detail. A meeting was also scheduled for Thursday, February 10 at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln Auditorium to allow the Board to receive public input on the proposal.

AVTI Director Orley Gunderson discussed with the Board concern over a proposed change in AVTI governance. It was suggested that a meeting be scheduled with Northland community college administration to discuss ways in which the two schools can work together in an effort to save money. The Board will discuss this item more thoroughly at a meeting in the near future and a position statement formulated concerning the proposed change.

Meeting adjourned at 9:05 a.m.

Snowmobile Drag Racing At Alexandria

Drag racing clubs belonging to International Snowmobile Racing, Inc. from all over the US and Canada will be gathering on Lake Darling in front of Radisson Arrowwood for their season's end World Series event February 26-27.

Last year's 400 entries at the same site made it the biggest driver event in snowmobiling — and even more are expected this year. Drag racing is the fastest growing form of snowmobile competition with the number of clubs and participants doubling from last year. The event scheduled for Alexandria will probably again be the biggest driver attended race in snowmobiling. Drag racers from Canada, Michigan, Indiana, Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota will be on hand from the season's grand finale.

Drag racers compete on a straight-line 750-foot course with up to six drivers on the starting line at one time. They find out in a hurry whether they measure up as any particular race lasts only about six seconds.

A wide range of classes are available so practically any machine and any driver can enter. There are five junior classes, nine stock classes, five mod-stock and eight open-modified. This should mean two full days of top-notch competition for snowmobile race fans.

Just as big an attraction as the races are the customized racing snowmobiles.

Northwomen Lose Final Game To Trojans 53-48

A late-game rally came up short Thursday as the Northland community college women's basketball team lost a season-ending 53-48 Northwest Division decision to the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

Northland ended the 1982-83 season 8-11 overall, 3-8 in the Northwest Division where Fergus Falls and UMC finished 1-2 to earn state tournament berths.

Trailing 50-40 with five minutes remaining, Northland pulled within 50-46 following a pair of free throws by Deb Koskela with 2:29 left.

Janice Gubbels, one of four Baudette players on the court (along with twin sister Janet of UMC, plus Kris Johnson and CeCe Hildebrandt of Northland), made the front end of a bonus free throw opportunity with 1:09 to play as the UMC lead went to 51-46, but Northland cut it down to 51-48 when LeAnn Paetznick scored on a fast break lay-up with 31 seconds showing.

That was as close as the Northwomen got. Janet Gubbels hit two free throws with nine seconds showing to insure the Trojans' win. They took the first meeting between the two rivals this year 56-44 two weeks earlier.

"Score-wise it wasn't a victory," admitted Northland coach Deb Jacobson, "but I think it was a moral victory for us to come back like that."

First half produced slow, but close basketball. Two Koskela free throws pulled Northland into a 23-23 tie with 1:20 remaining, but that's when Janice Gubbels stole the show by hitting three straight jumpers from the outside on three consecutive trips downcourt in the final minute of the first half for a 29-23 edge at intermission, a lead the Trojans never lost.

Janice Gubbels led all scorers with 16 points, 14 coming in the first half. Sophomore guard Donna Stewart of Lancaster led Northland with 13 points.

Northland shot 30 per cent from the field (20-for-66) and 73 per cent at the free throw line (8-for-11). UMC shot 29 per cent from the field (24-for-83) and just 36 per cent at the line (5-for-14). The taller Trojans had a 59-46 rebound advantage and topped the turnover figures 21-20. Paetznick had 16 rebounds for the Northmen while Tara Nicholson had 12 points and 11 rebounds.

Jacobson, although not totally happy with the 8-11 finish, seemed satisfied with the effort by the Northwomen this winter. "They did a good job. I think we got a lot out of them," she said.

A FOUL was called on University of Minnesota-Crookston defender Kindi Helling, who tried to block Northland community college forward LeAnn Paetznick from the basket during the first half of Thursday's women's basketball game played in Thief River Falls. The Trojans beat the Northwomen 53-48.

Warren Handles Plummer 70-32

First and last place teams in the Polar Conference met Friday and the result was a one-sided 70-32 Warren victory margin over Plummer in a high school basketball game at the Pershing high school gym.

"They're just too much for us," admitted Plummer coach Jim Baron. "They play a very tenacious defense."

Warren ran up a 17-2 first quarter lead and was never challenged by the 1-15 Cardinals. The Ponies had a 33-11 halftime cushion and lengthened it to 53-21 in the third quarter.

Eleven Ponies scored and four of them had 10 points each — Darren Evavold, Ken Porter, Duane Mattson and Mike Dubore. Duane Franklund and Eric Eskeli both had 8 points to lead Plummer scoring figures.

Plummer got off just 36 shots against the Warren defense, making 13 of them for a 36 per cent shooting night. Warren, meanwhile, was 30-for-64 (47 per cent). The Cardinals fared poorly at the free throw line, too, where they were 6-for-21. The Ponies didn't do so hot shooting free throws, either, finishing 10-for-23.

The Cardinals finish their 1982-83 regular season schedule Tuesday at Alvarado.

Argyle 52
Goodridge 44

Goodridge put in a strong bid for an upset Friday but was turned back by Argyle 52-44 in a Polar Conference game played at Goodridge.

It was very nearly the same margin by which the Huskies fell to Warren (55-44) recently. The Eagles and Ponies are Polar Conference co-leaders.

"Even though we didn't beat Warren or Argyle, we got over the syndrome of being intimidated by them. We realized we can play with those people," reported Goodridge coach Rick Nelson.

Argyle led at the quarter stops 16-8, 24-18 and 40-26, pulling away in the third quarter when three consecutive Goodridge turnovers gave the Eagles momentum. The Huskies made up some ground in the final eight minutes, but not nearly enough.

"I was happy with the way the kids came back," pointed out Nelson. "We can be happy with the way we played; but we can't be satisfied. Our goal was to beat them."

Jay Swanson had 16 points and Don Magnusson 12 for the winners, with Nelson really impressed by the play of Magnusson, calling him the "best point guard I've seen." Jeff Langan had 12 points for the Huskies and Ross Parnow added 10.

Both teams shot 52 per cent from the field, with Goodridge 22-for-42 and Argyle 23-for-44. But Argyle was 6-for-12 at the free throw line and Goodridge was 0-for-4. The Eagles, despite their full court pressure defense, were not called for a single second half foul. Goodridge had a big 28-11 rebound advantage but also topped the turnover charts 22-10.

Warroad 45
Middle River 40

Warroad wrapped up sole possession of the 1982-83 North Border Conference title Friday with a 45-40 win over visiting Middle River.

The Skippers, who shared the crown last winter with Marshall County Central, could have picked up another co-championship with a win over the Warriors, but instead got burned by 27 per cent shooting from the field.

It was close throughout, but Warroad had an edge at every quarter stop 12-10, 26-22 and 34-30.

Controversy On Electric Co-op Bill Of Rights

Special To The Times
by Jim Robins
Northern Star News Service

Should the state guarantee rural electricity users a voice in their rural electric cooperatives? Answering that question has prompted heated debate among legislators for the last couple years.

Legislation proposed this year would assure co-op shareholders access to local board meetings and business records, allow them to petition issues to a non-blinding vote at annual meetings and give them an equal opportunity to influence votes that come up at annual meetings.

Proponents say these rights are basic. shareholders should be able to find out how their directors vote on rate hikes and how the co-op is managed.

Opponents say state government shouldn't interfere, especially when there is no problem for most shareholders who want access to their coop's decisions.

The bill designed to give members of electric co-ops the right to attend board meetings and see records "has made co-ops more sensitive to the membership," said Sen. Leroy Stumpf of Plummer, but he doesn't support the bill.

"I don't think there's a need for it," he said. Three rural co-ops supply power to Stumpf's district and they "serve the users well," said Stumpf.

The bill applies only to the few co-ops in the state that have differences between members and the board, Stumpf said. "If the system works, why tinker with it? Maybe a statewide legislative mandate isn't a simple way to get at the problem."

A way for co-op members who are dissatisfied with their board to attack the problem is to "exercise their responsibility" and vote at annual meetings, Stumpf suggested. If the members elect a responsive board they will have a "direct line" to what they want.

Rep. Wallace Sparby of Thief River Falls also opposes the bill. "I've had discussions with constituents and I'm not aware of any problems between co-op boards and members," he said.

Sparby has also met with the boards and they feel the bill would be an infringement on or harrassment of co-op boards.

Electric costs have increased in Sparby's district but that is not the boards' fault, he said. The co-ops in Sparby's area have to buy their power from North Dakota, which makes it more expensive. The boards are doing a good job in keeping costs down, he added.

The co-ops members show good participation in annual meetings and they may also attend monthly meetings, Sparby said. In other parts of the state, if "there is a situation where the members can't attend meetings, that should be rectified," he added.

Legislative authors of the co-op bill of rights are hoping to muster up enough support for the bill to pass this year after it passed narrowly in the House and failed in the Senate last session.

They've taken out some of the starch in the bill this time around. The proposal largely exempts wholesale "super" co-ops such as Cooperative Power association, United Power association and Dairyland which deliver the power to the local retail cooperatives. Only local co-op directors would be allowed access to the business records of the super co-ops.

Also, the bill doesn't bind boards of directors to accept decisions brought by shareholders to annual meetings.

The dropping of these controversial provisions from last session's bill is designed to get more legislators supporting a guarantee of some basic rights of access to information for co-op members.

"We might get some people to look at what is really in the bill," said Sen. Ron Dicklinch of Hibbing, author of the legislation. "It doesn't hurt anybody."

Some opponents are quick to point out that if the bill doesn't give co-op members any tangible added power, there isn't any reason to add co-ops to the list of businesses regulated by state government.

Dicklich is concerned about lobbying playing a role in whether the legislation gets passed. The co-op bill received heavy lobbying attention last session and legislators are getting contacted as the bill gets hearings in House committee.

"The lobbyists have too much control," Dicklich said. He complains that co-op management has a free hand in spending co-op members' money to defeat legislation designed to help those members.

Dicklich hopes to get across the idea that this isn't legislation discriminating against electrical cooperatives. "Stockholders of corporations now have more access to their business records than co-op shareholders. In fact, most of the language (from the open business records section of the bill) comes right out of the corporate law."

One of the main objections to the proposed law is that it gives a bad name to local co-ops, most of which operate openly and try to keep members informed. The bill regulates co-ops statewide even though only a few are having problems.

"If the system discriminates against one person, I feel it is the government's role to provide equal protection under the law," Dicklich said.

He doesn't see his co-op bill of rights as dealing with just a few isolated problems, though. "People have experienced higher electrical rates and there is more dissatisfaction with co-op management than there was two years ago," Dicklich said.

Valley Unity Is Assembly Goal Feb. 25 At UMC

Muriel Smith, deputy prime minister and minister of economic development and tourism will address the first Red River Valley unity assembly, Friday, February 25, at the University of Minnesota, Crookston, food service building.

Representatives from agriculture, business and industry, politics, religion, education, history and culture will join together to discuss common concerns of Valley residents, and to plan for unified action on various fronts.

Registration for this event, sponsored by the Moorhead and Winnipeg based Red River Valley heritage soceity (RRVHS) will begin at 8:45 a.m. with the program from 9:15 until 2 p.m.

RRVHS is sponsoring this event in cooperation with the Red River Valley winter shows seminar series because they believe divisiveness caused by state and international boundaries dividing the Valley are creating problems that must be addressed from a Valley-wide perspective.

"Inconsistencies Valley residents must face are becoming more and more absurd," Gary Phillips, RRVHS director said. "Whether it is tuition reciprocity, economic deviation between Minnesota, North Dakota and Manitoba, or flood control, the point is plainly apparent that we who live in the Valley lack a strong, unified voice loud enough to make ourselves heard in St. Paul, Bismarck and Winnipeg. This conference is the first step to find a remedy. We strongly urge broad citizen participation in the process."

Other speakers include Dr. Robert P. Wilkins, University of North Dakota, speaking about the historical perspective of Valley unity; David Clark Harrison, a water management specialist connected with the Hubert Humphrey institute of public affairs, and Al Mackling, Manitoba minister of natural resources.

Open-mike session will gather input from people who attend. Conference participants are expected from all around the Valley, Lake Traverse to Lake Winnipeg.

Local Students Accepted For AVTI Programs

According to information received from the admissions office of the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute, Kathryn Dusek and Paul Omdahl have been accepted for admission.

Paul is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Omdahl, Thief River Falls and is enrolling in the welding program. Kathryn is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Dusek, also of this city and will start in the medical secretarial program in August.

Both will graduate from Lincoln high school this spring.

Jobs Creation Subcommittee To Meet Here

State Representative Wally Sparby, District 1B, announced that the House subcommittee on jobs creation and unemployment issues has accepted his invitation to hold a hearing in Thief River Falls. The subcommittee members will hear testimony on Saturday, February 26, from 10 a.m. to noon in the meeting room of the Thief River Falls city auditorium.

After two earlier hearings at the Capitol, members of the subcommittee, on which Sparby serves, want to hear first hand from unemployed persons and representatives of businesses, unions and social agencies.

"Our subcommittee is considering legislation to provide job creation and unemployment relief, so we want to hear from people in northwestern Minnesota and the Iron Range," Rep. Sparby said.

The subcommittee is holding hearings on Friday, February 25 in Virginia and Bemidji. Anyone who would like to testify at the hearing should contact Sparby by mail at his legislative office, Room 263 State Office Building, St. Paul 55155 or call (612) 296-9918.

Coffee Day On Friday To Aid Special Camp

This Friday will be "Coffee Day" in Thief River Falls when participating restaurants and coffee shops will serve free coffee to purchasers of $1 buttons supporting Camp Confidence, the year-around camp for mentally retarded.

Thief River Falls Jaycee Women are supervising the project with local participation by the Rex Cafe, Carol's cafe, Woolworth's and Country Kitchen. Purchasers of the $1 button can drink all the coffee they want at any of the participating restaurants all day Friday.

Last year Camp Confidence had 2,300 campers use it facilities on Lake Sylvan. The camp has 140 acres of land and a half-mile of lakeshore and no camper fees are charged. Support of the non-profit camp comes from a celebrity golf tournament in July, a telethon in August and Coffee Day in February.

Local project chairman for the Jaycee Women is Margaret Peterson.

Don Myrold Is Honored With Memorial Fund

Memorial fund has been established by the Red River Valley heritage soceity, to perpetuate the memory of Don Myrold, who died unexpectedly January 20.

Myrold was the founder of the 19-year-old heritage organization, and was actively involved in a leadership capacity in many other valley organizations throughout his lifetime.

Clifford Deeton RRVHS president, said, "Don Myrold was a man who gave unselfishly of himself throughout his entire lifetime. His contribution to the heritage of this valley is something that should be acknowledged and honored. Establishment of the fund and its wise use by the RRVHS board of directors will insure that the Valley community spirit that Myrold promoted will continue after his death."

Most Men Have Complied With Draft Registry

Almost 9.3 million men (9,266,000) nationwide, had registered with the selective service system as of the first week of January, according to statistics released by the region III selective service office at Great Lakes, IL.

Overall compliance rate for the nation currently stands at 94.3 per cent, with an estimated 564,000 men remaining as non-registrants. Number of potential registrants is estimated at 9,830,000, based on figures provided by the census bureau and factored to reflect military accessions and institutionalized males.

By year of birth an estimated 97 per cent of men born in 1960 had registered with selective service, with a slightly higher percentage rate for men born in 1961, at 99 per cent. Men born in 1962 and 1963 showed a 95 per cent registration rate, while those born in 1964 showed a low of 84 per cent.

Law requires that within 30 days of his 18th birthday, a man must go to the post office and fill out a form which asks only for his name, address, telephone number, social security number and date of birth. Registration does not prejudice a man's right to claim exemption from military service if Congress were to order selective service to classify and draft people in an emergency.

According to the latest state registration figures, Minnesota ranks third in the nation with a compliance rate of 96.87 per cent. As of the end of November, a total of 181,171 registrations had been recorded, from an estimated potential number of 187,019. Registrants included 698 from Pennington county, 682 from Marshall county, 314 from Red Lake county, 1,737 from Polk county, 593 from Roseau county, 180 from Lake of the Woods county, 473 from Clearwater county, and 1,332 from Beltrami county.

"HAVE YOU HEARD ABOUT THE FEDERAL SCHEME TO WITHHOLD 10% OF YOUR INTEREST INCOME FOR TAXES?"

It's going to happen and we think it's going to cost you a bundle!

Beginning in 1983, a new law requires withholding 10% of the taxable interest and dividends you receive from savings and loans, banks, credit unions, money market and other mutual funds, corporate stocks and bonds, and government obligations (including "E" bonds.)

Wait, there's more!

There will also be withholding from pension, profit sharing, annuity contracts, other deferred compensation plans and Individual Retirement Account disbursements (unless you take the time to request otherwise.)

Sure, some folks who meet specific age and income guidelines can receive exclusions from this law, but only if the proper forms are completed for each and every payer. In completing each form you will divulge information about your age and income you never had to give out before!

Plus, you'll lose the effective compounding of the withheld interest. And, the added costs to the financial industry for administrating the plan will ultimately be passed on to the public.

In effect, this new law gives the federal government an interest-free loan with your money!

Makes you wonder...whatever happened to saving incentives?

We think Congress should take another look at this withholding plan.

If you agree...if you don't want your interest income reduced by this 10% plan, write your Senators and Congressman. Let them know how you feel. That this plan should be repealed.

Call us today. We'll tell you where to write.

What To Grow Meet To Help Area Farmers

Thief River Falls area farmers are reminded of the "What To Grow" meeting scheduled for Thursday at 1:15 p.m. in the meeting room of the city auditorium.

A significant number of farmers apparently have yet to make their final decision on participation and sign up in the farm program, reports Phil Bergland, Pennington county ASCS executive director. The meeting is designed to assist them in making a good decision on this matter, according to Terry Courneya, county extension director.

Work sheets and computer analysis of the impact that various levels of participation would have on net income have been developed, Courneya said. These aids in decision-making can greatly increase the accuracy of farm planning for 1983, he indicated. The best decision may be quite different for individual farms and must be analyzed that way.

Example farms show that as much as 50 cents per bushel increase in price realized for wheat can result from some levels of participation in the PIK program.

County Accepts Fuel And Gas Bids Tuesday

Pennington county commissioners accepted discount bids on gasoline, diesel and heating fuel but rejected bids on oil at the regular meeting Tuesday in the board room of the county courthouse in Thief River Falls.

Shumway Oil company received the bid for diesel and heating fuel, bidding a discount of 10 cents per gallon on No. 1 diesel and No. 1 heating fuel and 11 cents per gallon on No. 2 diesel fuel and No. 2 heating fuel. Farmers Union Oil company received the bid for regular and unleaded gasoline at six cents per gallon discount.

The board set a $50 annual license fee for dealers in previous metals and gave final approval to overlay work by Anderson Construction company on SAR 3 and SAR 24.

County engineer Wes Gjovik presented the bridge replacement plan for 1983 which indicates that four county bridges and seven township bridges will be replaced during the summer construction season, primarily with state aid funding.

The engineer also worked with the board to set up a sale of lots one through five in Mavie township. The lots were formerly the site of county highway department buildings but are no longer considered to be needed by the county. Bids on the property will be opened March 22.

A number of applications have been received from persons interested in the county highway engineer position which has been vacated by Gjovik's recent resignation. The applications are being screened with a committee to select a number of applicants for further consideration.

The board also continues in negotiation with county employees covered under union contract with expectations that an agreement may be reached soon.

TROPHY WINNERS at the Minnesota DECA (Distributive Education Clubs of America) competition conducted at Duluth recently included Rebecca Messreni (left) of Oklee and Sharon Woinarowicz of Red Lake Falls, both students in the marketing class at the Thief River Falls AVTI. Competition was conducted in conjunction with the annual DECA conference. Mrs. Messreni earned four trophies, including third in management decision making, second in written management problem, second in written competency and second in the fashion merchandising marathon program. She will represent Minnesota in the fashion merchandising series at the national competition in Houston, TX, in April. Mrs. Woinarowicz earned her third place trophy in employment application. Eighteen students from Thief River Falls participated in the conference along with approximately 900 students from throughout Minnesota. Instructor in the marketing program is Dorothy Dodds.

School Board Again Reviews Budget Cuts

Meeting is special session at 7 a.m. Tuesday, the School District 564 board of education discussed governance proposals for the area vocational-technical institute and the impending cuts in school district budget for 1983-84.

Supt. Robert Block presented a list of items which he suggested the board consider for reinstatement in the 1983-84 operations if the district receives the full $1,475 per pupil unit and all categorical aids from the state of Minnesota.

He also informed the board that potential cuts through reduction in legal services and operating the school system on a four-day week did not appear to be practical for the coming year.

The board will meet in regular session Monday at 8 p.m. in the school district service center.

Reunion Group To Meet Thurs.

The 1973 class reunion committee will meet at the Elks club at 9:45 p.m. Thursday to make final decisions on the reunion activities.

Council Settles Salary Contracts

Thief River Falls city council approved settlement of labor contracts with Teamsters Local 320 and non-union city employees, accepted resignations of two chairmen and heard a report on the community band during their regular meeting held in council chambers at city auditorium last night.

Employee contract settlement which was reached by the negotiation committee for 1983, is essentially the same as the 1982 contract, with two notable exceptions. Although employees received no raise in pay this year, an amount of $300 will be set aside in a special fund for each full-time Teamster and non-union employee. Money will be used to pay the employee's monthly share of their family medical health insurance plan, and to reimburse the employee for any medical or dental related bills submitted prior to June 1 or December 1. Any part of the $300 that remains after December 1 will be added to longevity checks issued about December 15.

Other change allowed employees two days of personal leave, which would be taken from accumulated sick leave, subject to approval of employee's supervisor.

City currently pays 90 per cent of employees medical health insurance premiums which are $166.73 for the family policy and $52.33 for the individual policy. Alderman Bill Penning noted that in a round-about way, what the city was doing, was paying 100 per cent of the insurance, with an additional $100 set aside to be paid to the employee at the end of the year, if they didn't have medical or dental bills. City Attorney Bob Wurst noted that this was becoming a common way of allowing employees some tax sheltered income.

Council voted to accept the recommendation of the negotiating committee, which has been accepted by the Teamsters union employees. Mayor Bob Carlson congratulated committee members, Ambrose Wysoski, Clayton Restad and Jerry Wigness on having done a good job of negotiating for the city. New contract becomes effective March 1, and remains in effect for the remainder of 1983.

Contract negotiations with the Police Federation have still not been resolved for 1983.

Report on activities of the community band was presented by Treasurer Ormond Johnson and Director Les Torgerson. Johnson reported that last year's spring tour had cost approximately $2,214, with additional costs for music and instruments of $1,200. Band was funded jointly by the city and Northland community college, with the city contributing approximately $1,730 to the operation.

Torgerson reported that this year the band is planning on using a charter bus to make a tour to Minneapolis for participation in a community band festival. Costs for the tour were estimated at $2,520, with $1,000 for transportation; $700 for lodging; and $820 for meals.

Johnson and Torgerson requested that the city con-

Co. Attorney To Investigate RIC Situation

A new dimension in the situation surrounding the resignation of Darrell Peterson of Thief River Falls as director of the Northwest Regional Inter-District council (RIC) was added Monday evening with the entry of the Marshall county attorney's office into the picture.

Marshall county attorney Harold Myhre of Warren and assistant county attorney Mike Williams attended the meeting of the RIC board Monday evening at the Marshall County Central elementary school in Newfolden. Offices of the RIC organization, which provides specialized services to member school districts on a cooperative basis, are located in the Newfolden elementary school building.

Myhre told the Times that he discussed with the board "the possibility that further investigation should be done." He said that his office was alerted to the situation by newspaper articles regarding the RIC board's intention to bill Peterson for $3,832 in RIC funds alleged to have been spent for Peterson's personal use, and $2,006 for an advance over-payment on his salary.

The articles indicated the board had not made a decision as to whether any legal action would be taken against the former director. That statement prompted him and assistant Williams to discuss the matter, Myhre said, and resulted in their decision to meet with the RIC board. "These are public funds involved," Myhre said, "and we wanted the board to be aware of the possible consequences of their decisions."

Supt. R. Gene Busch of the Marshall County Central school district, who has been acting as manager of the RIC office since Peterson's resignation, said that the board had accepted a check for $5,838 from Peterson on Monday evening. That was the amount the board agreed to bill Peterson for at its January meeting.

Following discussion with Myhre and Williams, the RIC board adopted a resolution — requested by the county attorney's office — to give the county attorney or his representatives permission to examine and copy records of the organization and to visit with the council's auditing firm. The Holcomb & Knudson auditing firm of Thief River Falls, which regularly conducts the RIC annual audit, had also been employed by the board to conduct the special audit following Peterson's resignation November 8, 1982.

The RIC board's action to bill Peterson for the $5,808 payable by February 11 followed acceptance of the auditors' final report presented at the January meeting. The amount was $205 more than noted in the auditors' preliminary report presented to the RIC board in November.

Attorney Myhre said his office is now investigating the circumstances to see if there appears to be grounds to bring legal charges against Peterson. "We will be working on it," Myhre said, "and I would expect we should have a good idea of what course of action to follow in a couple of weeks."

Sue Olson Sets MCC Basketball Scoring Record

KEEPING SCRAPBOOKS with newspaper clippings from her high school athletic career is an activity which Sue Olson tries to do but has difficulty keeping on a current basis. Her seven-year-old sister Kristie helps with some clipping while Sue arranges some of the items. Sue recently set the all-time basketball scoring mark at Marshall County Central high school in Newfolden with 1,322 points, has been all-conference selection several times in both basketball and volleyball, won a number of team awards including most valuable player and has participated twice in the shot put event at the state girls' track and field competition. Since eighth grade she has played in 92 consecutive basketball games, starting in all but seven as an eighth grader, averaged 14.4 points a game and never had a game in which she didn't score at least one point. In the last three years she has scored in double figures in 57 out of 62 games and had eight points in four of the other five games.

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Marshall County central high school's all-time basketball scoring leader is a five-foot, eight inch blonde from northeast of Holt whose style of play epitomizes the words effort and consistency. Sue Olson scored 13 points Monday night against Greenbush in the final regular season game of the year to bring her career point total to 1,322. . . and she still has tournament games remaining.

Olson entered last night's game with 1,309 points — a dead-even tie with Mike Fincher who set the scoring mark as a senior in 1977. She scored two field goals and nine free throws — including a rare four-for-four in converting a shooting foul and two-shot technical on the Greenbush coach — in establishing the new scoring mark. Her team won handily 53-40.

"We're going to miss her next year," stated five-year coach Tom Mjelde in a massive case of understatement. During his tenure Olson has advanced from a rugged eighth grader who jumped from the "C" team to the varsity near tournament time of an 11-11 season to be the mainstay of teams which have compiled a 71-14 won-lost record through the past four seasons.

In 92 games with the Nordics through the past five years she has never missed a game, avoiding illness or injury, and has never failed to score at least one point. She averages 14.4 points per game for her career; 18.8 through 18 tinue consideration of a city band budget of $1,500 for the 1983 season, and were informed that the money had already been budgeted for that purpose. Programs distributed by the band on its tours, are used to promote both the city and the college.

AGGRESSIVE PLAY is an every game trademark for Sue Olson of Marshall County Central high school's girls' basketball team, shown above challenging 6'1" Mary Sovde (24) of the Greenbush Tigers. Olson was held to only four points from the field in the Monday night final to the 1982-83 regular season, but cashed in on nine free throws for a 13-point performance. On this play she drew a two-shot foul.

Resignation of Alderman Bill Penning as chairman of the utilities committee, which was offered at last council meeting following a dispute over bids on the water treatment project, was formally accepted by the council last night. Mayor Carlson appointed Alderman Wysoski to chair the committee, and the appointment was accepted by council. Penning has asked to remain on that committee in a non-supervisory position.

Resignation of Al Christofferson as chairman of the planning commission was also accepted by council. Richard Sjoberg was appointed to fill his position. Contacted by telephone this morning, Christofferson declined to comment on his resignation, stating that reasons were personal.

In other business, council discussed status of the old Carnegie Library building. Hearing will be held at 7 p.m. March 10, at Fort Snelling, on whether the building should be declared a national historic site. Mayor Carlson reported that meetings had been held with the Pennington county commissioners regarding possible expansion of county offices into the building. Further meetings are planned to discuss costs of renovation of the building and further research is needed to determine if declaration as a historic site would hamper efforts to make the building more fuel efficient. Council moved to ask the historical society to table the matter until further discussion could be held. Alderman Penning offered his opinion that the building was a "monstrosity," and should be torn down, noting that people had a lot of ideas for uses of the library until they saw the costs involved.

Jean Schaefer, teacher of a nursery school which operates in the building asked that the council would keep their needs in mind as they considered the fate of the building.

In other business, the council:

— Approved a request from Renae Erickson for free use of the auditorium for the annual 4-H carnival on March 18;

— Passed a resolution favoring naming of the Northwest Regional Development commission, as a delivery point for funds under the job training partnership act. Under a concept currently being considered by state government, areas with a population base of 20,000 would be required for delivery of funds. This was not felt to be practical, as it would likely remove funding centers to large cities;

— Authorized the state to conduct regular six-year-cycle traffic counts in the city. Engineer David Kildahl noted that 80 locations had been selected in the city for traffic counts, with the state to do all the work. City will be charged $12 per count, for a bill of $960. Information from the counts can be used in planning, maintenance and improvements to streets.

— Heard that policy changes regarding over and under charging for utilities, and hook-up fees for water and sewer were still in committee;

— Heard that the regional League of Minnesota Cities meeting was scheduled to be held in Thief River Falls on September 8;

— Were informed that the Thief River Falls amateur hockey association had paid the city $5,023.99 as its share of arena concessions for 1981-82.

— Passed a resolution in opposition to a bill in the state legislature, which would require the county attorney to prosecute all criminal cases within his jurisdiction. Recommendations of Police Chief Ken Froschheiser and City Attorney Bob Wurst, noted that it could likely cost the city more money, since they might lose revenues from fines now being collected.

— Approved payment of regular and special bills of $21,944.76 and $3,592.49 from Black and Veatch for engineering work on the water treatment plant project; and $577.80 from Stewart and Walker Inc., for work on handicapped access to the crash fire and rescue building at the airport.

Graz Orchestra Rates High In Critic's Eyes

by Hilary Stoltman

It's been a long time since I've heard music arranged as well as that performed by the Graz Chamber Orchestra during its concert at the Lincoln high school auditorium last Tuesday night.

I'm sure members of the Thief River Falls concert association who attended all felt the same appreciation. One can usually sense the way the audience feels about a concert by looking at their faces as they are leaving the concert hall. If everyone seems radiant, you know the concert was enjoyed, and that appeared to be the reaction Tuesday.

The orchestra opened its program with "Eight Pieces for String Orchestra" by Paul Hindemith, "Concerto in D Minor for Violin, Guitar and Strings" by Antonio Vivaldi, and "Divertimento in E-Flat Major" by Joseph Haydn.

Following intermission the group showed its versatility by playing "Grave and Fandango for Guitar and Strings" by Luigi Boccerini, "Adagio for String Orchestra" by Samuel Barber, "Rhapsody Op. 49 for Violin and String Orchestra" by Jeno Takacs, "Two Mazurkas" by Joseph Lanner, "Annen Polka" by Johan Strauss and "Galopp 'Jager's Lust' " by Joseph Lanner.

The orchestra opened with a very poised and almost cool beginning, but after commentator Uli Messerschmidt (who also played double bass) began speaking with the audience a much warmer rapport developed with the audience. Messerschmidt explained that the women in the orchestra wore red flowers in their hair because it was the day before Lent, and that was a festive holiday in Austria similar to Halloween in the United States.

Guitar soloist Marge Bauml played very precisely and with feeling, with the effect of strings in the background being very pleasing. Walter Klasinc did an exceptional job of directing and playing violin at the same time. Violinists observing him closely would have noted his bow arm more highly arched than usual and that he uses his legs and head as well as his arm in putting emphasis in his playing.

In my opinion the star of the concert was the young violin soloist Ernst Finder. If one closed his eyes, listened to the music and attempted to visualize a stereotype of a violinist, he would open them to find the picture personified in Ernst Finder. . . tall, slender with a full head of dark, tousled hair and long, sensitive fingers.

Aside from the appearance, Finder's performance was outstanding as he drew rich, full sound from the instrument he played — perhaps better sound than from conductor Klasinc's violin. Applying a carpenter's square to the strings of Finder's violin would have been no truer than the draw of his bow. In playing violin, the bow hand controls good sound more than the fingering hand.

A standing ovation was given to the orchestra which responded with an encore that was much appreciated. In all, it was an enjoyable evening well spent.

Farm Earnings Low From Cost-Price Squeeze

Mainly because of a continuing cost-price squeeze, many farmers in Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana, and northwestern Wisconsin again faced reduced earnings and related debt repayment difficulties in the fourth quarter of 1982, and they are not likely to fare much better in the first quarter of 1983, according to rural bankers surveyed in December by the Federal Reserve bank of Minneapolis.

Bankers throughout most of the surveyed area reported that the year-end earnings of farmers in their areas did not match those of a year earlier. About 80 per cent of the bankers responding to the Fed's agricultural credit conditions survey said that net farm earnings in their areas were lower in the fourth quarter of 1982 than in the fourth quarter of 1981.

These reduced earnings are especially noteworthy because this is the eighth consecutive quarter in which more than 60 per cent of the bankers have reported that net farm earnings in their areas were lower than in the same quarter of the previous year. Farm earnings reported lower than a year ago at the end of 1982, therefore, were actually at a very low level, since they were being compared to an already reduced level.

In the fourth quarter survey, as in several previous surveys, many bankers indicated that farm earnings fell below year-earlier levels because output prices failed to keep pace with input prices. Almost two-thirds of the bankers responding to the Fed's survey point to falling or stagnant prices for farm products, especially grains, cattle, and milk, as the main reason for reduced farm earnings. Many bankers also mentioned that the cost of farm inputs rose.

Figures from the U.S. department of agriculture (USDA) confirm these bankers' impressions that area farmers were caught in a cost-price squeeze. According to the USDA, the overall index of prices received by all U.S. farmers for their products was almost unchanged between December 1981 and December 1982 (the index fell less than one per cent). This was because the prices of most farm products were stagnant or falling during this period: for example, the index of crop prices U.S. farmers received fell five per cent while the cattle and milk prices they received were almost unchanged. At the same time, the index of prices paid by U.S. farmers rose over three per cent.

Few bankers did report that some farmers in their areas had higher earnings in the fourth quarter of 1982 than a year ago. These bankers said that a rise in hog prices enabled many hog producers to increase their fourth quarter earnings over those they received a year earlier. (Hog prices, which rose 37 per cent between December 1981 and December 1982, according to the USDA, were a striking exception to the generally stagnant or falling prices for farm products.) Bankers also said that sugar beet growers and some grain farmers who were eligible for the government's grain reserve program had higher earnings than in the fourth quarter of 1981. Nonetheless, these bright spots were too few to dispel the overall gloomy picture of reduced farm earnings throughout the area.

According to the bankers, area farmers had problems repaying their debt in the fourth quarter, largely because of these reduced earnings. Seventy-four per cent of the bankers said that farmers in their areas were repaying debt at a slower rate than normal in the fourth quarter. In addition, 78 per cent of the bankers reported that more farmers than normal wanted to extend or refinance old loans. Majority of the bankers commenting on the main factors which affected the demand for farm credit in their areas attributed the slow repayment of debt and the strong demand for refinancing to reduced farm earnings.

Like the reduced farm earnings, debt repayment problems are not new to the area. This is the fifth straight quarter that at least 60 per cent of the bankers reported slower than normal repayment of debt and greater than normal demand for refinancing. In fact, the percentage of bankers reporting each of these in December has changed very little from a year ago.

If the bankers in the Fed's survey are correct, the financial situation of area farmers will not improve during the first quarter of 1983. Most bankers expect that net farm earnings will again fall short of their year-earlier level in the first quarter. Mainly for this reason, the bankers do not foresee an immediate easing of the farmers' debt repayment problems. Almost as many bankers (74 per cent) expect that farmers' demand for debt refinancing will be above normal next quarter as reported it that great this quarter (78 per cent). Over 40 per cent of the bankers think that the farmers' ability to repay debt will actually worsen next quarter.

Although the bankers' forecast is generally pessimistic, they do foresee lower interest rates for short-term ag loans in the first quarter. By December 1982, these rates had already fallen more than two per centage points since March 1982, and most bankers expect them to fall further by March 1983.

COSMETOLOGY WORKSHOP conducted Monday at the Thief River Falls AVTI cafeteria was attended by 85 cosmetologists from throughout the area. Presenting the program was Rita Ambourn who operates her own shop in St. Paul, has traveled throughout the world to study her profession, holds 93 trophies in cosmetology competition, teaches for major companies and is an activie member of the prestigious Intercoiffure where women comprise only seven per cent of the membership. Parcel Mailing Simplified By Postal Service

United States Postal service will put simplified parcel mailing regulations into effect February 27.

Under the new regulations, parcels weighing 70 pounds or less and measuring not more than 108 inches in length and girth combined can be mailed from any post office to any destination within the United States. These standards apply regardless of whether the package is shipped by express mail, priority mail, parcel post or another fourth-class service.

Exceptions to these size and weight limitations are for space available mail (SAM), parcel airlift mail (PAL), parcels to certain APO-FPO addresses and for mail sent via the department of state to United States government personnel abroad.

Governors of the postal service voted to adopt the new regulations at their February 1 meeting in San Francisco, CA.

Gerda Johnson Rites Held At Middle River

Funeral services for Mrs. Gerda Johnson, 84, of Middle River, were held today (Wednesday) at 2:00 p.m., at the First Lutheran church in that city. Mrs. Johnson died Sunday morning at the Karlstad Memorial Nursing center, where she had been a resident for the past two years.

Rev. Donald Fredine officiated at the services. Organist and soloists was Mrs. Danny Geer. Interment will be in the church cemetery with the Collins Funeral home, Middle River, in charge of arrangements.

Serving as honorary pallbearers were members of the American Legion auxiliary.

Active Pallbearers were Herman Berg, Tim Johnson, Boyd Johnson, Matthew Berg, Joe Biskup and Arvid Matero.

Mrs. Johnson, the former Gerda Elveria Swanson, was born Nov. 8, 1898 at East Grand Forks to Lewis and Ericka Swanson. She attended school and grew to womanhood in East Grand Forks.

On Nov. 14, 1924, she was married at East Grand Forks to Ole Johnson. After their marriage, the couple lived for two years in Polk county before moving to Middle River, where they settled on a farm in Como township, Marshall county. In 1942, they moved into Middle River, where she lived until becoming a resident of the nursing center at Karlstad.

While living in Middle River, Mrs. Johnson worked for many years at the Middle River Record. She was a member of the First Lutheran church and Ladies aid and was a Life member of the American Legion auxiliary of Middle River.

She is survived by two borthers: Gunder and Ted Swanson, both of Grand Forks, N.D.; four sisters: Mrs. Ruth Anderson, Karlstad; Mrs. Irvin (Esther) Clemitson, Graettinger, Iowa; Mrs. Ella Koznek, San Louis Obisbo, Calif.; and Mrs. Olga Abrams, Ft. Bragg, Calif.; and several nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by her husband, who died in October of 1960; a son, one daughter, her parents and five brothers.

Proposed Regulations For Ontario Explained

(Editor's Note: Hon. Alan W. Pope, minister of natural resources for the province of Ontario, outlined his proposals for changes in that provinces hunting and fishing regulations in an open letter published in the Atikokan, Ontario, "Progress", dated Feb. 9, 1983. Because of the wide interest in the subject by many sportsmen in this area, the letter is printed below in its entirety.)

As you may know, I recently announced a program for the recreational use of Crown land by non-residents of our province. I wish to take this opportunity to outline some details of this program, and the reasons for it.

First, I should stress that the Ministry of Natural Resources will always welcome the recreational use of our province by non-residents. This is something that is foremost in our minds as we make decisions regarding policies for our resources.

However, we must also make decisions that will increase the economic benefits to our province. This will enhance and strengthen the tourist industry of Northern Ontario, boosting the economies of many local communities including many single-industry resource communities.

I also believe our new program will help to provide better recreational opportunities for non-resident visitors to our Crown land, especially important in areas where there is heavy pressure on fish and game resources.

The highlights of the program are as follows:

+ All non-residents participating in hunting and angling in Northern Ontario will be encouraged to have a base of operations in the province.

+ All non-residents camping on Crown land will be required to pay a user fee. While the exact fee has not yet been determined, it will be close to that charged at commercial campgrounds and provincial parks.

+ In certain areas of heavy use, Crown lands may be zoned to restrict camping.

+ Selected sites will be leased to the private sector to be managed as campsites and made available for public use at market prices.

+ With limited exceptions, non-resident moose hunters must hunt from a licensed tourist outfitter's establishment.

+ Non-residents hunting deer and black bear will be permitted only from an Ontario commercial accommodation or outfitting facility or from a Crown land base authorized under a land use permit. Non-residents or immediate family members of non-residents who own private property in Ontario will be allowed to hunt deer and black bear if they use their property as a base of operations. Non-residents would also be allowed to use the home or cottage of a direct relative who is an Ontario resident as a base of operations.

+ Non-residents may hunt waterfowl and small game from any Ontario base of accommodation including a Crown land site.

+ The non-resident seasonal angling license will be rescinded and replaced with a 21-day renewable license. The existing four-day license will remain.

+ Non-residents will be required to purchase specific stamps or licenses for muskellunge and lake trout fishing.

We will begin implementing this program this coming fall in an area of northwestern Ontario covering the MNR administrative districts of Fort Frances, Atikokan, Ignace, Dryden, Red Lake, Kenora and Sioux Lookout.

The pilot area will be the testing ground for all elements of the program, although those affecting non-resident angling licenses, species specific licenses and non-resident moose hunters will apply across the province.

At the moment, we propose to implement the proposals affecting non-resident hunters this fall. The proposals affecting non-resident angling will be introduced in January of 1984, as will those applying to non-residents camping on Crown land.

The elements of the program with respect to privatization of camping sites and zoning of areas to restrict non-resident camping will be phased in gradually, beginning this spring.

We planned this implementation schedule carefully to ensure that the public is well informed as the program develops. This gradual phasing in also allows us to deal with any problems that may arise.

Through the implementation and in the early stages of the program, my staff will work closely with members of the Ontario tourist industry — the chambers of commerce, the Northern Ontario Tourist Outfitters Association, the Federation of Anglers and Hunters and other concerned citizens.

We are also working closely with residents of areas bordering on Ontario. My staff will meet with these non-resident users to discuss how to best implement the program to meet our objectives while ensuring their enjoyment and use of Ontario resources is not dimished.

I am pleased to report that discussions have already taken place between ministry staff and tourist operators from the State of Minnesota, and similar plans are under way to meet with Manitoba residents who may be affected.

I am confident that this proposal will contribute to a continuing healthy and properous tourist industry while allowing the Ministry of Natural Resources to better manage the natural resources so valuable to the Province of Ontario.

RSVP Provides Reassurance To People Alone

In Crookston, nearly a decade ago, someone had the idea that a person living alone could become very sick, or die, and nobody would know. People with similar concerns got together and formed the "telephone reassurance" plan. Somebody would call each member every day to learn if he or she was all right. If there was no answer, a neighbor or authorities were called. Over the years some serious problems have been avoided by the phone calls.

The program has retained the same name, but it has grown dramatically. Members of the retired senior volunteer program (RSVP) are making the calls in nine towns in three counties. There are 71 callers and at least 100 recipients of calls, with headquarters at the RSVP office on the University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC) campus, according to Harl Gamber, director.

The program has also expanded in scope. Instead of simply making calls to be sure that the person is alive and well, callers now take time for a little conversation or a friendly visit with someone who may have no other social contact. Special emphasis is placed on longer conversations with people who are depressed or lonely.

There is no charge for this service. Persons interested in telephone reassurance may call UMC at (218) 281-6510 and ask for extension 339.

VA Reports $14 Million In Dividends

More than 84,000 Minnesota veterans who kept their GI life insurance policies in force will share a record $14-million in dividends in 1983, the Veterans administration announced recently.

No application for the annual dividend is necessary, according to Morris Nooner Jr., director of the VA regional office and insurance center at Fort Snelling. He said each policyholder will receive the dividend automatically on the month of the anniversary date of the individual policy.

Nooner said the record high dividend was made possible because of lower than expected death rates among policyholders, as well as improved interest earnings on the insurance funds' investments.

Average amount to be paid to 1,379 World War I veterans in Minnesota with current policies is $256. He also announced that these United States government life insurance (USGLI) policyholders are no longer required to pay premiums for their coverage. VA determined that current reserves in the USGLI fund were adequate to meet future liabilities of the program.

Total 67,791 World War II veterans in the state will receive an average payment of $199 on their active policies. Korean conflict veterans who kept their GI insurance in force — a total 11,641 in Minnesota — will receive an average payment of $74.

Disabled veterans who have a special type of GI insurance will also receive increased dividends. This year the 3,499 holders of these special policies in Minnesota will receive an average of $102 each.

Nooner said the $14 million dividend payout in the state is part of a national record of more than $673 million in 1983 dividends to over 3.7 million veterans whose policies are still in force. He said payments will be made in the manner previously selected by the policyholder. Choices range from cash to the purchase of paid-up insurance.

Bargaining Halt Opposed By MFT Members

Minnesota federation of teachers strongly opposes the recommendation made by the Minnesota association of school administrators (MASA) that the 1983-85 biennium be a non-negotiation year for collective bargaining units in public schools in Minnesota.

While recognizing the difficult financial circumstances of school districts throughout the state, the MFT believes collective bargaining encompasses much more than salary negotiations. It can virtually affect the working conditions and rules within which teachers in individual school districts operate.

Seniority rights, personnel practices, health and safety regulations and many other benefits are negotiated through the process of collective bargaining. "This is the only obligatory time when school administrators must deal with their employees regarding these issues during an entire two-year period," stated Dr. Edward Bolstad, executive director of MFT.

"We believe the time and money spent on the negotiations process is an important investment in the future of our public schools, not a waste of time and dollars," continued Bolstad. "Teachers are not naive; we understand the current financial restrictions but we believe the many other benefits and rights of teachers must be safeguarded and improved."

MFT has long been an advocate of responsible negotiations and collective bargaining at the local school district level. "We will not be sympathetic to recommendations or legislation that would take away these well deserved benefits," said Dr. Edward Bolstad. "We worked for many years to achieve passage of the Minnesota Public Employees Labor Relations Act (PELRA) which is nationally recognized as one of the best collective bargaining laws in the country," continued Bolstad, "and we don't want to see its effectiveness weakened."

Sunflower Oil Content Tested On As Is Basis

National Sunflower association reports that a change in determining oil content of sunflowers has taken place. In January several of the exporters changed their buying practices of sunflower to an 'as is' or dirty basis. The exporters claim that European importers of sunflower seed determine the oil content on an 'as is' basis and that exposes the exporters to additional risks, especially in a year such as 1982 when oil yields are down and dockage was high.

According to Paul Haroldson, chairman of the grades and standards committee for the National Sunflower association, "oil has been determined on a clean seed basis for many years in this country, while the Europeans have always determined oil on an 'as is' basis. Sunflower industry standards state that oil will be determined on a clean seed basis. These internal or self-policing standards have worked fine until this year. Apparently exporters were able to cover their risks in other years and it seems most unfortunate that the trading rules would change now."

Paul Haroldson, who is a farmer from the Bowbells, N.D., area stated "the situation is very confusing since most of the domestic crushers are buying on a clean seed basis. Elevators are caught in the middle as are laboratories determining oil content.

"That confusion adds to frustration and we just don't need that. The exporters say that prices for seed will balance the difference in oil content but it is apparent that farmers are being forced to bear the risk that exporters are not willing to accept," Haroldson said.

Haroldson said the NSA believes that standardization is necessary. "The NSA has opposed this change to an 'as is' basis as has the North Dakota grain dealers association," he said. "But there is not a lot that can be done except to point to the past and point out the dangers this change can have to the industry."

A number of meetings on this issue have taken place and much opposition has been formed to this change. Another meeting will be held in the near future and the grades and standards committee will have to determine if federal standards are necessary. "We need to have one consistant standard despite the vagaries of the weather and crop condition. If federal grades and standards will provide that consistency, then I would assume the NSA board will go in that direction", Haroldson speculated.

Gift To Help Study Build-Up In Atmosphere

Study of the effects of carbon dioxide and other gas buildup in Earth's atmosphere has received a $37,000 boost from a gift to the University of Minnesota Hubert H. Humphrey institute of public affairs.

New York-based HEM charitable trust of the Joyce Mertz-Gilmore foundation has awarded the gift to the institute-sponsored Global environmental policy project.

"We strongly support this project because its primary focus is on the likely social, as well as environmental, consequences of the greenhouse effect," said Robert W. Gilmore, president of the Joyce Mertz-Gilmore foundation.

Several activities of industrial nations result in the release into the atmosphere of so-called greenhouse gases, said Dean Abrahamson, project director. These are gases that absorb infrared radiation, trapping heat in the lower atmosphere in a manner similar to the way in which glass in a greenhouse traps heat. Carbon dioxide, the most important of the greenhouse gases, is produced during the combustion of fossil fuels such as coal. Methane, another greenhouse gas, is associated with nitrogenous fertilizers and spray can aerosols.

There is now virtual consensus within the involved scientific community that the consequences of atmospheric buildup of these gases will be global warming accompanied by major changes in rainfall patterns, Abrahamson said. These changes will be evident within the near future should present trends continue, he said.

During the coming year the project will focus on the potential impacts of the greenhouse effect on agricultural production and surface and subsurface water. Studies will be conducted in cooperation with other university departments.

Abrahamson received his Ph.D. and M.D. degrees from the University of Minnesota. He is a member of the university's graduate faculties in public affairs, geology and biophysics and is director of the institute's M.A. program.

In April 1981, under the auspices of the institute, Abrahamson convened an international conference on carbon dioxide and climate change. That conference helped set the current focus for the Global environmental policy project.

In recent years Abrahamson has served as a consultant on nuclear energy to Minnesota's attorney general, the United States nuclear regulatory commission and the Swedish ministry of energy. In May 1982 he was one of four United States resource specialists invited to advise a special session of the United Nations environment program in Nairobi, Kenya.

Is Recovery As Good As It Appears?

Recovery is under way. That's the hidden good news in the seemingly dismal gross national product (GNP) numbers released last week. Not only is recovery here, but this first quarter of 1983 could, by the numbers, show the biggest, rather than the smallest, GNP gain in 1983.

That may strike you as a strange conclusion to draw from numbers that show GNP at annual rates dropping 2.5 per cent last quarter to a level actually below our output level of four years ago. Nonetheless, it figures. How?

At the same time that output was falling 2.5 per cent, final sales to consumers and business were rising over 3 per cent. In other words, businesses were satisfying a big chunk of final demand by drawing down inventories, by depleting the stocks of goods they already had on hand, rather than by stepping up output.

But this can't go on. Inventories are getting mighty lean. Rising sales can only be met out of rising production. Let's say that final sales rise at a 2 per cent clip this quarter while inventories hold just about steady instead of dropping dramatically as they did last quarter.

That tells us that to satisfy even a modest rise in demand, the real rate of output, of GNP, would have to rise as much as 5 per cent to 7 per cent over last quarter. Does that portend a roaring recovery in the rest of 1983? No.

Just as last quarter's GNP numbers were not as bad as they looked, this quarter's won't be as good as they'll look. As Robert Ortner of the Commerce Department put it, "This is not the stuff that long-term recoveries are made of."

Keep your eye on those final sales numbers. Over the longer pull, GNP can't rise faster than they do. But this year, GNP growth will also reflect a swing from inventory downturn to inventory buildup. So if final sales for the year grow at 3 per cent or so, as I expect, we can look for GNP to grow by over 4 per cent from year-end to year-end — not great, but considerably faster than the White House forecast of only 3 per cent.

Asbestos Fibers Pose Threat In Old Buildings

Asbestos fibers can be a threat to the lungs, and residents of older buildings especially should be cautious when renovating ceilings, roofs, floors, walls, plumbing, etc., warns the American Lung Association of Minnesota.

In order to be a health risk, asbestos fibers must be released from the material containing them and be present in the air for people to breathe. Greatest risk exists when material containing asbestos are disturbed or crumbled, such as in renovation. Asbestos fibers are so small that you can't see them, and they pass through the filters on normal vacuum cleaners and back into the air when vacuumed up. Once inhaled, they can become lodged in tissue for a long time. After many years, cancer or other diseases can develop. People who smoke are at an even greater risk.

In most cases, asbestos-containing materials are best left alone. If you suspect a material contains asbestos and it is broken or crumbled, or if it is necessary to work with a material you think has asbestos in int, you should first determine if it actually does contain asbestos. Manufacturer of the product may be able to tell you, or people who frequently work with asbestos (plumbers, building and heating contractors) often can make a reasonable judgment based in visual inspection. Material can also be analyzed by a laboratory.

Materials which may contain asbestos include: vinyl floor tiles and sheet flooring; patching compounds and textured paints used before 1977-78 (now banned); ceilings; stove, furnace, wall and pipe insulation; appliances (such as hair dryers manufactured before 1979; roofing shingles and siding.

American Lung Association of Minnesota can provide more information and guidelines on asbestos. Contact: The American Lung Association of Minnesota, 614 Portland Avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota 55102, 612-227-8014, or call the U.S. consumer product safety commission, 800-638-2772.

VA Agrees To Delay Increase In Benefits

Nation's largest group of disabled veterans said it will agree to a six-month delay in cost-of-living increases in Veterans administration (VA) benefits, proposed by President Reagan in his fiscal year 1984 federal budget request.

However, the disabled American veterans (DAV) added that men and women on active duty in America's armed forces should receive a full cost-of-living increase in their paychecks on time.

This is the first time in many years that the DAV has gone along with any proposal that would, in effect, reduce any benefits provided by the VA for veterans with service-connected disabilities and their families. With three quarters of a million members, the DAV is the nation's third largest veterans' organization and the largest organization made up of veterans disabled in military service.

DAV's willingness to accept the proposed delay will be made official by the organization's national commander, Edward G. Galian, in testimony before the house and senate veterans' affairs committees Tuesday, Feb. 15.

"The DAV believes America's disabled veterans will accept the delayed increases in their benefits if they are applied equally across the board to beneficiaries of all federal entitlement programs," said Galian. "But, if any other group of federal beneficiaries is exempted for any reason," he warned, "DAV acceptance of the delay will end immediately. We are willing to bear a fair share of the burden for federal spending cuts needed to help our country deal with the mammoth deficits it faces. But no one in American has done more than men and women disabled in our armed forces to earn the benefits they and their families enjoy.

"If, under the proposed delay, any less deserving group receives treatment more favorable than that given to service-connected disabled veterans," Galian emphasized, "the DAV will go to the mat immediately, demanding favorable treatment for the people we represent."

Proposed delay President Reagan put forth in his FY 1984 budget request is, in the DAV's opinion, fair to disabled veterans. It recommends the same six-month delay in cost-of-living adjustments for all benefits provided under all federal entitlement programs, including benefits provided under the social security system.

However, it's now up to congress to accept, reject or modify the President's recommendations, and much will depend on how congress deals with the politically thorny question of delaying cost-of-living increases in social security benefits. Social security recipients form the largest single group of federal entitlement beneficiaries, and they've already demonstrated their political clout.

Cost-of-living delay, as it applies to social security benefits, has already generated some controversy. As the DAV sees it, how congress deals with social security will set a precedent, and pressure to handle other federal entitlement programs the same way will probably be irresistible.

Beyond the six-month delay in cost-of-living adjustments in federal entitlement programs, the President proposed a one-year freeze in such adjustments in the pay of two groups — federal employees and active-duty military personnel. While the DAV almost never takes positions on military mxtters, DAV Commander Galian will recommend that congress grant a full-cost-of-living increase — on time — to the men and women serving in the armed forces.

"Our military people have been asked, time and again, to accept a highly disproportionate share of the burden for federal spending cuts," Galian explained. "As a result, their pay has fared poorly in the battle to keep up with inflation. Too often in the past, we've read stories about enlisted men and women who had to resort to food stamps to help support their families."

During recent years, proposals for cuts in veterans' benefits and programs have come from a variety of sources, including the office of management and budget, the congressional budget office, some members of congress, and such private organizations as the Heritage foundation.

Nearly all of these proposals have been turned aside due to action by the DAV and other organizations in the veterans' movement. The DAV's willingness to go along with the proposed delay on federal entitlement programs represents a sharp break from the organization's long-term resistance to any reductions in veterans' programs.

However, Galian pointed out, "The DAV does not intend to make a habit of this, and we're not happy with the idea of delaying cost-of-living increases in benefits for disabled veterans and their families. But it's clear that something must be done to bring spending on entitlement programs under control. We're willing to go along with those efforts so long as any plan that's adopted is fair to disabled veterans."

Answers from the Bible by Pastor Don Peres

Q. Pastor Don, would you please explain what secular humanism is and why it is in direct conflict with Biblical principles?

A. Dr. Francis Schaeffer has warned people the ultimate end of secular humanism is always chaos. He has defined humanism as a man-centered philosophy that attempts to solve the problems of man and the world independently of God.

Whether most people are aware of it or not, secular humanism, the philosophy that declares "no deity will save us; we must save ourselves" has been quietly woven into the fabric of our daily lives, and the danger signs are quite evident.

Legislation on the national level reflects widespread acceptance of easy divorce, abortion on demand, gay rights, militant feminism, unisex facilities, and leniency towards pornography, prostitution, and crime.

The public school system has demonstrated hostility toward prayer, moral and religious values, creation as an alternative to evolution, and the teaching of sex education within a moral context rather than spiritual.

There has been a sexually permissive, self-indulgent approach to life that has become the norm for movies, books, and even prime time television.

Most people today do not realize what humanism really is and how it is destroying our culture, our families, and our country.

The church of Jesus Christ is the last obstacle for the humanist to conquer. The 1960's saw the battle for racial rights. In the 1970's it was sexual rights. But the 1980's have been designated for the battle against religious rights.

The first thing we can do is get right with God, pray, and begin to extablish Biblical principles once again in our daily lives and land.

Prov. 14:34 teaches, "Righteousness exalteth a nation: but sin is a reproach to any people."

Prov. 29:2 says, "when the righteous are in authority, the people rejoice: but when the wicked heareth rule, the people mourn."

Ps. 33:12 mentions, "Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord."

II Chron. 7:14 says, "If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and heal their land."

If you have any questions you would like to have answered from the Bible, please write Pastor Don Peres, Box 129, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

Conservation Program Takes New Direction

Our nation's soil and water conservation program is getting new direction because of the results of the soil and water resources conservation act (RCA). RCA required the Secretary of Agriculture to gather the public's opinion on the nation's soil and water resource problems and programs. During 1982, USDA received approximately 83,000 responses from the public concerning soil and water conservation programs. Over 2,600 comments came from Minnesotans.

Minnesotans helped shape the new soil and water conservation program released in January. Highlights of the new program and how Minnesotans voted during the public comment period (November, 1981 January, 1982) are:

Set conservation priorities: 86 per cent of respondents from Minnesota support USDA's effort to establish conservation priorities. National priorities are to reduce excessive soil erosion on crop, range, pasture and forestland. Conserving water used in agriculture and reducing flood damage in upstream areas are other priorities.

Strengthen the conservation partnership: Minnesotans favored the strategy for agricultural organizations — soil and water conservation districts, SCS, ASCS, FmHA, Extension Service — to strengthen their working relationship.

Improve program management: Some USDA farmers home administration loans will require the applicant to have a conservation plan for loan eligibility. 61 per cent of Minnesotans were in favor of this program change. Three-quarters of the respondents from Minnesota supported gathering and analyzing resource data.

Redirect USDA conservation activities: There was a split among Minnesotans on this issue. 41 per cent supported redirection, while 26 per cent opposed this suggestion. One major redirection of USDA conservation activities will involve targeting. Targeting allows USDA to distribute funds to critical erosion areas, where excessive soil erosion, water shortage and flooding occurs. Majority of Minnesota respondents, (81 per cent) supported targeting of USDA funds. Setting national, state and local priorities and objectives, and targeting funds is the cornerstone of the RCA program. Already, southeast Minnesota has been designated as a target area. Goodhue, Wabasha, Olmsted, Winona, Fillmore and Houston counties obtained an additional $275,000 in FY 1983 for technical staff. Target areas are also proposed for southwest, and northwest Minnesota. In the next five years, 25 per cent of SCS conservation operation technical assistance funds will be directed to target areas. Currently, most of the dollars for target areas have been new funds, above the base SCS conservation operations program.

MS Readathon Adds Mystery Writing Event

Minnesota MS society has announced the second annual MS readathon creative writing contest, open to all Minnesota youngsters in grades 1-9 who are participating in the MS readathon. The readathon encourages children to read and contribute funds to MS. Interested young people will write an original mystery story for the contest, all to help solve the mystery of multiple sclerosis.

An anthology of stories will be compiled and published by B. Dalton Bookseller, reproducing the stories as they were written by the youngsters. Award winning writers will appear at a special autograph party with Minnesota Viking Matt Blair, state chairman for the MS readathon, and other special guests in Minnetonka May 14. Individual appearances for mystery authors will also be scheduled.

Proceeds from the sale of the book will be donated to the MS society in support of the 1984 MS readathon.

Multiple sclerosis is the most common disease of the central nervous system and is usually diagnosed between the ages of 15 and 50. It is an often disabling disease which makes it difficult to walk, talk or see for the approximately 10,000 Minnesotans affected.

Crusty Crayfish — Culinary Delight, Feisty Curiosity

by Thomas Harney
Smithsonian News Service

Average American crayfish may be only four inches long, but what the crusty critter lacks in stature, it more than makes up for in combativeness. Nobody knows this better than the Smithsonian's Dr. Horton Hobbs Jr., the country's leading authority on these freshwater crustaceans and a veteran of countless crayfish encounters.

Ever since his student days at the university of Florida 50 years ago, Hobbs has been collecting crayfish, miniature lobsterlike creatures that play an important role in the ecology of streams, lakes and meadows and serve as a valuable food resource. In the process, the native Floridian has amassed an enormous amount of information on their biological diversity, geographic range, ecology and life histories — and has been pinched more times than he can remember, for crayfish will raise their pincers to assail anyone who disturbs them.

Given their cantankerous personalities, it's a tribute to their tastiness that in parts of the South — especially in southern Louisiana where they are called "crawfish" and occupy a kay part of the Cajun fishing economy — crayfish are something of a gastronomic mania, devoured in vast quantities everywhere, from chic city restaurants to backyard beer parties.

However, the crayfish has been immortalized in southern lore for more than its culinary contributions. There is the matter of its legendary courage and feistiness.

In one of his Uncle Remus stories, Joel Chandler Harris recounted what happened when an elephant heedlessly trampled a couple of crawfish at a gathering of animals. According to the story, the enraged crawfish bored holes in the ground until they "unloost de fountains of de earth." A flood ensued, drowning all the creatures "all bekaze dey (thought) among deyselves dat dey wuz bigger dan de crawfishes."

Apocryphal though this tale may be, crayfish are rather extraordinary creatures. They date back to the Mesozoic era, 130 to 225 million years ago, when both they and lobsters evolved from a common primitive marine crustacean ancestor. Both are decapods, meaning they have 10 legs — four walking pairs plus one pair bearing large claws. The claws are used for self defense and to gather food. First two pairs of walking legs end in miniature claws, the second two pairs in hooks. Both the miniature and large claws are used to gather and grasp food — such as worms, insect larvae, an occasional fish and even, as Hobbs will tell you, an occasional nose!

Some crayfish species are aquatic or semi-aquatic, living wholly or partially in streams, lakes, swamps and ditches, but many others are terrestrial, living in grassy meadows and woods. Regardless of their lifestyle, nearly all species, like those in Uncle Remus' yard, do bore holes in the ground.

Using their outermost mouth parts and claws very much like a steam shovel, they excavate an intricate tunnel system anywhere from several inches to 20 feet down, burrowing as deep as necessary to reach the water table. At the mouths of one or a few of the branching tunnels in the burrow, the crayfish builds a cylindrical mud chimney, a few inches to a foot high. Naturalists have argued for years whether the chimney is a funcational part of the nest or simply the creature's way of dumping excavated dirt. Hobbs believes the chimney has a purpose: helping pull air into the tunnel system to make it more livable.

Once the burrow is completed, many crayfish will spend almost their entire lives — as long as seven years — beneath the ground, coming out only at night for occasional forays, presumably to search for food and, at times, if they are males, to find the burrow of a potential mate. Females leave the burrow even less frequently than males, seemingly doing little else but digging all their lives, except in the winter when they hibernate.

Seldom does more than one crayfish occupy a hole except during the breeding season when the female allows the male to enter her burrow. After they breed, the female presumably drives the male off. When the young crayfish hatch, they are attached to their mother's abdomen, each by a slender thread. Within a few days they molt, for shedding skin is the only way the crayfish can grow. A new soft skin forms beneath the old one, the old skin splits off and, for a short time the crayfish grows within the new skin, pliable until it begins to harden within a few hours.

For Hobbs, the challenge is getting the crayfish out of their lairs to bring them back to his laboratory for study. Sometimes, he angles for them with a hook baited with a worm or a piece of meat; failing that, he pours water down the hole and waits for the crayfish to come to the surface for air. When these techniques don't work, he digs them out with a trowel or shovel.

Hobbs' method thus unfolds: Keeping one hand in the hole to prevent the side tunnels from collapsing, he digs to within reach of the crayfish, pins the angry scrapping creature down and pulls it out. Procedure doesn't always go smoothly; sometimes the crayfish emerges with its claws clamped around Hobbs' fingers. "Oh, they can make a man holler!" the bespectacled biologist says.

Even in the laboratory, caution is necessary. Once, as Hobbs bent over a laboratory dish to study a specimen of a newly discovered crayfish species fresh from the field, the furious animal lunged to within a whisker of Hobbs' nose. But Hobbs had the last word: He named the new species truculentus — Latin for savage, harsh or cruel.

And he has persevered. Hobbs' fascination with crayfish began when he was a freshman in college. After the aspiring young biologist botched a crayfish dissection in zoology class, he grabbed an old battery jar, trekked down to the local creek and brought some crayfish back to his room. He's been hooked on — and by— the critters ever since.

"Beginning about 1937," he recalls, "I crossed the Florida line and extended my collecting into Georgia, getting up there on dirt roads in an old Model-A. In those days, I thought nothing of collecting right on up to midnight."

He continued to collect in Georgia for 42 years, amassing more than 21,000 specimens in all of the state's 159 counties. His latest publication — one of his largest and most important — is a 549-page survey of the natural history of "The Crayfishes of Georgia."

Hobbs has expanded his geographic range from Florida and Georgia through Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas, Kentucky, Tennessee, North Carolina and South Carolina. In more than half a century of indefatigable collecting in these crayfish-rich states, he has found and described for the first time as many as a third of the crayfishes now recognized on this continent.

North America, in fact, is home to more species of crayfishes than any other continent — 350 of the world's almost 500 crayfish species are found in North and Middle America. Creatures west of the Rockies are related to European crayfishes, while those in the southern United States are related to crayfishes in Japan, Korea and eastern China. Some scientists think that the ancestors of those occurring east of the Rockies migrated across the Bering Land Bridge 65 million years ago.

Inexplicably, there are no indigenous crayfishes in Africa, and they are also absent from large areas of South America and the Asian continent. In France, Austria and Scandinavia, indigenous crayfishes have been eaten as delicacies for centuries. Australia has almost 100 known species of crayfishes, popularly known as "yabbies." Some of the Australian species are much larger than those in the United States, where the biggest species are less than a foot in length. In Tasmania, one type of crayfish grows as long as two-and-a-half feet from claws to tail weighing up to 10 pounds.

Examples of crayfish from the corners of the globe can be found preserved in thousands of jars and bottles in the Smithsonian's national museum of natural history collection, the largest in the world. The collection grew enormously in 1962 when Hobbs joined the staff and donated his personal collection of 70,000 crayfish — the largest ever assembled by one person. He's added tens of thousands of specimens since then.

Not every crayfish Hobbs collects is acquired by the museum however. As a southerner, he confesses to a secret passion. Occasionally, when not on official duty, he takes part of his haul from the field and enjoys a "crayfish boil," seasoned with salt, dill and Tabasco and served with melted butter. Declares Hobbs: "They're good any way you fix them."

IRS Program Pairs Names And Numbers

At the beginning of every year, employers, banks, companies you own stock in, and others send you those familiar statements showing wages, interest, dividends and other income they've paid you the previous year. Later, you'll include this information on your federal income tax return.

For every statement sent to a taxpayer, a copy is sent to the Internal Revenue service as well. Multiply these statements by the number of taxpayers, and that's a lot of information. In 1980 over 588 million information returns arrived at the 10 IRS service centers, about 514 million on magnetic computer tape, disks and diskettes, the rest on paper forms.

What does the IRS do with all this information? As much as possible, it matches the returns against the amounts taxpayers report on their income tax returns to determine if the returns have been properly filed and income properly reported. IRS calls this the information returns program.

Present IRS matching efforts are a result of the revenue act of 1962, which requires those who pay income, such as interest and dividends, to furnish information statements to the recipients and the IRS.

When the information returns arrive at the IRS Service Centers, some paper documents are transcribed onto magnetic media. Because paper documents are 40 times more costly to process than magnetic media, only a sample of the paper is processed each year.

Next, the names and social security numbers on the documents are compared by computer to a Social Security administration list of valid social security numbers. Documents with incorrect or missing numbers undergo various research and correction routines.

Third major step is the matching of information returns against tax returns in the IRS individual master file (IMF), a computer system containing the tax accounts of all individual taxpayers. From this the IRS can find apparent reporting discrepancies or cases of failure to file a tax return, which leads to the fourth step in the information returns program — the follow up of apparent discrepancies.

In 1974, when the information returns program began, the IRS matched 35 per cent of returns received. Since then the percentage has risen steadily. In 1979, the IRS improved its matching program through a cooperative effort with the Social Security administration, called combined annual wage reporting. Employers file Forms W-2 and W-2P (for pensions) with the SSA, which transfers the information to computer tape and shares it with the IRS. The IRS expects to match 81 per cent of all information returns for tax year 1980 (the latest year for which figures are available).

Income information is reported to the IRS on three basic types of information returns. Individual taxpayers are probably most familiar with the W-2 Forms they receive from their employers that show wages, tips, other compensation, and the amount of tax withheld. Another type, which includes Forms 1099 and 1087, is sent to the IRS by corporations, banks, etc., and reports rent, royalties, interest, dividends, and other nonwage income. Third type of information return includes income distribution schedules from partnerships, small businesses, fiduciary tax returns, and, in the cases of foreign countries having treaties with the U.S., reports income earned abroad by U.S. citizens.

The IRS stresses that each document, whether on paper or magnetic media, should have the correct taxpayer identification number (TIN) of the person receiving the payment. For an individual taxpayer this is the social security number. When a TIN is omitted from or entered incorrectly on an information document, the IRS must find the correct one and that may involve time consuming correspondence with the taxpayers. To reduce errors, the IRS urges taxpayers to use their TIN's on all correspondence with the tax agency and to check for the correct TINs on income statements they receive.

The Wage and Hour Division of the U.S. Department of Labor was established in 1938 to administer the landmark Fair Labor Standards Act, which contains minimum wage, overtime pay, record-keeping and child labor provisions.

In last week's write-up of Roger Lee Solem's birthday, it should have read, "Thursday evening Roger Alan Solem brought birthday greetings to his dad and was a supper guest." Apologies.

Section 8 Play Starts Friday

An apparently favorable Section 8 tournament draw and a regular season-ending shellacking at the hands of Fergus Falls are both producing interesting comparisons for the Lincoln high school hockey team on the eve of the 1983 Section 8 tournament, which gets underway this weekend at East Grand Forks.

Thief River Falls fans warn the Prowlers not to be overly confident going into post-season play even though the tournament draw groups the team with Lake of the Woods, Detroit Lakes and Moorhead while staying clear of such formidable foes as Roseau, Bemidji, Fergus Falls and East Grand Forks. That's not to knock the opposition, but there's no way that the Spuds, Lakers or Bears would not be preferred opponents over the Otters, Green Wave, Rams or Lumberjacks.

However, people here remember the last time Thief River Falls had what looked like a sure ticket into the finals in 1973 — ten years ago — when the Prowlers were upset by Detroit Lakes 8-7 in the opening round quarterfinals.

Fergus Falls maybe shocked a number of Thief River Falls fans out of state tournament dreams Friday with that surprise 6-1 drubbing of the Prowlers, but in this case, people here are hoping history repeats itself.

In 1980-81 Fergus Falls dumped Thief River Falls 7-2 in the final game of the regular season, only to see the Prowlers come back to beat the Otters 3-2 in the Section 8 tournament semifinals.

MCCC Hockey Format Changed

A four-team state tournament, featuring the top four finishers in the regular season standings gathered together at one pre-determined site for semifinals and finals, has apparently been used for the last time by the Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) hockey-playing members.

Those schools — Northland, Hibbing, Mesabi, Rainy River, Rochester and the University of Minnesota-Crookston — have decided that next year the playoff system will be changed to a two-game, total-goal format.

The top four regular season finishers will still be involved in the post-season play, but instead of those teams meeting like they did last weekend in Rochester for the 1983 state tournament semifinals and finals, they'll be paired off in those two-game, total-goal series at the site of the two higher seeded teams. The No. 4 team will be at the No. 1 finisher, with the No. 2 team at the No. 3 finisher. Those winners will meet in the finals in another two-game, total-goal series at the site of the higher regular season finisher.

And it may be that NDSU-Bottineau would be involved in the Minnesota state playoffs.

Under the current set-up Bottineau has the right to play the Minnesota state champion in a North-Central Regional challenge match for the right to advance to the NJCAA national hockey tournament. A year ago UMC took the regular season and state playoff titles only to lose to 5-4 game to Bottineau. The Trojans had a huge shots-on-goal advantage in that one, but was denied a national tournament berth.

This year the situation was changed to a two-game, total-goal series in which Bottineau will be at Crookston for games Thursday at 7:30 p.m. and Friday at 3 p.m. The winner moves on to the national tournament at Lake Placid, N.Y.

Another change is proposed for next year in which Bottineau would have to challenge the No. 4 MCCC regular season finisher for a berth in the Minnesota state playoffs. The state champion would then move on to the national tournament.
